PSYCHEDELIC CARAVAN — The buses which are home to about 60 persons who are long on demands but short on cash lined up at Civic Center yesterday as members of the commune tried to collect $700 in welfare funds. The "family" didn't get fed, but the buses did, with 155.9 gallons of gas.

'HOG FARM' ROLLS ON TO BERKELEY

By WAT TAKESHITA

A bus caravan of about 60 hippie transients, who demanded $700 in welfare funds during a two-day sit-in at Marin County civic center, settled for a $46.24 handout and headed for Berkeley last night.

The payment for gasoline and tolls drew fire from two county officials.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, who was at the Civic Center to see the caravan serviced at the county gas pumps, called it "paying blackmail."

"It's pretty plain how the board (of supervisors) felt about it," said Baar. "When somebody tires to blackmail, we shouldn't pay blackmail. Thats what bothers me."

Mario Balestrieri, deputy public works director who has charge of the county garage and the gasoline pumps, declared:

"I have a notion to charge welfare for the gas. I don't think we should absorb the cost of the gas."

The motley group, ranging in age from 1 to 45, planted itself on the fourth floor of the Civic Center yesterday afternoon, demanding $500 for repair of the communes psychedelic-hued buses, $200 for gasoline and plus food.

Miss Presley and top county officials headed by County Administrator Alan Bruce met the group on the hillside patio at the south end of the civic center.

Bruce told the group, calling itself "Hog Farm Commune", that members' individual applications would be rejected. Peter Whiterabbit, bearded spokesman for the group, then conferred with county officials and settled for gasoline for their nine vehicles plus toll over the Richmond-San Rafael bridge

Balestrieri said the vehicles took 155.9 gallons, which the county buys for 21 cents per gallon, or $32.74 total. The toll for the bridge, at $1.50 per bus or van, came to $13.50, which the administrator paid out of his petty cash fund.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos sent an unmarked patrol car to lead the caravan over the bridge.

County officials who were hastily summoned to confer with the communal family included Bruce, Miss Presley, Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales, County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, Public Works Director Donald R. Frost, and Sheriff Mountanos.

The administrator said it was the collective judgement of the county officials that giving the Hog Farm Commune gas and toll was the best way to handle the situation.

Under the Welfare and Institutions Code, the welfare department and local police have the discretion to give aid in overnight lodging and food and transportation to stranded persons, said Bruce. He said the communal group was handled in the same way that any other stranded individual or family would be handled, except that

Lodge In Angry Paris Walkout

Protests Attitude Of Hanoi

PARIS (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge today cut short the Vietnam peace talks and stormed out of the conference in protest against the attitude of the Communist negotiators. He did not wait to deliver the American statement.

The chief American negotiator said he made the dramatic move to draw the attention of world opinion "to the completely negative attitude which has persistently characterized the other side."

Lodge said his move for an early adjournment, apparently made with White House blessing, did not mean the United States was quitting the conference. Instead, the U.S. delegation moved only for a one week adjournment.

Explaining his move to newsmen as he returned to the delegation headquarters, Lodge said, "I thought the time had

'RUSSIAN ROULETTE'

Agnew's Latest Target—Muskie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, keeping up his strongly worded attacks on administration critics, has accused Democratic Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of irresponsibly advocating a "Russian roulette" disarmament plan.

A spokesman said Agnew acted on his own, not on administration instructions, in challenging Muskie's proposal that the United States halt the testing of new, multiple-warhead strategic missiles for six months.

Agnew called the Muskie plan "a classic example of confused thinking."

"I'm confused by his statement," countered Muskie. "I'm flattered by the attention."

"Who knows what Agnew means?" said Muskie, who ran for vice president a year ago and now is rated a front-rank prospect for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

Agnew's statement was the latest in a series of strong attacks on those disagreeing with Nixon.

"Does he clear these things with the White House?" asked Republican Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, who then admitted he didn't know the answer.

Muskie Tuesday proposed a unilateral U.S. cessation of the testing of multiple, warheaded missiles as a step to stimulate arms control efforts.

Brooke is the chief sponsor of a resolution backed by 43 senators urging a U.S.-Soviet moratorium on MIRV testing.

Brooke said he doesn't know whether the United States can afford the unilateral halt proposed by Muskie, but added "I certainly don't consider it an irresponsible proposal."

Agnew said in his statement yesterday the United States has exercised restraint in stockpiling strategic arms, but Muskie "is not content with this nation keeping prudent pace.

"He wants it to slip backwards," Agnew said.

"No responsible person would propose that the President play Russian roulette with U.S. security," Agnew said. "Yet that is what Senator Muskie did."

Criticism and defense continued to flow across the Senate yesterday in the wake of Agnew's weekend attacks on Vietnam protestors as anarchists encouraged by "impudent snobs."

And another charge was leveled against the vice president.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., accused Agnew of trying to put pressure on the Supreme Court in a Jackson, Miss., speech Monday.

Cranston quoted the vice president as saying President Richard Nixon believes Mississippi officials have made a strong case for additional time to desegregate schools.

The Democratic senator said that was "unwarranted, unethical and grossly improper."

Toliver Pay Raise Figures Are Corrected

James T. Toliver Jr., assistant to the principal of Sausalito School District, received a 12.2 per cent raise for the current school year, not 22.5 per cent as reported last Saturday in the Independent Journal.

His monthly pay check increased from $1,040 to $1,274, or 22.3 per cent. However, under his contract for the current school year he receives only 11 pay checks, whereas under the previous contract he received 12 checks.

He was hired in July, 1967, on a nine-month contract, beginning in September. Pay for the nine months, however, was split into 12 payments of $637.50 each, totaling $9,650.

Last year, he was again given a nine-month contract, at $12,500 —an increase of $2,850 or 29.5 percent. Again, it was split into 12 payments, of $1,040 each except for one of $1,060. The across-the-board raise given Sausalito teachers in 1968 was 7.7 per cent plus the annual step

Ex-Ross Flier Dies On Vietnam Flight

A former Ross man was killed Sunday in Vietnam when his Bronco spotter plane was shotdown by ground fire 21 miles north of Saigon.

Capt. James C. Woods, 32, died when bullets struck both engines of the observation plane, the Department of Defense reported. A passenger in the plane also was killed.

A 1959 graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, Woods received a presidential appointment to the Military academy at West Point and entered the Air Force as a pilot after graduation in 1959.

While a student at West Point, he was captain of both the swimming and wrestling teams. His father, the late Col. Fred J. Woods, was also a West Point graduate.

Born in Corregidor, Woods lived in Ross from 1946 until his appointment to the Academy. He had been stationed in Vietnam since February. An ardent skin diver, he practiced his hobby while stationed around the world.

He is survived by his wife, June Woods of Fairfield; a son, Thomas, 8; a daughter, Wendy, 5; his mother, Mrs. Fred J. Woods of Sonoma, and two brothers, F. Michael Woods of San Francisco and Milton C. Woods of Anaheim.

Sleuths Turn To Dick Tracy For Clues To Zodiac Slayer Of Five

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State crime investigators today sought help from comic strip detective Dick Tracy in the search for clues to the Zodiac slayer of the San Francisco Bay Area.

Agents of the state Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation began scrutinizing the Tracy comics on the theory that there might be some parallels between zodiac and the Scorpio leader of the Zodiac gang in the cartoon series.

Earl Bauer, a senior analyst in the bureau's crime laboratory, conceded comparing the comic strip with the Zodiac investigation was "kind of offbeat" but said it may provide a vaulable clue in apprehending the Zodiac.

The first Zodiac installment appeared in the comics Aug. 17, a few weeks after the Bay Area's admitted slayer of five persons dubbed himself Zodiac in letters to newspapers.

"You notice that these things come up more or less simultaneously," Bauer said. "So then you take a look to see if there are any parallels."

In Chester Gould's comic strip, Scorpio has an astrological Scorpio sign printed on his face. An astrology columnist was drowned and cuff links with the horoscope and a scorpion were found on his shirt.

Bauer, who said he was assisted by other CII workers, declined to discuss what, if any, conclusions he foresaw resulting from the analysis. "It's just speculation at this point," he said.

Yesterday Zodiac failed to show for a rendezvous in Daily City with San Francisco attorney Belli, with whom he talked with for nearly two hours on the Jim Dunbar television show.

There has also been another challenge to Zodiac—from the brother of San Francisco cab driver Paul Stine. The cabbie was shot to death Oct. 11 and the killer mailed a piece of Stine's bloodied shirt with a boastful letter to the San Francisco Chronicle.

Stine's brother, Joe, 34, operator of a Modesto service station, issued an itinerary of his daily habits and challenged Zodiac to "come and get me."

"I don't carry weapons," said the 165-pound Army and Air Force veteran. "I don't feel I need any. I was very close to Paul, and now I want a chance at his killer."

IN 10 MINUTES: DEATH

Mother Shocked By Humane Center Act

By ALAN JONES

A 10-week-old puppy brought to the Marin County animal shelter in Ignacio yesterday for adoption was instead put to death within minutes, while his 3-year-old master and the boy's mother pleaded with shelter employees to give the puppy back.

"We weren't there 10 minutes," said Mrs. Paula Potts of San Rafael. Mrs. Potts said they planned to leave the puppy for the weekend for adoption, and if he was not taken to claim him again on Monday.

When there is a surplus of animals at the shelter, it is the shelter's policy to destroy incoming animals as quickly as possible, kennel superintendent Jack Faulkner said. A dog would be kept only if the staff felt it was more likely to be adopted than an animal already in the shelter, he said.

"She was told we cannot guarantee placement," Faulkner said. He said Mrs. Potts also signed a release form making the puppy the shelter's property.

"We don't just indiscriminately destroy animals. That's not our policy, it never has been and never will be," Faulkner

'Waiting For Godot' Author Beckett Wins Nobel Prize

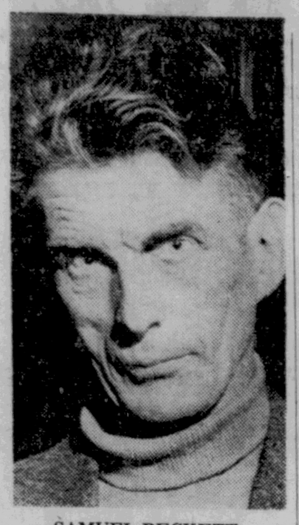
The Swedish Academy cited the 63-year-old, Dublin-born Beckett, who is also known for his novels and poems, for "his writing, which—in new forms for the novel and drama —in the destitution of modern man acquires its elevation."

The new forms cited by the 18-member Academy became popularly known as "theater of the absurd." "Waiting for Godot," first staged in Paris and then Germany, England and finally Broadway, was the forerunner of the era.

(Beckett's "Waiting for Godot" is in its last two nights of a run at the College of Marin's studio theater located in the Fine Arts Building. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. each night.)

The play, a "tragicomedy" with only four characters and almost no action, has been called the crystallization of all Beckett's work. Its main characters are two tramps standing by a roadside waiting for the mysterious, unknown Godot who never comes.



SAMUEL BECKETT
'Theater of the absurd'

Beckett, who began his literary life as secretary to James Joyce, was traveling abroad at the time of the announcement. His agent in Paris said the author was somewhere in the Mediterranean, Italy or even the United States.

The Nobel prize carries a cash award of $72,500.

Beckett, who lives in France and writes in the French language, has been a candidate for the prize for many years.

But a strong faction inside the Swedish academy has been fighting against his nomination. This year, the pro-Beckett faction won out.

He maintains an apartment in Paris where he lives with his French wife.

But only very close friends and his publisher know the address and the Nobel prize winner has given very few interviews.

Dr. Karl Ragnar Gierow, the permanent secretary of the Swedish Academy, said Beckett made a name for himself in the space of three years through five works—the novel "Molloy" in 1951, its sequel, "Malone Meurt" the same year, the play "Waiting for Godot" and two novels in 1953, "L'Innommable" and "Watt."

U.S. Antiwar Movement Is Hit In Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's National Assembly adopted a resolution today condemning the antiwar movement in the United States, and one member accused the U.S. Democratic party of inciting the movement to further its political struggle against the Republicans.

Although the assembly has 135 members, many were not present, and the resolution was declared adopted on the affirmative votes of 58 members.

"STRONG PROTEST"

The resolution urged a "strong protest of the unjust act of the...antiwar movement elements, disregarding the sacrifice of blood and bones of Vietnamese soldiers and people as well as the sacrifice of allied troops in Vietnam."

It said the assembly was determined to "safeguard the right to self-determination" and appealed to "all people, groups and organizations...to stand up together and destroy all plots and movements aimed at forcing the Vietnamese people to accept a Communist slavery regime in any form."

Opening the debate, Tran Quy Phong said.

The Democratic party now has a majority in both houses. If the Democrats really want a U.S. retreat from Vietnam, why don't they put the Vietnamese problem to the vote by their majority to force (President) Nixon to do it the way they want?

POLITICS HIT

"They don't do that, but they do incite students to act the way as, 'do the thing I say, not the thing I do.'...Now American students are taken advantage of by a group of political opportunists...

"Antiwar activities are looked on only as an oral battle of Democrats against Republicans for their purpose of winning more votes in coming elections, opening the way for the Democratic party to return to power."

Last Week's U.S. Viet Death Toll Same As For Entire '63

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. headquarters said today 78 GIs died in Vietnam combat last week, the same number slain in fighting during all of 1963 before the American buildup began.

It was the fourth successive week that the battle lull had kept U.S. deaths below the 100 mark, a level never broken last year. Not since December of 1966 has the death rate been this low.

Another 684 Americans were wounded last week, 299 of them seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Again, South Vietnamese losses—301 killed and 878 wounded—were much higher than the U.S. casualties, an indicator of the Saigon government's progress in assuming more of the fighting.

Military spokesmen said the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese lost 1,624 men killed, their fewest battle fatalities ths year and another result of the battle lull that began six weeks ago.

The U.S. death toll was a slight decrease from the 82 GIs slain the previous week and equaled the number of Americans who died in Vietnam in all of 1963, the year before big U.S. units began arriving.

Since Jan. 1, 1961, a total of 39,047 U.S. servicemen have been killed in Vietnam and 255,531 have suffered wounds.

The lull in fighting continued overnight, headquarters said, with scattered fighting killing 163 Communist troops. American losses were put at 11 killed and 34 wounded.

For the second successive day, U.S. B52 bombers raided within 500 yards of the demilitarized zone today, hitting what spokesmen called guerrilla base camps and supply areas.

Eruptions from the 500 and 750-pound bombs in the two early morning strikes sent clouds of dirt and debris into the air over the target area, the same place where the Stratoforts raided yesterday.

U.S. headquarters said this area is the center of a new buildup by North Vietnamese troops, started since American Marines began leaving the area in the process of being withdrawn from the war.

Troopers of the 101st Airborne Division, sent north to fill in part of the void left by the departing Marines, came under mortar attack there Wednesday and reported "light" losses in the 30-round barrage.

It was one of 10 shelling attacks reported in this morning communiques. Ground fighting continued light, spokesmen said, with a total of 53 guerrillas slain against four Americans killed and five wounded.

Reagan Slates London Trip For Business Talk

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan will deliver the keynote address to a conference of business leaders from the British Isles in London Nov. 6, his office said today.

Reagan will speak at a meeting of the Institute of Directors. The institute includes about 4,200 leaders of business and industry in England, Scotland and Wales.

The Republican governor, now on a speaking tour on behalf of Republicans, will leave for London Nov. 1 after addressing the state Republican Convention at Anaheim. He and Mrs. Reagan also plan to visit Paris briefly before returning home, Reagan's office said today.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Haynsworth Delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's debate on the Supreme Court nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. may be delayed until mid-November, in part because of senatorial junketing.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., leader of the opposition to Haynsworth, leaves tomorrow for an extended overseas trip with the intimate destination New Delhi, India. Bayh will not return to Washington until Nov. 9.

Also going to New Delhi for an interparliamentary union conference is Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., Haynsworth's sponsor.

Loan Involvement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has made public documents that show Hubert Humphery urged top government officials to approve a loan to a Minnesota firm later sued by the government for deceit and breach of contract.

The $2.3 million loan from the Agency for International Development was granted to NAPCO Industries of Minneapolis in 1962. The government filed a civil complaint against the company Feb. 16, 1968, charging NAPCO with "deceit, false claims and breach of contract."

Although there was no suggestion that the former vice president profited in any way from his efforts to help the company, Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, charged Tuesday that Humphrey was "plainly guilty of highly improper conduct."

Could Erupt

SEATTLE (UPI) — Mount Rainier may be an old volcano but even old volcanoes may blow their top, according to a world authority on volcanology.

"When volcanoes near the end of their lives, they have a tendency to become active," said Dr. Howell Williams of the volcanology center at the University of Oregon in a public lecture last night.

In his lecture at the University of Washington, Williams pointed out that Rainier is an old volcano "far beyond maturity" and is the very kind which has been known to "blow its top."

If Rainier should blow, Williams said he would expect the eruption to be "mostly ash" but added a violent blast from Rainier was "not inconceivable."

Overpay Error

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state has overpaid 66 nursing homes in the Medi-Cal program by about $1 million largely because of bookkeeping errors, Health Care Services Director Carel Mulder disclosed yesterday.

Mulder said the overpayments to homes caring for poor patients were found in the first 66 of Medi-Cal's 1,200 nursing homes whose state payments are being audited.

However, he said none of the overpayments resulted from violations of Medi-Cal rules or laws. Mulder said the errors occurred in figuring cost statements on which payments are based.

Quake Is Felt

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — The first sharp earthquake felt here in more than a year swayed the county administration building and other tall structures yesterday afternoon but no damage or injury was reported.

Seimologists at the Univresity of California placed the epicenter in the Pacific Ocean about 75 miles southwest of Point Arguello.

Preliminary Richter scale readings for the tremor at 3:51 p.m. ranged from 5.3 to 5.8 at seismology stations in California and Nevada. A light aftershock came at 5 p.m.

Jumps The Tracks

CHELMSFORD, England (UPI)—A freight train loaded with mortar shells and smoke bombs jumped the tracks last night but the Ministry of Defense said there was neither injuries nor danger of explosions.

Alioto Calls Reagan Only Oilman Pawn

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Republican fund-raiser Henry Salvatori — not Gov. Reagan — is really governing California, Says San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto.

Alioto asserted yesterday that Reagan was so under the influence of Salvatori, a wealthy Los Angeles oilman, that Reagan had "incapaciated" himself from what Alioto termed the top 1970 campaign issues-"dirty air and dirty water."

Reagan "is beholden to the very people who are causing these defects," Alioto declared in a speech to the Democratic Women's Forum of Los Angeles.

Alioto last week asserted the GOP governor was a pawn of business lobbyists - headed, the mayor said, by Salvatori-in part because Salvatori and others had raised funds to buy Reagan's Sacramento residence.

Assembly Democratic leader Jesse Unruh, D-Inglewood, also spoke to the women's group and declared he wasn't going to believe that state finance director Casper Weinberger's statement on a particular subject actually represented Reagan's thoughts "until I see Henry Salvatori's comment."

In Bulgaria

PG&E Quarterly Profits Decline

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. has reported 1969 third quarter earnings at 59 cents a share, down from 62 cents a year ago.

President Sherman L. Sibley said the basic cause of the earnings slip was severe inflation affecting both operating the construction costs.

In the 12-month period ended Sept. 30, 1969 earnings advanced to $2.61 a share from $2.48 a year earlier.

Auto Stolen

A 1963 black-over-red Jaguar XKE, license HUG-522, owned by Bruce Gordon, of 113 Barbaree Way, Tiburon, was stolen today from Humboldt and Pine streets in Sausalito, police reported. The theft was between midnight and 1 a.m., they said.

COMMUNE

this was an unusually large group.

The Hog Farm Commune started three years ago in Llano, N.M., according to member Thomas Masters, It travels cross-country, putting on psychedlic light shows and rock festivals. Members say they helped set up the Woodstock Festival in New York.

"We came here last week for a starve-in in San Francisco and hoped to set up a festival in Los Angeles but it fell through," Masters said. A 400-pound pig named Pigasus is part of their show and rides in one of the vans.

When asked who the group leader is, Buffalo Bob, 39, replied: "There is no leader. Everybody is a leader." He acknowledged that Buffalo Bob is not his given name and said, "but what's the value of a family name. I've got my identity. I react to Buffalo Bob at the moment."

"Have you looked for a job?" asked a newsman.

"We figure our job is communication," replied Buffalo Bob. "We're very particular and specific as to jobs. What's the use of taking any haphazard job just to keep alive without a chance to get all our buses together and go in a group. If we have to work, I guess we will. But we want to hit the road and turn people on."

Buffalo Bob said his group stayed at Gate 5 in Sausalito Tuesday night. "If we have to, we will camp out in the parking lot here all night, unless we're all arrested."

"One reason we came here was to see if we could make it easier for welfare people to get money," put in Mac Pate. He said the eight-page application for welfare aid is difficult.

"I've had six years of college and it's still difficult. It's a mental drag. I can now see what people have to go through to receive aid. They're (welfare workers) not only impersonal, but cruel."

He said the people at Gate 5 opened their homes and shared food. and markets such as the Super G gave them bruised food. "The people are all willing to help, but not the government."

Ephraim Robbins, who said he was born in Australia to American parents, identified himself as the father of three who sat in the welfare office for four and one-half hours Tuesday, asking for food for his children. "They said they couldn't give us even a dollar. So last night we went out and stole food for the kids."

Are there married couples in the group? "Some couples are more constant than others," said Pate. "But we're all married to each other. We're one family."

An 18-year-old girl from Maine, who said her full name is Alannah, petted a live king snake coiled around her neck. She said the group had never asked for welfare aid before. "But we did get food stamps once in New Mexico."

Adults and children, mostly long-haired and wearing psychedelic colors and plaid outfits, sat on the Civic Center patio munching sunflower seeds, waiting for Peter Whiterabbit to complete negotiations with county officials.

It was dusk when Whiterabbit emerged to announce they would get only gasoline and bridge toll. "No dinner," cried one. "In other words, you're running us out of town," grumbled another. "Oh, we can eat in Berkeley," said a girl. "we can dig in the garbage cans."

But Whiterabbit was firm. "The Sheriff has agreed to lead the group across the bridge and pay the tolls."

There were anguished shouts, followed by "Hurray for the sheriff."

"A couple of you remain behind to clean up the sunflower shells," Whiterabbit instructed his group. But Leslie Wider, maintenance supervisor for county buildings, said the patio would be cleaned by regular crews.

Young Woman Found Dead In Alto Motel

A beautiful, young Scottish girl, despondent over her husband's death two months ago, rented an Alto motel room Tuesday and surrounded by pictures of her late husband swallowed a fatal overdose of barbituates.

Elspeth Moyra Brown, 25, who moved to Sausalito from San Francisco six weeks ago, was found dead at the Village Motel, 670 Redwood Highway, Alto, at 11:45 a.m. yesterday by the motel manager, the Marin County Coroner's office reported.

According to friends, Mrs. Brown, a night floor nursing supervisor at St. Joseph's Hospital in San Francisco, had been a chronic depression since her husband of six months died in August.

A native of the Orkney Islands in Scotland and the daughter of a Scottish diplomat, Mrs. Brown came to the United States three years ago to work in San Francisco.

Last year, friends said, she met and married David Brown, 32, a student at San Francisco State College. "She and David were very much in love; they had a very happy marriage," according to Sue Carrell of 202 South Street, Sausalito, with whom Mrs. Brown had lived these past six weeks.

However, in August, Brown was injured in an automobile accident. A few hours later he was dead, apparently the victim of a blood clot, according to Miss Carrell.

"She took it very hard," Miss Carrell said. But friends and professional associates tried to help. "We got her to move here as soon as we could," Miss Carrell said. And Mrs. Brown, herself, realizing the depths of her depression, was seeing a psychiatrist.

But despite the affection and concern of friends, Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Brown packed a suitcase, left her will and a letter to her hospital supervisor on her bed in Miss Carrell's apartment and drove to the Village Motel.

Miss Carrell, concerned that Mrs. Brown had not returned home Tuesday night, looked in her room yesterday morning and found the notes. At about the same time, Mrs. Brown's body was discovered at the motel.

Mrs. Brown is survived by her family in Scotland.

PUPPY

said. But "if we have a hundred puppies coming in a day, there isn't room . . . there aren't enough people to begin to place all the animals.

Mrs. Potts said her son David remembered, moments after the dog was turned over, that he had a ball for it to play with. She said she asked for the puppy back, but was told it was in quarantine.

When she said she wanted to take the dog home, Mrs. Potts said, a girl inquired and then returned to tell her the dog had been put to sleep.

"I know they have too many," she said, "but I think ours should have been given a chance at least."

Faulkner said the shelter keeps only the dogs it thinks most likely to be adopted. "With the experience we've had, we can pretty well determine what people are looking for. Certain types will place better than others."

"These things do happen from time to time," he said. "It's a shame they do. We don't like to put animals to sleep."

"I'd just like other people to know this," Mrs. Potts said, "that they don't even give puppies a chance that are taken in there."

Faulkner said Mrs. Potts had turned in the puppy because her son was too young for it and the pup was not housebroken. He said, "It probably was like a lot of little animals, messing in the house . . . she probably just didn't want to put up with it, I don't know . . ."

"People should know," Mrs. Potts said. "Because some people have pets they have had for years, and have to move . . . they should know their dog doesn't have a chance."

Agent Spots Too-Busy Goings-On

A narcotics agent who noticed unusual activity on Fourth Street in San Rafael yesterday afternoon followed his hunch as well as two cars to Prospect Avenue where he hid in bushes to witness what appeared to be a marijuana sale.

Later, armed with a search warrant, the agent returned with reinforcements to arrest Terry Phillip Stone, 19, of 331 Prospect Avenue, on suspicion of marijuana possession. Stone had a can of marijuana in his house, the agent said.

Stone was held at Marin County Jail today in lieu of $3125 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

The agent said that he became suspicious when he saw two youths jumping in and out of two cars, returning and repeating the performance. When both cars left the area of Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue, he followed them.

He said while he hid in some bushes he saw one of the youths come out of the Prospect Avenue house carrying five marijuana reefers.

come for somebody to make a punctuation mark."

"I'd like to say by way of background that what I did was within the scope of my instructions," he added.

"I hope our action today may call attention generally to the completely negative attitude which has persistently characterized the other side, and that there may be progress in the future."

North Vietnamese negotiator Xuan Thuy had used the talks today to say that demonstrations against President Richard M. Nixon's Vietnam policies M. Nixon's Vietnam policies have a positive effect on the Paris conference and could help break the longstanding deadlock.

He hailed last Wednesday's Vietnam Moratorium Day as the genuine voice of the American people and pledged his government's support for further antiwar rallies. He spoke at the 39th meeting of the conference where both he and the Viet Cong accused Nixon of stepping up the fighting in Vietnam.

Thuy also accused the United States of extending the war to Laos. As he did, a dispatch from the Laotian capital of Vientianne reported North Vietnam had sent more troops into Laos and they and the Communist Pathet Lao had opened a major new drive against towns wrested from the Communists in fighting last summer.

Thuy said of the recent antiwar demonstrations in the United States: "The current struggle of the American people has a positive effect on the Paris conference on Vietnam since it demands that President Nixon renounce his policy of aggression in Vietnam and immediately and totally withdraw U.S. troops. It contributes to removing the cause of the present deadlock of the conference."

increase of approximately $300 per year.

For the current year, he was given an 11-month contract starting Aug. 1 at $14,024— an increase of $1,524. But this time, the pay is split into 11 payments of $1274 except for one of $1,284.

The across-the-board pay increase given administrators and teachers in Sausalito School District this year was 7.5 per cent, plus the annual step increase.

Negotiations with Toliver were carried on separately from those with other teachers. School board minutes show no record of such separate negotiations.

Board Takes Reins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Instead of a "mother general," a newly formed board of directors has been elected to govern the Roman Catholic order of the Immaculate Heart Sisters, now in the midst of extensive reforms.

Colfax County, N.M., was named for Schuyler Colfax, vice president of the United States from 1869 to 1873.

Suspensions Mark Time At College

The case of College of Marin's three suspended students was in a state of flux today.

The student conduct committee, which is to hear the appeal, is still unformed in the face of the student government's refusal to appoint its four student members.

The Associated Students Executive Council was to meet this afternoon to discuss the case and possibly to reconsider its decision to boycott the appeal committee.

The student conduct committee — or its three nonstudent members—was to meet today to organize and schedule an appeal hearing, probably tomorrow or Monday, Diamond reported.

The three students, Del Mar Jackson, William Nason and Brigardo Groves, were suspended for their roles in the near-riot at the board meeting.

NOV. 4 ELECTION

Five Vie For Novato Fire District Seats

(Third of Eight Articles)

Both incumbents, chairman Peter J. Ferrarese and Dante Panfiglio, seek re-election.

Two policemen are among the challengers.

Candidates in alphabetical order, are:

PETER J. FERRARESE, 54, of 10 Los Alondros, manager of the Novato Branch of Crocker-Citizens National Bank, was appointed to the board in 1955 and has served three terms as chariman.

He was born in Dunsmuir, Siskiyou County, and moved to San Rafael with he was 10. He started his banking with the Bank of America while attending the college of Marin in 1936. He worked for the First National Bank before it merged with Crocker-Citizens Bank.

Ferrarese and his wife, Margaret, have three children, Peter, 26, of Novato; Paul, 25, of San Anselmo, and Mrs. Patricia Browder, 23, of Larkspur.

Ferrarese has served on the board of trustees of the Novato Unified School District and is past president of the Novato Kiwanis Club, Novato Chamber of Commerce and the Novato Civic Foundation.

PERRY J. HALEY, 40, of 3 Kristy Court is a detective sergeant with the Novato Police department.

A native of Oklahoma, he attended school in Richmond and at Santa Rosa Junior College. He and his wife, Dorothy, have one son, Walter. Haley is a member of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church of Novato and the Democratic Party.

DANTE PANFIGLIO 47, of 628 Davidson Street, seeks another term on the board.

Panfiglio was one of two members appointed to the board when voters increased its size from three to five members last year. He is a rancher and electrical contractor.

Born in San Rafael, he has lived all of his life in Novato, attending Novato Elementary Schools and San Rafael High School.

He and his wife, Kathleen, have one son, Joseph, 21.

Panfiglio is member of the Native Sons of the Golden West, the Knights of Columbus and was a 4-H Club leader for many years. He is a Democrat. He served three years with the Seabees in Alaska during World War II.

He joined the volunteer fire department in 1946, retiring from it in 1963.

RICHARD W. PRICE, 41, of 1 Rowland Court, is employed in the purchasing and payroll department of American President Lines.

Price, born in El Paso, Tex., married and he and his wife, Alice, have four children, Ronald, 18, Kathleen, 16, Marcella, 12 and Felicia, 4. He is a communicant of St. Anthony of Padua Catholic Church and is a 12-year member and president of the Novato Volunteer Firemen association. He also belongs to the Novato Golf Association.

Price said he opposes dissolution of the district at this time because Novato has only 20.5 square miles while the fire district encompasses 75 square miles.

Price, who is running for the board a second time, urged that the candidate receiving the third highest number of votes be appointed to the seat recently vacated by the resignation of Donald Donahue. That term is unexpired.

FRANCIS L. WOOMER, 40, of 235 San Luis Way, is a policeman in San Francisco and owner of a fire extinguisher company.

He was born in West Virginia, moving to San Francisco as a youth. He attended Balboa High School, City College of San Francisco and San Francisco State College, majoring in police science.

Woomer served with the Marines in the Korean War, attaining the rank of corporal, he was awarded the Purple Heart. He is a member of Lodge 464, Free and Accepted Masons, and the California Police Officers Association.

He and his wife, Irene, have six children, Charlene Woomer of San Jose, and Denise, Karon, Dann, (cq) Pamela and Mickey.

Credit Restored To Angela Davis Class

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Academic credit has been restored to a UCLA philosophy course taught by assistant professor Angela Davis, a black militant and admitted Communist whose dismissal was ruled unconstitutional.

UCLA Chancellor Charles E. Young yesterday announced that, in compliance with a court order, enrollment for credit would be accepted for Philosophy 99, "Recurring Philosophical Themes in Black Literature."

Young warned students, however, that if University of California regents' attorneys should be successful in their appeal before the end of the course, "the status of credit-...may be placed in jeopardy."

Superior Court Judge Jerry Pacht held Monday that the firing of Miss Davis by the regents simply because she admitted she was a member of the Communist Party was unconstitutional. The judge also ruled that subsequent action by the regents stripping Miss Davis' course of credit was illegal.

Young's announcement coincided with the release of a statement in Berkeley from University President Charles J. Hitch who called the restoration of credit "the only appropriate action he could take in compliance with the order of the court."

Later yesterday an attorney sought a court order that would bar Miss Davis from teaching at any campus of the University of California system.

Donald C. Gallagher filed the suit here as a taxpayers action similar to the one that resulted in the ruling that the regents policy against hiring Communists was unconstitutional.

President Picks District Judge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Richard M. Nixon announced yesterday he will nominate Sacramento Attorney Philip C. Wilkins to be U.S. District Judge for the Eastern District of California.

Wilkins, 56, a Republican party worker and longtime supporter of Nixon, will replace veteran Judge Sherrill Halbert who retired Sept. 30. The post ays $40,000 a year.

The court district, largest in California, covers an area from the Oregon border south to Bakersfield and from the Nevada line west to California coastal counties.

Florida's state flower is the orange blossom.

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A psychedelic rendition of "The Wizard of Oz" opened the fall drama season at San Francisco State College this afternoon.

Following today's performances of 4 p.m. in the Little Theater, there will be five additional performances 1, 4 and 8 p.m. tomorrow and at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. Saturday. Graduate student Sharon McKnight, 22, will draw on experimental techniques in lighting and sets, and hip costumes, in directing the show.

The college's major dramatic production of the fall, William Shakespeare's "King Lear," will debut with a Gothic intrepretation Oct. 31, in the main theater at 8 p.m.

Additional performances of Lear are slated for Nov. 1, 6, 7, and 8.

Continuing with the fall theme, "A Perspective of Man," Anthony Newley's allegorical musical "Stop the World — I Want to Get Off," will open Dec. 5 for five showings in the auditorium.

Hollis Warns On Pay For Moratorium

Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools, has cautioned all school districts in Marin against approving pay for any teacher who absented himself from class on Oct. 15 5o participate in Vietnam war moratorium activities.

Hollis had earlier cautioned the districts that the California Education Code did not permit payment for absence for such purpose.

In his follow-up letter this week, Hollis noted that the district's payroll order submitted to the county schools office must be verified by the district's payroll representative as true and accurate, and urged special attention to absences on Oct. 15. Copies of his memorandum were sent to the county auditor and to Richard V. Godino, assistant county counsel who handles public school legal matters.

Youngster Injured By East Bay Auto

A 6-year-old San Rafael boy was treated for head bruises at Marin General Hospital yesterday after being struck by a car driven by a Berkeley woman at Fifth and E streets, San Rafael.

Kevin Patrick Lake of 145 Brown Street darted in front of a car driven by Thelma J. Harris 60, at 3:35 p.m., police reported.

A field trip to review the condition of Petaluma parks and recreational facilities was scheduled last night for next Thursday at 10 a.m. by the Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission.

During a study of park development and improvement, the commission said a survey of present facilities should be made before recommendations on future projects are made to the city council.

Getting special attention on the trip will be Wickersham Park which has been proposed for redevelopment.

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission also:

LITTLE LEAGUE — Received a letter from Edward J. Tracy, vice president of the National Little League, requesting that baseball facilities at Kenilworth Park be leased or deeded to the league. The commission said a meeting would be scheduled with league officers.

TREES — Said it would review the street tree ordinance and make a study of types and locations of trees and prepare recommendations on how many new trees are needed and of what varieties.

ELECTED — Chose James E. Lutz as chairman; Raymond Boccaleoni vice chairman, and Carol Brandner secretary.

The bond issues are for expansion of the firehouse, purchase and expansion of the police station, now under lease, and reconstruction of Tiffany Beach.

Plans For Girls' Wing Eyed By Panel

Plans for the new girls wing at Marin County Juvenile Hall were reviewed yesterday by the county Juvenile Justice Commission, with an eye toward calling for bids in early spring, chairman Rex T. Silvernale reported. Final plans and specifications will be prepared during the winter.

The commission also discussed the drug abuse program authorized by the board of supervisors and urged more participation in it, Silvernale said.

Note Of Caution Aired On New Drug Program

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Only a limited number of youths will be able to receive treatment through a new state law even if their parents turn them in as drug users needing help, a medical official says.

Dr. Harry Brickman, director of the Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health, said in an interview that he is afraid the public has misconceptions about drug treatment under a new law going into effect Nov. 10.

The new state law says parents may seek to have their children committed for involuntary treatment instead of facing a jail sentence.

But Brickman, a psychiatrist, said the conditions for receiving treatment are that the youth is a danger to himself or others.

He said his department will decide whether to grant commitments in Los Angeles County and will use strict guidelines.

Many parents are panicky about drugs and falsely think any usage, including that of marijuana, means the youth is a danger, the doctor said.

"I regret the scare tactics taken by many over drugs because the kids see through this and the problem is only worsened," he said. "The use of marijuana by youngsters cannot be viewed simply as a drug abuse problem but rather as a reflection of social and political unrest in the community."

"It is regrettable if parents think that now instead of arrests there will be large treatment programs awaiting the youngsters. This is not so."

"If anyone is looking for this to be a panacea for the general drug use problem, especially marijuana, this is not the case."

Sued For Divorce

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Folksinger Jimmie Rodgers, who almost lost his life in a freak automobile accident more than two years ago, was sued for divorce yesterday by his wife of 12 years on grounds of extreme cruel conduct.

Mrs. Alza Colleen Rodgers, 33, asked superior court to approve an integrated property settlement agreed upon by the couple last Aug. 15.

They have two children, Michele, 9, and Michael, 6.

Suspect Held In Pot Probe

J. D. Sumner, 35, of 315 Mountain View Avenue, was booked into City Jail and scheduled for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Sgt. William R. Reed said that Sumner gave three marijuana cigarettes to Sonoma County narcitics officer Paul Stefani on Oct. 10.

'Can Jail A Cake... Not A Revolution'

Seale's fellow defendants tried to bring a birthday cake into the courtroom and U.S. marshals confiscated the cake.

"You can jail a cake, but you can't jail a revolution," Seale yelled.

By that time the whipping cream had hit the fan anyway. Seale called the trial of the "Chicago Eight" a "railroad operation from Nixon on down." He told the judge and a prosecutor they were "racists" and called a U.S. marshal a "pig."

The turmoil came from the attempts of the seven other defendants and 20 black spectators—the largest number of Negroes to show up so far—to hold a "Bobby Seale Day" at the trial. Most of the action came in the afternoon session.

When a marshal removed one spectator for refusing to stand when U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman entered the courtroom, Seale said, "You're a pig for kicking him out." The blacks in the spectator section sang out, "Right on."

While the seven other defendants lined up outside the courtroom, defense attorney William Kunstler asked the judge to allow them to present a birthday cake to Seale, who is in custody on a murder charge.

"I wouldn't even let anyone bring me a birthday cake in here," the judge said.

When the seven other defendants tried to bring the cake in, a marshal grabbed it from Jerry Rubin. "Cake-naper," Abbie Hoffman shouted "They've arrested your cake," Rennie Davis yelled to Seale.

WEST TO EAST BERLIN

Hardest Border To Get Across

By ALFRED SCHROEDER
Toronto News Service

BONN — Crossing the Canadian-U.S. border is easy, simple. Crossing the borders in Western Europe usually requires no more than a passport or some other identification. But attempting to travel from West Germany to East Germany is not only extremely difficult for most West Germans but plain humiliating.

Getting an assignment to cover East Germany, the German Democratic Republic, means that a West German newsman is heading for a certain battle with stubborn Communist bureaucrats and a "guided tour" to wherever he is going.

A well-trained, party-line "guide" and a schedule prepared by the press office in East Berlin assure that you will not deviate from the official routes.

You don't just jump into the car and go. And you quickly check your first reaction to reach for the phone to arrange details for the trip. A phone call from West Germany to East Germany usually takes a day, and you never know if the person you need to talk with wants to talk with you.

So you settle down, knowing you can't rush things, and send a cable telling who you are, what your intentions are, and what you would like to report on.

And then you wait. Days, at least, mostly weeks. You send a reminder. Still no answer, unless the East German regime has a show going somewhere, like the Leipzig Fair, their show window to the West. That, they want you to cover, but only that.

Since you want to get your assignment over with, you might give in to the crazy notion to go to East Berlin. Uusally flying to West Berlin and crossing the Wall into East Berlin is the quickest way. West Germans can get a day's permit to East Berlin. Not West Berliners, they can't go at all.

And you are certainly heading for an adventure when you decide to drive through the corridor from West Germany to Berlin, as I did several times.

The last time — and the last time ever, I swear — was several months ago. I intended to stay in West Berlin for a week. My wife was to join me for the weekend, coming up by plane. I had most of her baggage in my car.

Driving from Bonn to the border-crossing point at Helmstedt near Hannover takes a good four hours. Traffic on the Autobahn thins out the closer you get to the border, or demarcation line, as German officials like to call it, since border sounds so permanent.

And then, as you approach the border, there is the long queue of cars and trucks waiting for their turn. The formalities usually take 15 to 30 minutes. That is normal.

But every so often, completely at random, an abnormal procedure takes place, and the last time I went I was the hand-picked victim. Hand-picked by a tall Communist border-guard, jack-booted, breeches, a Soviet-style field-jacket, a tough square, unsmiling face, sub-machine gun slung over his shoulder.

Waving me out of the line of waiting cars, he directed me to a nearby wooden shed. I knew what was coming. I had seen and heard of it before, but this time I was going to be the one, the victim of one of their super-thorough spot checks.

"Go and take care of your passport formalities. Leave the car here," the guard snarled at me in a strong, high-pitched Saxon accent. And those were to be the last words I was to hear from him, even though I was about to spend the next two hours with him.

I went to the guardhouse across the road, where some 20 people were waiting. Some were swearing, but quietly and to themselves for fear one of the many guards would retaliate with the treatment I was about to get.

I surrendered my passport and was handed a number in return. "Wait outside until your number is called." A stereotype remark, impersonal, made hundreds of times a day.

The passport disappeared through a small slot in the wall behind the desk. There they keep elaborate files on people they don't want in, or those who have committed "unfriendly acts," like journalists who report what they see. My name is there, too.

This procedure can be fast. Perhaps five minutes or less. But it can take up to 30 minutes. Once you get the passport back, you line up at the next counter where you empty your wallet and count out your money, coins and all.

Then another queue, where the "road usage charges" are being paid, a good and steady source of much-needed hard currency for the regime. (And the one and only place in all Germany where you pay to use public roads.)

And then, normally, you can go through, after the guards outside have taken a look at the baggage, under the hood and in the trunk.

But I had to go over to the shed where the guard was still waiting. Invitingly, he opened the squeaking doors. A lift of his chin indicated that he wanted me to drive in. I did and the doors were bolted behind me. Two other uniformed men joined us.

"Take your suitcases out and open them" one of the others said quietly. I did, holding them open so they could see in. But no, they weren't satisfied. I had to unpack every single bit of clothing. Every suit-pocket had to be turned inside-out, the other pieces had to be shaken out before their eyes. They wouldn't touch any of it.

As I emptied my wife's handbag, I put down a little pocket-calendar which immediately caught their interest. "Let's see that," one of the guards said and I held it out to him.

But he wouldn't touch it. With him looking over my shoulder, I had to read out every entry, starting with the New Year. "Paula birthday," "bowling in Bonn," "baby sitter," "shopping in Cologne," "Alexander vaccination," and things like that.

After they were satisfied that it contained no secret spy code, the check continued. Next was the trunk. Tools, spare-wheel, everything came out, lined up on the floor. Then the hood. They peeked at the motor, ran a mirror under the car, and I had to let the air out of all the tires.

Then, they made me take out the seats. One of the door-paddings had to be removed, scratching the paint. The air filter was taken off and they looked at the other places all over the car. Finally they nodded. The two guards left and the armed soldier stayed with me.

By that time I was sweating and steaming, on the fringe of blowing my top. But I knew they were waiting for that. It would make things harder still. So, swearing under my breath, I began putting things together, re-assembling the car and packing my suitcases.

I reinflated the tires amd my guard opened the door for me.

He walked to the gates and as I drove through, he waved to the other guard up the road to let me through his gate and another gate 20 yards away.

I was heading for West Berlin, driving along a 90-mile stretch of Autobahn, carefully watching the speed limit so they wouldn't stop me again. Before entering West Berlin, more formalities, more passport checking and forms to be filled out. And finally the guard waved me through.

I was in West Berlin, breathing clean, free air.

Shoreline Board Adopts Guides

The Shoreline Unified School District board last night adopted the policy and procedures guide for the district, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

The guide is a composite of policy and procedure guides of the districts which make up the new unified district.

In its only other action, the board expelled an elementary student after a closed meeting on disciplinary action. The district is now working with the probation department and child welfare department of the county to place the student elsewhere, McCully said.

Precedent Seat Belt Buckling Failure Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Failure to buckle seat belts may have considerable effect on the outcome of any accident liability lawsuits in the future, court experts say.

The forecast came after the California Supreme Court allowed to stand yesterday a lower court decision that failure to use seat belts may be considered as evidence of contributory negligence in auto accidents.

Other states have had divided opinion in similar cases. yesterday was the first time the issue had reached the top California court, and although the court didn't make a formal ruling, its declining to hear further debate on the issue let the lower court decision stand and thus become legal precedent.

The case was the outgrowth of an accident liability case involving two motorists in Los Angeles.

A state Courts of Appeal ruling held that whether seat belts should have been used was a matter for the jury to decide.

Superior Court Judge Arnold Praeger presided over the Los Angeles trial, ruling the jury should ignore testimony relating to the use of seat belts because there had been no expansive testimony by expert witnesses. A new trial was then ordered solely on the issue of damages.

An appellate court subsequently upheld the first part of Praeger's ruling but ordered that the new trial should include questions of liability and expert testimony.

"The nonexpert can only guess. We will not undertake to enumerate the factors that would be considered by physicists and other experts in answering these questions," the appellate court stated.

Charges Delayed Pending Probe

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Dennis Joseph Taylor, 18, of San Rafael, pending further investigation of his case by the district attorney's office.

Taylor was arrested Sunday on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs and possessing them for sale, contributing to the delinquency of a minor and being drunk in public.

Sheriff's deputies said they found Taylor parked with two young girls early Sunday morning on Civic Center Drive. The trio appeared to be intoxicated, the deputies said. A search of the car revealed what seemed to be a cache of Seconal pills in the glove compartment.

Candles haven't always been used merely to spread light. King Alfred ordered the manufacture of time-leeping candles, six of them sized to burn in 24 hours. PIES AT FESTIVAL

Little Jack Horner Would Have Loved It

The San Francisco Film Festival, whose pretensions to greatness were once considered to be pie in the sky, got a pie in its eye last night.

The San Francisco police got a bit crusty about the whole thing and busted the piemen.

Thirteen persons — seven of them from Marin County — were arrested on suspicion of disturbing the peace but a leader of the pie-in said today the only people disturbed were the police.

Stephen Schmidt, of Gate 6, Sausalito, and a producer for the houseboat-based Grand Central Station film firm, said today the throwing of about 100 meringue pies was in connection with a film his company is making.

"It was intended to be fun," he said of the pie-throwing melee which caused such luminaries as Mayor Joseph Alioto, film stars Anthony Quinn, Virna Lisi, Anna Magnani, producer Stanley Kramer and underground king Andy Warhol to duck in the back door of Nob Hill's Masonic Auditorium.

"It was to be a tribute to the great tradition of making movies on the run . . . getting away from the re-creation of reality and making it as real as it can be," he said. He added that the arrival of 40 officers and a carload of tac squadmen interrupted what had been a "nice mixture of reality and fantasy."

Schmidt said Grand Central Station's movie — filmed on location with eight cameras last night — will be entered in the festival Saturday as the Sausalito firm's entry. "It should be very funny," he allowed.

The pie-throwing began about 7:30 p.m. as guests were arriving for the opening of the festival. "We only threw pies at our own people, not at anyone who didn't want to get into it," Schmidt said. "Some outsiders got in because it looked pretty fun.

"All of the people hit with pies — except the police — were volunteers who knew what was going to happen to them. We had a cleanup crew standing by to take care of the mess afterward but the cops chased them off."

"The police overreacted to a situation," he said. Possibly contributing to the "overreaction," participants admitted, was the fact that one of the nonvolunteers who got plastered was San Francisco police captain Donald Scott. The captain was, by his own admission, a "Large, slow-moving target.

Finally, the firemen were called to hose down the sticky street, the fluffmakers were carted away by spattered police and the gowned and tuxedoed movieland elite went in to watch the world premiere of Anthony Quinn's "Secret of Santa Vittoria."

No pies were thrown inside.

Marinites arrested were: Robert S. Schiff, 25, Neal Warner, 22, Thomas Howell, 23, Suzette Hershman, 23, Jacqueline McKee, 32, and Ronald Breaux, 29, all of Sausalito, and Charles Huff, 19, of Mill Valley.

Police Officer, Two Women; Hurt In Collision

A newly appointed San Rafael police officer, his wife and the wife of another police officer received minor injuries yesterday in a three-car pileup at Mission and Nye streets, San Rafael.

William A. Mohler, 24, of Petaluma, who will join the San Rafael force Nov. 1, was treated for a neck sprain at Marin General Hospital.

His wife, Arnita, who received a cut right arm and sprained hand, was treated by her own physician.

Mohler's car, stopped on Mission Street, was hit from the rear by a car driven by Tom A. Battaglia, 57, of 43 Manor Road, Kentfield, at 2:41 p.m., police reported. The Mohler car in turn crashed into the rear of the stopped car ahead driven by San Rafael police officer Sherman William Hool, 29, of San Rafael.

Hool's wife, Leonie, was treated by her family physician for head injuries and whiplash, police reported.

An amazing new ingredient now comes in this familiar package.

It's called a longer-lasting engine.
Longer lasting than what?
Longer lasting than our old engine, which in case you didn't know, was one of the toughest engines around.
The new version is more powerful. (Top speed: 81 mph vs. 78 mph.)
It has better acceleration.
And most important, it weighs the same as the older version. So it doesn't have to work as hard to get you where you're going.
But the generation gap ends there:
It still takes pints of oil instead of quarts.
The new engine will still give you a good 26 miles to a gallon of gas.
It still abstains from antifreeze.
And it's still conveniently located in the rear for better traction in mud and snow.
Yes, all the things that made our old package a hit last year are back.
Including our old package.

Following Line Of Logic To Its Naked Conclusion

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino has given the Tamalpais High School District board a very interesting memorandum on the legal aspects of the athletes' hair cut issue. It is interesting, not for what it says about hair — which isn't much — but for its implications.

Godino's memorandum cites several court decisions that public schools cannot regulate the length of students' hair as a condition for school attendance, hair length being "an essential individual freedom." He then notes that "a slightly different situation exists on the athletic fields" — one on which no court has yet ruled.

Bereft of legal precedent in the matter, Godino then developed his own line of reasoning. Teaching of competitive sports, he held, requires discipline for team cohesiveness. Therefore, the coach may require that members of his team "conform to a particular dress or grooming standard." But then he noted that each sport presents a different question. So he concluded that the athletic director may not decree hair length for all athletes regardless of their sport.

THE IMPLICATIONS are fascinating. If hair length is a matter of individual freedom, so is dress. Athletes, however, are required to wear uniforms. Suppose the football player insists his psyche is damaged by the sweater with the big white number and the odd-looking khaki pants, and insists on playing in dungarees and a plaid shirt? The coach may require him to wear the standard padding for self-protection—but may he force him to wear the uniform pants and jersey?

Or let us suppose the school's colors are red and white, but a particular basketball player cannot stand to wear red and insists on wearing blue. Is the convenience of the referee in identifying which team has the ball more important than the youth's personal freedom?

Let us leave the athletes to quarrel among themselves, and turn to the school band. It is uniformed. But many members do not like the uniform. Since they practice at home and school in their ordinary dress, it cannot be argued that the uniform has educational value. Can they, then, be required to appear in it?

THE QUESTIONS follow quite logically—once we accept the initial premise that personal preference is of paramount importance as being "an essential freedom of the individual." Where this line may lead was indicated in another recent happening in Marin, when Lothar Salin of the county parks and recreation department suggested that, because many people like to swim in the nude, the county should try to find a secluded beach where they may do so without fear of arrest.

If some like to swim in the nude, others like to walk around in the nude. Suppose (to get back to the athletes) that a basketball player reported in the gym unclad. Since his teammates have seen him naked in the dressing room, how could they argue that their sensibilities were offended?

And suppose the same youth went to class in the nude, and the class was polled, and a majority voted to let him stay that way?

SOMEWHERE ALONG the line (probably 'way back in those court decisions which Godino cited) we have overlooked something. We have overlooked that society, and each segment of society, is entitled to make rules by which its members must abide. Probably along the way, we have also overlooked such matters as morality and common sense.

WASHINGTON WINDOW

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey apparently gave some of his fellow Democrats an itchy time by saying recently that generally he approved of the way President Nixon was approaching settlement of the Vietnam war.

Particularly pained were various Democratic senators who had to go on weekend television interview shows and face a yes-or-no situation. Did they support Humphrey or not?

The answers varied but added up to a hopeful belief that Humphrey did not mean it exactly as he said it. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and a 1972 presidential possibility within his party, thought Humphrey was talking largely in terms of time — that Nixon was entitled to more of it.

"I don't think the President should be pressured or panicked into a point of view with which he does not agree," Muskie said.

Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., chairman of the Democratic National Committee, seemed to swerve around Humphrey and say what he wanted from Nixon was more of a definite schedule, something of a timetable whereby the public could count on disengagement in Vietnam.

INTO THIS distinguished company, however, came Sen. Gaale McGee, D-Wyo. with a speech in which he said too many Americans do not believe what they read in the newspapers, hear on radio or see on television.

McGee said one reason for this public disenchantment was that journalism generally had "for too long dodged responsibility for what it reports." He thought the press should exercise responsibility for the news by seeing to it that balance was maintained in presenting issues of public interest."

"Too often have I seen statements reported simply because someone—even a senator, perhaps—said them," McGee said in a speech at Denver.

PRESIDENT NIXON, meantime, has been listening to similar discordances within his own Republican party. Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., and Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., both thought, along with some others, that the President should have withdrawn his nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., to the Supreme Court and withdrawn it a long time ago.

The President also said publicly that he would not be swayed by the impact of last Wednesday's "Vietnam Moratorium," and that presidential policy could and would not be made in the streets.

It was no secret, however, that the administration kept close tabs on the demonstration which was devoted largely to opposing Nixon policies in the war. Possibly there was no policy change as result of the Moratorium, but the dimensions of it were measured carefully.

Looking back over the preceding maze of positions and statements, it is hard to escape one conclusion—that when a political figure speaks of telling it "like it is," what he really means is "tell it as I want it."

Double Standard In Statue Heist

While I have long been an admirer of Mr. (Beniamino) Bufano's work and his nonconformist spirit, I can't help but speculate what the consequences might have been had it been some teen-agers who carted off "Louis Pasteur."

Now these teen-agers have voted to restore the statue and are donating money for that purpose. They are to be commended for their efforts.

However, if I recall correctly from rather recent news items, the court has appointed a sort of keeper for Mr. Bufano, to restrain him from some of his more impulsive acts. It seems to me that Mr. Bufano should be held liable for the costs incurred in this latest caper.

If it has been juveniles, they and their parents most certainly would have been held liable.

Rules Necessary, Not Only In Sports

First, let me make my position clear. I don't think long hair or beards belong on athletic fields. And it's not because I don't care for long hair on men — which I don't — but because the coaches have rules against it.

The main issue, as I see it, is not the long hair but the disregard for known rules. Athletic teams and society cannot exist without rules.

Unfortunately, a small segment of students today feel that they aren't "in" unless they show their contempt for authority and laws. If we're not careful, this will swell to the majority, if parents and school superintendents continue to undermine the standards set by teachers and coaches.

I have been involved with athletics for a long time. My two boys became interested in sports at an early age and were active in most all sports through high school, college, and beyond. Therefore, I have been very fortunate to be acquainted with so many coaches. And I don't know of one, who was worth his salt, that didn't have a strict code or set of rules to follow. These standards were not set just to produce winning teams but to produce men — men with character and self-discipline; in other words, good citizens.

China Camp Far From Ghost Town

I enjoyed the article about the history of China Camp and the surrounding area (I-J Marin Magazine, Oct. 11). It was interesting and must have taken much work to prepare.

Everyone talks of China Camp of the past. However, it is not a ghost town, the shrimp are still in the bay, and cooked shrimp is available at China Camp six-eight months of the year.

Now that the fall run of striped bass has started full swing off the shores of China Camp and cooked shrimp is available most of the time, you are lucky to find a parking place at China Camp on the weekends.

Alexakos' View Draws Dissent

Alexakos wrote Monday of "intellectual geegaws and knickknacks that clutter and confuse the mind." He stated, "It is a luxury indeed to believe that law and oreder can exist without force," and "another luxury is our lopsided concern with justice."

We can agree that a fraction of any population will obey certain laws only if forced to. And at times attempts to be completely just lead to injustices. But if we are trying to clarify our thinking, we should consider this nation's experience during the years of Prohibition.

That experience should have taught us at least two things: (1) A law that does not earn willing compliance from most people cannot be enforced. (2) The more forecefully an unpopular law is "enforced," the stronger grows organized crime and the weaker becomes respect for all law. We see it happening today with the laws on marijuana and with the corruption in the army service clubs. The "amatuers" get picked off leaving "the organization" with a near monopoly. And "the organization" has or rapidly gains the resources to reduce its risks by corrupting law enforcement agencies and politicians.

Alexakos blames delays of the courts on our lopsided concern for justice. The facts do not support him. Many of the delays result simply from the legal maneuvering of lawyers trying to help their clients postpone or avoid justice. More are due to the failure of communities to provide enough law courts.

No, Alexakos, it is a mistake to believe that force can provide the principal support for law and order, and that human kindness, misdirected or not, is ever a luxury.

Social Security Series Valuable

On behalf of the Social Security Administration, I want to compliment you on the excellent articles by Harry Craft concerning the operation of the social security program.

As Mr. Craft pointed out in his lead paragraph, social security in Marin County has to be regarded as big business. By informing your readers of their rights under the law, you are not only performing a valuable public service but are also indirectly contributing to the growth of the economy.

Ours of course is a service agency whose primary aim is to ensure that the right person receives the right social security check at the right time. In disseminating information about our program you have helped to make our job easier. . . .

Louder They Yell, Less They Know

It has always been my opinion that a school, large or small, is a place or institution to attend to get an education, not to dictate as some of the so-called students seem to think. As for financial aid, what have the howlers done to earn it? It is all money put there by the tax paying public, and anyone shouting "this is my school" should be ousted to show just who is running the show. The louder they yell, the less they know.

I haven't the vocabulary to express just what I think of them . . .

People Squeeze, Money Squeeze Put Point Reyes In Jeopardy

SAN FRANCISCO—The lure of California is one of the most remarkable phenomena of our time. Like a great magnet it pulls people — young, old, a vanguard of hippies, escapees, opters out — from the rest of the country to this slope on the Pacific shore.

The belief was that the state's growth rate had begun to flatten out. On the contrary, the latest Census Bureau estimate showed that the population upsurge was continuing at a rate of 23.7 per cent annually. Since the last head count 3,700,000 people swelled the grand total of this record-breaking state.

Even for the chamber of commerce boosters this is almost too much of a good thing. Like the frantic movement of the lemmings to the seashore, with an instinctual drive that sends them finally to their destruction, there will soon be standing room only if the present rate of growth continues.

NOTHING COULD illustrate this better than the controversy over Point Reyes National Seashore. A beautiful, still relatively untouched peninsula about an hour from San Francisco, Point Reyes is one of the few spots on the coast that has not fallen to developers and the subdividers. With parks in the metropolitan bay area hideously overcrowded, Point Reyes is a natural outlet for city dwellers in search of quiet and unspoiled beauty.

But the subdividers are on the doorstep and pressing hard. Less than half the land for Point Reyes has been acquired by the federal government since the project was authorized in 1962. With each passing year land values have sharply increased. And now the White House is saying through the Bureau of the Budget that a freeze is imperative through 1973 to hold down spending and hold inflation.

THIS IS AN illustration, too, of the dilemma of the Nixon administration. Economy and a balanced budget are the prescription for the price spiral. Yet prices continue to move upward, making it more and more difficult to take essential action.

Other parks and seashores staked out by Congress to save a part of vanishing America before it is all paved with concrete are also threatened by the double-squeeze of inflation and economy. Besides Point Reyes, Cape Cod in Massachusetts, Assateague Island in Chesapeake Bay and Padre Island in Texas are in a half-completed state, threatened by land speculators who stand to gain from federal delay.

The Nixon administration has been generous with rhetoric. Secretary of Interior Walter Hickel, in a speech to the National Park and Recreation Association in Chicago, proposed a $6.3 billion development program for urban parks. The secretary noted that while 75 per cent of the population is concentrated in urban areas, city dwellers have reasonable access to only 25 per cent of available recreation facilities and 3 per cent of public recreation lands.

"The solution is clear," said Hickel with a fine rhetorical flourish, "an equitable distribution of outdoor recreation resources and opportunities."

POINT REYES precisely fits this description. But Hickel in the same speech included an escape hatch that negated much of the fine rhetoric. "Present fiscal restraints" would very likely make it impossible to ask Congress for any funds to make the grandiose dream a reality. The Hickel speech coincided with a letter from Budget Director Robert Mayo to House interior chairman Wayne Aspinall warning that under "present constraints" land purchase for parks and recreation areas would not be completed until mid-1973. That was the large economy answer to Hickel's pie in the sky.

When President Nixon met former President Johnson in the redwood forest last summer, the same generous rain of rhetoric fell on the touching scene. The redwoods — some of the redwoods — had been saved from the exploiters. It has been a furious battle with the conservationists in and out of Congress repelling one assault after another. Thanks to federal-state action finally carried through, generations to come will see a part of this magnificent heritage out of the past.

THE CONSERVATIONISTS are going into battle over Point Reyes, and nowhere is the breed more aggressive and determined than in California. Aspinall is moving to get added funds out of Congress, so that untouched shore may still be saved.

But the economizers have the final say. Congress can propose but the Bureau of the Budget disposes by freezing extra money that may be voted. As the people push accelerates, the standing-room-only sign covers more and more of a once-free land.

Bolivian Regime Joins Peru In Anti-U.S. Camp

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign Affairs Analyst

The new regimes of Bolivia and Peru are nationalistic, leftist and anti-American.

The ingredients are the same as have faced the United States before in the leftist-leaning government of Joao Goulard in Brazil, in Communist Cuba, and in right-wing anti-American governments in Argentina.

But this time the ingredients are mixed in different proportions than in the past and they complicate the problems of President Nixon as he seeks a new approach to U.S. relations with Latin America.

GEN. ALFREDO Ovando Candia, leader of the Bolivian coup that overthrew the elected successor government to the late Gen. Rene Barrientos Ortuno, has described the policy of his new regime as "leftist nationalism."

He said he would seek "ideological confederation" with Peru whose elected government fell to a military coup on Oct. 3, 1968.

Within less than a month of his take-over, Ovando was following the script.

Last weekend he announced his government was taking over the $140 million Bolivian Gulf Oil Co. He hinted that other foreign-owned operations in Bolivia also would be seized.

Natural targets, according to Bolivian government sources, would be South American Placers, a U.S. gold mining company, and American-owned Bolivian Power Co. that supplies power to La Paz, the Bolivian capital.

IN THIS, Ovando was following the precedent set by Peru which first seized the American-owned International Petroleum Co., claiming a debt of more than $690 million owed by the company to the government for illegal operations, and going on from there to seize mining properties and the sugar interests of W. R. Grace & Co. Next on the list is a take-over of internal communications effecting the International Telephone and Telegraph system.

Both Bolivia and Peru have huge Indian populations which are in the majority but scarcely figure in the economy of either.

Both new governments have declared themselves leftist but non-Communist although both have moved toward closer relations with the Communist bloc.

BOLIVIA HAS expressed appreciation for more than $200 million in U.S. aid but has declared the United States does not understand Latin American grassroots problems.

It has declared it will seek the help of Communist Romania in operating the oil properties.

Up in the air is the question of compensation to Gulf Oil, of the future of a natural gas pipeline to Argentina to be financed largely by the World Bank and future U.S. aid.

THE MILITARY of both Bolivia and Peru have been described as admirers of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic, a sentiment shared by many of the military in Argentina.

Cuba found quick riches in seizure of American properties and since has been forced to exist on $1 million a day from Russia.

Outsiders Fight For Parking Space; Students At College, For Money

Maybe typical of the way people have been acting lately was a confrontation in Corte Madera Saturday of two motorists from Oakland and San Francisco.

Both tried to land the same parking space, refusing to yield ground until the inevitable collision. Then they got out and started a fist fight over it, battering each other but slightly by the time police arrived to calm things.

They still weren't through. When police arrived, each tried to have the other arrested — one for assault, the other for assault with a deadly weapon, meaning his car.

Police sent them both home to cool off. If they'll fight like that for a Corte Madera parking space, think how crowded it must be in Oakland and San Francisco!

HERE'S A QUICK rundown on the various financial aid programs at College of Marin, source of so much controversy lately:

The work-study program, $187,000, 80 per cent of it federal, 10 per cent from employers and 10 per cent from the college.

National Defense loans, $29,500, with 10 per cent coming from the College of Marin Foundation and the rest in federal money.

Economic Opportunity grants, $23,500, all federal money.

Nursing student loans, $12,500, 90 per cent federal and 10 per cent local money.

Nursing scholarships, $2,500, all federal money.

Law enforcement education loans, $3,600, all federal money.

Federally insured loans, $8,000 lent so far this year.

College of Marin grants, $8,500, from donations and bookstore income.

Part-time student jobs, $30,000 from the district budget.

Student meals program, $30,000 from an override tax levied this year.

Emergency loans, $5,000, all local money.

The GI Bill, an estimated $850,000 this school year in Veterans Administration money.

All the above funds have been fully committed, except for small amounts in the law enforcement and nursing programs, and local tax money can't be used for financial aid in most cases. That's why the college has been scratching so hard to find new sources of aid money.

AT LAST WEEK'S college board meeting, a girl from the Third World Liberation Front capsuled part of that group's philosophy very neatly.

"We believe if we can't get the education we want, then nobody can get it," she said.

Somebody like that really needs an education; but with that attitude it seems unlikely any meaningful learning will sink in.

ART BUCHWALD

Nixon Spans Generation Gap With A Bridge Named Agnew

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon caused a great deal of speculation when he announced so far in advance that he was going to make a major pronouncement concerning Vietnam. By selecting Nov. 3 as the date, he has given the press and other news media an opportunity to guess what he is going to say and do. The rumors are getting wilder each day.

I can reliably report that, despite all the trial balloons that the White House is sending up, one of the things he plans to announce is that he is making Vice President Spiro Agnew his liaison between the White House and the intellectual community.

A SPOKESMAN SAID, "No one in the administration has a better understanding or a deeper interest in the intellectuals than the vice president. Time and time again Mr. Agnew has gone to bat for the educated classes in the country, particularly the students.

"The President feels that by announcing Mr. Agnew's appointment as his personal representative, he will be able to take some of the steam out of the moratorium protests. The feeling is that the vice president is the only one who can communicate with the students and protesters."

I asked the spokesman how the President had discovered this.

"THE PRESIDENT has always known that his vice president has been a popular figure on the nation's campuses. Not only has Mr. Agnew had rapport with students, but he is also respected and admired by professors and college presidents. They see in Mr. Agnew a man of warmth, generosity and intelligence and someone who an state their case to the President."

"Did the President come to this decision on his own?"

"No, he did not," the spokesman said. "He discussed it with representative college students."

"Which ones?"

"David Eisenhower and his wife, Julie. I don't think there is any doubt that they speak for the entire college generation."

"Will Vice President Agnew be to the Nixon administration what Eric Goldman was to the Johnson administration?"

"YES, EXCEPT THAT, as vice president, Mr. Agnew will have more influence on intellecutal matters in the country. It is hoped that when students or educators, writers, historians, philosophers and artists have something to say, they will put it in the willing ear of Mr. Agnew. We want them to feel the vice president is one of them."

"Has the vice president been informed of his appointment?"

"Yes, and he's very excited about it. He loves working with youth and with educated people. He feels that they're the hope of the future and that what they have to say is important to the direction in which this country is going. He is particularly impressed with their eagerness to speak out on the issues of the day, and he feels that the more the intellectual community is heard from, the less mistakes the administration will make. He doesn't believe if you've seen one campus, you've seen them all."

"THE PRESIDENT was most fortunate to have someone of Mr. Agnew's intellectual standing available," I said.

"President Nixon feels that way. At first he was going to appoint Gen. Lewis B. Hershey to the job, but David and Julie persuaded the President that Mr. Agnew would be a better choice."

"I don't see how Vice President Agnew can take on this job with everything else he has to do," I said.

"The President hopes to ease up on Mr. Agnew's other duties so he can devote all his attention to the intellectuals and students. For a start, he told the vice president he no longer has to meet him at the airport."

Sausalito Bar Robbery Denied

Three of four men accused of committing Sausalito's first armed robbery in 18 months last Thursday pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to the felony charge.

A preliminary hearing for Kenneth Earl Armstrong, 26; Isac Junior Junkins, 19, and Willie L. Lee, 20, all of San Francisco, was set for next Wednesday. The fourth defendant John Allen Nalls, 19, is being held in jail in San Mateo County, it was reported in court.

They were arrested by Millbrae police after an all points bulletin describing the suspects and a getaway car was flashed by Sausalito police. They are accused of holding up a bartender at Smitty's Tavern.

Reed Pupils Due Old Style Report Cards

A return to old-fashioned report cards, complete with social conduct evaluation, has been authorized by the Reed School District Board, according to Supt. Robert B. Gaw.

Trustees, meeting Tuesday night, voted 4-1, with Chairman Leo Souza dissenting, to re-establish checklist and letter grade report cards for all grades in the district.

Trustees said the move was made to bring a measure of uniformity in reporting to parents throughout the district. Previously, each school used its own method of reporting, relying heavily on parent conferences and written evaluations of a student's academic achievements.

Under the new system, primary grade students will be evaluated by a check list system with progress noted as "satisfactory" or "nonsatisfactory," Gaw said.

All other students will receive both the checklist grading and letter grades. However, parents will be allowed to request that their children not receive letter grades.

In all classes, parent-teacher conferences will be scheduled twice a year.

In addition to academic subject evaluation, Gaw said, the board voted to reinstitute social conduct evaluation, dropped by many California school districts in recent years in favor of the more private parent teacher conferences.

Interior Panel Boss Favors Seashore Funds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The House Interior Committee's chairman favors legislation to provide more funds to purchase land for Point Reyes National Seashore.

Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., said yesterday while attending the American Mining Congress convention that "We authorized the thing several years ago."

"Going ahead, keeping our word ... that's the important thing," he said.

The congressman blamed the Bureau of the Budget because $38 million still is needed to buy some 31,000 acres in Marin County for the park.

The bureau cut the fund for such purchases from $124 million to $76 million, he said, and refused to set up a priority list for expenditures. Pt. Reyes is one of several projects seeking money.

Chlorine Kills Little Reed Sewer Odor

The addition of chlorine to incoming sewage has significantly reduced odors emanating from the Richardson Bay Sanitary District's Trestle Glen treatment plant in Tiburon, according to a sanitary engineer's report.

In a letter to the sanitary district board dated Tuesday, San Rafael engineer Warren E. Nute said the chlorine has "completely eliminated hydrogen sulfide previously detected" in manholes on Stewart Drive in Little Reed Heights, main source of odor complaints.

Also, Nute said, the chlorine treatment has reduced to one-tenth the concentration of hydrogen sulfide at the treatment plant.

Detection of odor sources at the plant, Nute said, has indicated "the collective effect of the odors away from the plant results from the combination of the small odor sources within the plant."

Nute said he now is testing the activated sludge treatment process to "formulate more positive process control methods or process improvements . . . (to) reduce odors due to plant upsets."

The letter was the second in a series of monthly reports from Nute to the board on odor studies and controls.

Water Panel Sets $1,000 Waste Fees

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Companies and public agencies discharging wastes into California waters will have to pay fees of up to $1,000 the Water Resources Control Board said yesterday.

The board said the fees would be imposed when the agencies report on the quantity and quality of their wastes, and are in addition to the waste treatment requirements they must meet.

Agencies later changing the quantity or quality of their wastes would pay new fees.

A meeting will be held in Sacramento Nov. 20 to set a complete fee schedule for waste dischargers.

The fees were authorized by the anti water pollution bill passed in the last legislative session. Violators of treatment standards can be fined up to $6,000 a day.

Trespass, Pot Charges Denied

Stephen Lee McDonnell, 20, of Richmond, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of marijuana possession and trespass stemming from his arrest Oct. 15 in a Stinson Beach cabin.

A preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 31.

The cases of three other young persons arrested with McDonnell and charged with trespass were referred to probation officers for possible transferral to juvenile court.

Geraldine Dianna Oldham, 18, and Ralph Ward Daeschner, 19, both of Richmond, and Steven Randall Ward, 18, of El Cerrito, were told to return to court Nov. 7.

The case against Daniel William McDonald, 18, of El Cerrito, charged with trespass was dismissed when it was learned that he was entering the Marine Corps soon.

Quiz Slowing Commuters On Bay Span

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bay Bridge commuters face a little extra delay this week for the sake of smoother bridge crossing in the future.

Interviewers from the State Division of Bay Toll Crossings are questioning commuters at the toll gates yesterday through Sunday to find out where motorists are going.

The information will be used to help determine how many ramps and toll gates will be needed for the planned Southern Crossing, said Robert Hardgrove, the division's information officer.

The interviewers began at 6 a.m. today stopping every 10th car for a maximum of 30 seconds' quizzing. Their goal is 16,000 commuters a day.

Teaching Women Of Peru

By BETTY FROST

The different, sometimes difficult milieu of Huancayo, Peru, came alive as the slender blonde young woman spoke of the three years she and her husband lived there.

Mrs. Robert McLaughlin, the former Charlotte Robinson, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Robinson, in Tiburon. But the ties which she and Robert made during their lengthy stay in Peru remain strong.

The Peace Corps volunteers finished their studies at the University of Washington three years ago and went to Kansas City for a 10-week-training program sponsored by the University of Missouri. Robert had his degree in architecture, and Charlotte had majored in art education.

THE COUPLE settled in what Charlotte calls a "newish adobe building," where they had an apartment on the second floor. They had running water, but no hot water or heating in a climate that "was like a perpetual early Marin spring."

Huancayo is 10,500 ft. in elevation, and has a population of around 90,000 people. The city, in central Peru, is a transportation focal point for travelers to the high mountains, the jungle and the city of Lima. Because it is a crossroads, the city is famous for its Sunday Fair. Goods are displayed along a mile long market place.

"It is the largest market in Peru," Charlotte said.

McLaughlin spent 18 months working in the national office for urban planning in Huancayo. He later taught architectural design at the Universidad del Central del Peru. He also designed and built a day nursery for the children of working women. The project was sponsored by the Methodist Church, which maintains a school in Huancayo.

CHARLOTTE TAUGHT home economics and sewing under a program of the Peruvian Department of Agriculture. She also had what would be comparable to a 4-H Club. She assisted the women of the town in forming clubs to learn how to utilize their food in a more nutritious way.

"The potato is native to Peru," she said, "and there are about 20 delicious varieties, but I tried to discourage the women from using rice, potatoes and beans at the same meal."

The native food she found very good, and she learned to do a number of dishes. Chinese food is also popular in Peru, which has a large Chinese population and a number of Chinese restaurants.

While the women "are always spinning thread so that it is very hard and waterproof, and do excellent weaving and embroidery," Charlotte was ble to show them how to make clothes that fit properly.

"I HAD NEVER taken a course in home economics" she stated, "so it must have been what I learned at home from mother." Adina Robinson is a home economics teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School.

Her own cooking facilities consisted of a prima stove, which had to be pumped to operate. When she contrived an oven out of a five gallon oil can it was a sensation with her Peruvian friends. She taught the women how to make their own ovens.

"Cinnamon rolls really caught on," she recalled.

For our visit she made "chicha morada," a soft drink made of purple corn.

AN ATTRACTIVE, bright blue trunk, made, the young woman insisted," from orange crates and tin cans because the Peruvians utilize everything," revealed a treasure chest of momentoes . . . a miniature bus like the Huancayo transportation . . . three handsome llama replicas, a throw of alpaca fur, conquino masques used in festival dances . . . gourds with designs burned into them — some utilitarian serving as bowls, others decorative . . . mantas, large square scarves in which Peruvian women carry their babies on their backs . . . a pancho from the high country near Cuzco . . . cloth handpainted by an Amazon jungle tribe.

But her relations with the people are what Charlotte values most. She maintains her friendships with several families and send them books and dress patterns, which are very expensive in Peru. "It is no kindness to send them items on which they will have to pay heavy duty," she said.

HER INFLUENCE has opened new opportunities for at least two young women. One, Gladys Taverso, has been granted a scholarship at Mary

'Kate Smith Sweetheart Neckline' Is So Old It's 'Funky' Fashion

By LINDA DEUTSCH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Add a new word to fashion's vocabulary: "funky." It means clothes so old they're new. The latest qualifier: the "Funky Forties."

Tiny fluted and puffed sleeves abounded on three-piece crepe suits with pep lums.

Even once-conservative firms such as Miss Pat and Koret of California tossed in a few "attic prints"—tiny flowers on fluid jersey. Dubbing its sportwear "collectors' items," Miss Pat interpreted the 40s in a funky floral cardigan jacket with a gored flip skirt. Alongside was the "underwear look," crocheted minidresses culled from way back in the 20s.

Another keyword in California sportwear was freedom—the freedom to be active. Combos by Alex Colman, White Stag and Koret were multipurpose outfits to suit the athlete and socialite. Colman's miniculottes were covered with maxiskirts. And long tunics over long pants doubled as dresses when the pants were stripped away. Koret called it the "picture puzzle look," pieces that fit together in various combinations.

Running with the rugged sports gal, White Stagg provided fashions for jogging, golfing, tennis, water skiing and even surfer suits— body-clinging, bright print rubber jackets over matching shorts.

Skirt lengths varied from mini to maxi and everything in between. But designers of pants agreed: The big bell-bottomed slacks of last seasons have disappeared. Enter the straight leg —neither fitted, nor flaired.

Funky is in; floppy is out.

Uncertain Women Can Ease Into College Life

By BARBARA HOSMER

Some of the mechanics of going back to college after years away were outlined by Sister Marie, O.P., director of admissions at Dominican College in the second of the series "Continuing Education for Women" at the San Rafael campus yesterday.

There are two kinds of applicants who come to her admissions office, Sister Marie said, — those who already know the direction their study will take and others who are motivated toward further education but who are not quite sure what they are interested in.

She suggested that a good way to ease back into college life would be to take one course in a no-degree program to start sampling on a part-time basis.

"I suggest that you go through the catalog, select what interests you, and ease into college life. It is probably more interesting to take one or two courses at the moment," she said.

Then, she suggested to the largely 30 to 40 age group, the student might wish to move on toward a degree program in a field of interest.

As for Dominican College, she said that each person returning to college after years away is considered on an individual basis and that the important thing is to find each's interest and discuss it.

"The whole application folder — the high school and any college records as well as things you may have done in between — is considered in its entirety."

This year Dominican will offer for the first time a chance for mature persons enrolling a chance to take the College Level Examination to evaluate the propective student's knowledge in five areas of liberal arts. The test, as explained by Robert G. Cameron, director of the Western Region office of the College Entrance Examination Board, is scored on a level with current college sophomores and the sections passed allow credit and requirement fulfillment.

"This general battery of tests shows where strengths and weaknesses are and also will assist a counselor in suggesting a program of studies," Cameron pointed out.

Subject examinations will also be offered to measure achievement in specific college courses, also lower division.

College Level Examinations will be given at Dominican College the week of Jan. 18. To take the general tests application for admission must be filed with Sister Marie, Director of Admissions, by Dec. 8; and application for specific subject examinations must be filed with Sister M. Anita, O.P., registrar, between Dec. 8 and 12.

Cameron said that the test questions are short answer type.

Artelle Farley, supervisor of student teaching for the college, outlined the one year graduate program for teaching credentails. She added that junior college teaching credential requirements are slightly beyond master's degree level.

An honor student majoring in linguistics, Ellen is fluent in French and Hebrew. She attended elementary schools in the Reed Union School District and was graduated from Redwood High School. She will return to Marin next summer.

MISS LORETTA Grady of San Rafael will host a rehearsal dinner tomorrow honoring her nephew, Kevin Johnson, and Laurel Crean of San Anselmo, who will be married Saturday at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax.

VISITING HIS son, Dr. John C. Arpels of Sausalito, last week was the master jeweler Claude Arpels, who, with three brothers and an uncle, is an owner of the world famed jewelry house of Van Cleef and Arpels in Paris, France. He was in San Francisco on business.

GUESTS OF Mr. and Mrs. Albert Oberman at the Space Odyssy Ball and Fol de Rol tonight will be Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Graves Jr., of Ross and Mr. and Mrs. Sol Capper of San Rafael. The Obermans, of Mill Valley, are members of the San Francisco Opera Guild, sponsors of the Ball.

This is a just-looker.

She's very welcome at our place. And so are all the ladies like her. As far as we're concerned, you can look til the cows come home. Pick things up. Touch them. Take them off the rack. Hold them up in front of the mirror. And walk out without buying a thing. On the other hand, if browsing leads to something more serious — obviously, that's okay too. HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Can't Afford College For One And Give Favorite Big Wedding

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 17-year-old girl. All my life I've tried to please my father, but he remains cold towards me. I get ridicule from him. He downgrades my mother, too, because "brains are bad for a woman."

I've tried joking around with him and hugging him to show affection, but he shoves me away or snaps something out at me.

He thinks my older sister is just great. She never made the honor society, but she is certainly A-plus with our father. He bought her a car which she demolished. Yet I have to earn my own money for the car that will provide me transportation to college if I am able to go. She got a B.A. this year.

The latest is that my sister is to have a very expensive wedding, and there isn't enough money saved to pay for it and also my expenses at college. Nothing has been said yet, but I know I'll be the fall guy again.

Should I plan to leave home as soon as I graduate from high school in June?—SECOND AND NOTHING.

DEAR S AND N:

I can't believe your father's favoritism would extend to giving your sister a big wedding at the expense of your college education. A long mother-daughter talk might show you antagonism works both ways. Perhaps without knowing it, you've been turning off your father as much as he has turned you off. If you both learn the reasons why you strike sparks, there may still be time to change things.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

In answer to "Invasion of Privacy" who doesn't like the telephone operator giving her a jingle when she leaves the phone off the hook on purpose, to get a little rest:

She won't be bothered if she takes the phone off the hook, waits for the dial tone, then dials her own phone number. She'll get a busy signal, and any one who calls will also get a busy signal.

If that sound is too noisy, put a pillow over the telephone, and you can sleep like a baby. But anyone having a party line had better not try this.—FORMER TELEPHONE OPERATOR

DEAR HELEN:

I have a managing cousin who thinks she is doing me a favor, but she's just about to ruin my love life.

She is four years older than I am, and she tells my boy friend all the time that he should come to see me more often, treat me nicer, bring gifts, and so forth. He works, so he can't be at my house all the time. I'm afraid he thinks I'm putting her up to this, because he has acted kind of cold lately.

How can I tell my cousin to lay off and also get across to my boy friend that I'm not trying to manage him through her?—T.Y.

DEAR T:

If "cool it, cousin!" doesn't get through to her, then she's a hopeless managing female; and you'd better warn your boy friend that anything she says should not be held against you. He'll probably understand because almost everybody has at least one born matchmaker in the family.—H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent Journal.

What To Buy In Markets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — USDA's food experts report that food shoppers this weekend will find good selections of meat and poultry and some choices in fresh vegetables and fruit in food stores and supermarkets. All areas will feature a good variety of seafood.

Broiler-fryer chickens and turkeys head the list of the most abundant meats. Ground beef, beef liver, roast and steaks should be in good supply for all shoppers. Pork items in best supply in all areas are bacon, boston butts, chops, roasts, ham and smoked picnics. Some areas may feature sausage and spareribs. The most abundant fish in all areas are Maine sardines, canned tuna and fish sticks and portions, according to the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Fresh vegetables in best supply are cabbage, onions, potatoes and sweet potatoes. Apples and grapefruit will be the most abundant fruits.

Other foods on USDA's plentiful foods list for October are fresh pears, canned peaches, rice and dry split peas.

In the West:

Poultry and eggs are higher in all West Coast markets while pork is lower. Beef, veal, calf, lamb and butter are relatively unchanged from last week.

All sizes of eggs are higher. Chicken fryers are higher in California.

Boston butts are lower while spareribs are also lower in Portland but higher in Los Angeles. Smoked hams are higher in Los Angeles and lower in other markets. Slab bacon is lower in Portland while sliced bacon is lower in California.

Fruits and vegetables in best supply include: Apples, bananas, grapes, oranges, cabbage, celery, onions and potatoes.

Best seafood buys in the West, according to the U.S. Department of the Interior, are king crab legs, canned tuna, canned Pacific shrimp, rockfish, sword fish and Pacific oysters.

JUDITH ANN Hearn became the bride of Eugene Leon Winter at Our Lady of Loretto Church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Plan For Safety Of The Children When They Go Trick Or Treating

Whether your children are tricked or treated on Halloween depends on you, according to Dr. Albert H. Domm.

"Well-planned events and safety consciousness will treat youngsters to an enjoyable evening," says Dr. Domm, child safety spokesman and medical director for an insurance company.

He warned that unsupervised children may be "tricked" by accidents on the eve of witches and goblins.

"Parents can join their boys and girls in home and community Halloween parties for their own enjoyment and their children's welfare," he says.

Many clubs and community groups sponsor such parties at parks, schools and meeting places for the purpose of treating children and protecting them from tricks. Dr. Domm strongly urges parents to take advantage of these events.

He also offered several safety suggestions:

Beware of costumes which might be inflammable. If youngsters wear masks, be sure they can breathe easily and that their vision is not impaired.

You would not ordinarily let your children wander through the streets alone at night, so do not let Halloween be an exception. Accompany the children to parties. If youngsters go door-to-door, stay near them.

Avoid candles in jack-o'-lanterns. Use flashlights instead. Many children burn themselves or their homes each year with jack-o'-lantern candles.

Carefully check any treats your youngsters may receive. Last Halloween, some of these treats made children sick.

The other girl is studying to become a home economist and will continue the work Charlotte started in Huancayo.

"I consider motivating this girl to help her people my most worthwhile long term accomplishment in Peru," she said.

Charlotte attended Reed School District elementary schools, and was graduated from Redwood High School. Her husband's family are from Fort Yates, N. D. Robert went ahead and is now living in the town of McLaughlin, 35 miles out of Fort Yates. The settlement was named for his grandfather, James McLaughlin, the first Indian commissioner in the area. The architect will be an economic development specialist for the United Tribes, designing housing and community buildings for several reservations.

And Charlotte? She thinks there may be an opportunity to continue the work she did in Peru, teaching the women of the tribes health and hygiene and the principles of nutrition.

Candidate Wants Campaign Funds

FRESNO (UPI) — An announced candidate for the state Senate yesterday told a legislative hearing the state should pay part of a candidate's campaign expenses.

Wallace D. Henderson, a former Fresno mayor who is seeking the Senate seat now held by fellow Democrat Hugh Burns, made the suggestion before the Assembly Committee on Elections and Constitutional Amendments.

HE said if the state paid for campaigns the elected officials would "owe the public for its support and not some interest group."

Committee chairman Paul Priolo, R-Los Angeles, said the committee would make "a considerable in-depth study' 'of the proposal.

Prober Decries Wholesale U.S. Drug Abuses

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The House Crime Committee today opened four days of hearings into the flow of drugs from legitimate sources into the mushrooming world of the addict.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., chairman, said "no problem confronting our nation is more serious or critical" than abuse of dangerous drugs.

URGES RECORDS

"Our committee will undertake immediately an effort designed to bring about adequate record-keeping concerning the effects of dangerous drugs," Pepper said last night.

He said his committee hoped to find out "the number of persons who are both psychologically and physiologically dependent upon dangerous drugs."

Pepper revealed previously that the investigations in preparation for the hearings have led not only to illegal drug pushers but also to outwardly respectable dealers in pharmaceuticals.

"Everyone, including most of the medical profession, will be astonished to learn how little regulation there is of the volume of production of legitimate drugs by legitimate companies—much of which is not used as medicine but for some kind of kick," Pepper has said.

PILLS MISUSED

He said tranquilizers, barbituates and diet pills were being misused "by the million."

The committee's scope of inquiry is broad—youth crime, drugs, and law enforcement, including police, courts and correctional institutions.

Pepper has said he believes the country needs "wholesale reform" of the laws for rehabilitating addicts, as well as public attention on the "vultures" who push drugs through illegal channels.

"The testimony which will unfold in the next four days of hearings will demonstrate the methods of illegal as well as irresponsible destruction," he said.

Sergeant Uses Fifth During Graft Quiz

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sgt. Maj. William O. Wooldridge refused today on grounds of possible self-incrimination to reply to charges that he and a group of buddies profiteered from operation of enlisted men's clubs on Army bases.

Wooldridge and three others accused of sharing a rake-off running into many thousands of dollars cited the Fifth Amendment in response to questions by the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee.

Wooldridge—once the Army's top noncommissioned officer—remained mute even while being described by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., as "a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and being told by Percy the charges against him were "a discredit to the very uniform you wear."

Wooldridge invoked the Fifth Amendment 37 times in 80 minutes before the committee switched to questioning others among the four men seated side-by-side at the witness table. The questioning covered the men's military background, finances, alleged kickbacks, German and Swiss bank accounts and reports of transactions of thousands of dollars at a time between them.

Wooldridge's attorney told the subcommittee that the sergeant "may later, indeed, be prosecuted. I have to protect him . . . as a soldier he is still a U.S. citizen."

At almost the same time that the beribboned Wooldridge —as well as three other men linked to the alleged scheme of kickbacks, rakeoffs and other irregularities — took the Fifth, the Army announced a further downgrading of Wooldridge's status.

Army Secretary Stanley R. Resor said the former top-ranked enlisted man in the Army was being "involuntarily released" from its sergeants major program. In effect, it meant that he was being barred from any future role as a key non-commissioned adviser on assignment of enlisted men to senior positions from the battalion level on up to all-Army.

In addition to Wooldridge, those taking the Fifth Amendment were M/Sgt. William E. Higdon, retired Sgt. 1/c Seymour (Sandy) Lazar.

David L. Thomas, lawyer for Wooldridge, Higdon and Narvaez, told the committee at the outset that his three clients had been advised not to answer questions because of the "accusatory nature" of the hearing.

The alleged scandals began at Augsburg, Germany, in the early 1960s, moved to Fort Benning, Ga., about the time Wooldridge got his Pentagon job, then shifted to Vietnam. Wooldridge was transferred to Gen. Creighton W. Abrams' Saigon staff last year.

Higdon, Hatcher and Lazar were colleagues of Wooldridge at Augsburg, Germany. Their assignments since have been similar and all four have been accused of participating in the Ft. Benning and Vietnam thefts as well.

Lazar is now president of Maredem Co., a firm Wooldridge and the other sergeants formed while in Vietnam. A subcommittee accountant said they used the company as a profitable conduit to sell goods to clubs they managed.

Paul Revere was born in 1735 and died in 1818.

Innocent Plea To Possession Of Stolen Goods

Steven Francis Potter, 18, of 270 Oak Manor Drive, Fairfax, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing stolen property.

A preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Potter was arrested Tuesday in San Rafael when he returned to a motorcycle shop to pick up a cycle which was being repaired. The repairman had noticed that the serial numbers of the cycle had been removed.

Police said Potter told them he had purchased the brand new motorcycle for $100 from a man who gave him a ride while he was hitchiking. Officers said the youth had no bill of sale, registration slip or license plates for the cycle.

Vocabulary Switch

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — Young people have their own new vocabulary for describing hopeful and hopeless living, says Paul Geren, president of Baptist-owned Stetson University, but they don't like the older generation's terms for it, such as "lost" and "saved."

Bushido is the code of moral principles which developed among the Samurai class of Japan during the civil war period of the 16th Century.

Arab Guerrillas Kidnap Lebanese

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A force of 650 Arab guerrillas invaded Lebanon from Syria at three points today and kidnapped 20 Lebanese army soldiers before they were driven back with tanks and rockets. Anti-Lebanon demonstrations broke out in Damascus and Amman where a Lebanese flag was Fighting also broke out in a Palestine refugee camp outside Beirut between refugees and Lebanese security forces and there were antigovernment and anti-American demonstrations in the cities of Lebanon. A bomb exploded harmlessly near the U.S. Embassy.

CRISIS MOUNTS

The crisis in the Arab world over Lebanon's efforts to halt guerrilla attacks against Israel mounted steadily despite reported Libyan efforts to mediate. A series of guerrilla attacks in Haifa, Israel, which destroyed five apartment houses brought a new crisis in Israel.

As Israeli planes bombed and strafed Arab guerrilla bases in Jordan and hit Egyptian artillery positions, Israeli Premier Golda Meir called in Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and several other cabinet ministers in Jerusalem to discuss the Haifa bombings.

Informed political sources speculated that strong Israeli punitive action might be in the offing. The meeting was not officially classified an "emergency" cabinet meeting since all members were not present. But the urgency was underscored by the events in Haifa.

APARTMENTS HIT

The bombs destroyed a dozen apartments and killed two persons in two days. Haifa Mayor Moshe Fleemevv announced formation of a civil defense corps to check every building in the city of 209,000. All schools were inspected before students were allowed to enter them.

The demonstrations in Damascus and Amman indicated anti-Lebanon feeling was on the rise. In Amman, a demonstrator, apparently a guerrilla, was killed by a hand grenade. Reports from the scene said the grenade apparently fell from a marcher and that the victim hurled himself on it to save the others.

MEDIATION OFFER

Political sources in Beirut said Col. Moammar Kazafi, head of the Libyan Revolutionary Command, telephoned Lebanese President Charles Helou and offered to mediate the dispute between the army and the guerrillas. The Libyan ambassador also delivered what was described as an "important letter."

The Israeli attacks against Egypt followed a night of cross-canal artillery duels. Cairo reported Egyptian planes struck deep into the Sinai Desert during the night but Israel said it was a harmless effort to hit the Nahal Yam settlement and there were no damages or casualties.

The Novato Fire District board last night officially stated that it would not fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Donald Donaghue until after the Nov. 4 election, in which five men running for two positions on the board. (For candidates, see page 5.)

At the district board meeting on Oct. 8, candidate Richard W. Price presented a petition with 314 signatures asking that the vacancy be filled immediately, or that if the board waited until after the election that the losing third place candidate be appointed.

Board chairman Peter J. Ferrarese, himself a candidate, has said, however, that he thinks the board should appoint the best qualified man, whether that man runs or not.

The Novato Fire District board also:

INSURANCE — Renewed health insurance coverage with California Physicians Service for the coming year. The district pays $14.73 per month for single firemen and $36.24 for firemen and one dependent. The firemen must pay an additional $7.74 per month to cover his children. This costs the district approximately $12,000 per year.

TANKER — Approved Assistant Chief Alvin S. Butti drawing up specifications for a new tank truck. It will replace a 30-year-old truck.

EXAMINATION — Set 8:30 a.m., Nov. 1 for examinations for firemen. Although the district has only one vacancy at the present time, it keeps a list of eligible firemen to fill vacancies as they occur.

PENALTY — Discussed but reached no conclusion on the number of penalty days which the district would assess against Hayco Co. of San Rafael in delays on the construction of the drill tower.

ESTABLISHMENT IDEALIST

Mining Firms Warned To Heed Needs Of Society

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—At least one corporate chairman of the board sees no conflict between social idealism and good business sense.

Frederick J. Close, board chairman of Aluminum Company of America (Alcoa), told members of the American Mining Congress yesterday that big companies must hire more minority workers and work to wipe out unemployment, become involved in politics at all levels, attempt to resolve the crisis in the cities, and follow the advice of the young.

"We've got to help build a better society," Close said. "If we don't build it, there won't be any corporation. The stockholder who objects may find himself without any dividends."

The Pittsburgh, Pa., executive, calling himself an idealist "even after 40 years in business," told the 75 mining executives at the management sessions that they should take note of the dissatisfaction of youth.

"It's the white man's society," Close said. "He's going to have to correct it. How many promises have we made? How many have we kept?"

In other action, a government official told the miners' meeting the industry has plenty of job openings.

Petaluma Poundman Reports Dog Killings

Petaluma Poundmaster William Matthews has reported the poisoning of four dogs in two days in the Howard Street vicinity.

Matthews said two of the dogs have died while two others remain ill. He said a veterinarian described the symptoms as similar to those caused by strychnine poisoning.

Woodcutter, Pal Arrested After Chain Saw Theft

A 22-year-old unemployed woodcutter and a 16-year-old youth were arrested in San Rafael today on suspicion of stealing seven chain saws valued at $2,200 from the Turf and Tree landscaping firm.

Kenneth James Hough, 22, who gave an Arizona address and one at 202S Feliz Road, Novato, was booked into Marin County Jail after he was found climbing an embankment next to the landscaping firm at 625 Grand Avenue at 1 a.m. by police. Nearby police found two chain saws and a knife in a sheath.

Police found Robert Lee Wallace, 16, of 1320 Leafwood Avenue, Novato, lying on the floorboards of a car parked at the D and S Garage lot next door. He was booked into Juvenile Hall on suspicion of burglary.

Two additional saws of the seven reported missing from a locker inside the firm were found near the scene of the arrest, police said.

Hough is to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Novatan Jailed On Loan Charge

The 27-year-old owner of a San Rafael beauty shop was arrested today on suspicion of grand theft after a Marin district attorney's investigator said that the man had fraudulently obtained a $2,000 loan from a San Rafael bank.

Booked into Marin County Jail, where he was held in lieu of $1,250 bail, was Gary Edward Smith, of 11 Equestrian Acres, Novato, who owns Gary's Hair Styling at 912 Lootens Place.

John Kingston of the district attorney's staff said that Smith obtained a loan from Commonwealth National Bank by using the pink slip for a car he no longer owned as collateral.

SHEDS HIS HAIR

Tarzan's Son Doing Futuristic Film Role

By ANNE BARDWELL

There's a tall, lanky, hip young man wandering around Sausalito these days and not only does he not have long hair, he doesn't have any hair at all.

He's the son of Tarzan in Yul Brynner disguise.

Who is he? Why he's Johnny Weissmuller Jr., son of the best known in a long series of Tarzans, and he's bald because he's making a movie about the plastic society of our future.

The movie is "THX 1138," named after the hero of the film who revolts against his subterranean, pill-happy, test-tube civilization and tries to bring some humanity back into his world.

In the film, Weissmuller plays a robot policeman — thus the bold head. "I'm a humanoid, a robot, and I play lots of small roles, whatever they need me for."

The screenplay is original, Weismuller says, even though the story summary sounds like a combination of "1984," "Brave New World" and "Farenheit 451."

"It's unbelievable how close it is to today's drug-happy society," notes his wife, Peggy. Since it's an underground society, all the scenes are interiors, many shot in the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's tunnels and control rooms, the Marin County Civic Center and the Oakland arena . . ." And in many of them nothing had to be changed to fit in with the script . . . we're already there," Mrs. Weismuller said.

In the film, Weissmuller said, "Anyone from the womb is an outlaw as is anyone who enjoys sex. They're sent to the surface to live with the hairy ones, the primitives. Underground it's all test tubes and pill trips and euphoria."

Acting in films is nothing new for the 29-year-old Weissmuller, who was reared in Southern California in the 1940s and 1950s with the children of other famous stars, including Jimmy Mitchum Robert Mitchum) Artie Lake (Arthur Lake of Dagwood fame) and Mia Farrow (her mother, Maureen O'Hara, was the first Jane in his dad's Tarzan flicks.)

Johnny Weissmuller Sr. still lives in Southern California. John's mother was Beryl Scott, a San Francisco socialite, who divorced John Sr. in 1944 and has since remarried and lives in Carmel.

He's been working in films and on the stage for 10 years, mostly in "10th through the door" parts. "You know, the sheriff walks into the saloon and everyone piles out the swinging doors. Tenth through the door, that's me."

He also has done a lot of stunt work, learning the craft from his father's stunt man, Paul Stader. Remember the scene in "Mister Roberts" where the drunken sailor drives the motorcycle off the end of the dock? Guess who?

A friendly giant of a man (he's six feet, 6 inches tall and 215 pounds) with deep brown eyes and a craggy face, Weissmuller says he specialized in water stunts. "I always hated the falling out of buildings. You were supposed to land on a pile of cardboard boxes and I was always afraid I'd miss."

Once, he was the abominable snowman for a cooky commercial. "We filmed it at Pismo Beach with a camel named Sharky. I was disgusted as the friendly snowman and was all suited up in this white furry stuff and Morton Meek, yes, that was his name, would ride across the sand on Sharky the camel.

"Sharky loved chocolate chip cookies and stopped to put one on my chest, (I was missing a button, you see) and then I'd reveal my true self, the abominable snowman, and start to chase him. Then Morton Meek would turn into supercookie and there we were chasing each other across the sand at Pismo Beach. It must have been 110 in the shade and felt like 120. It was awful."

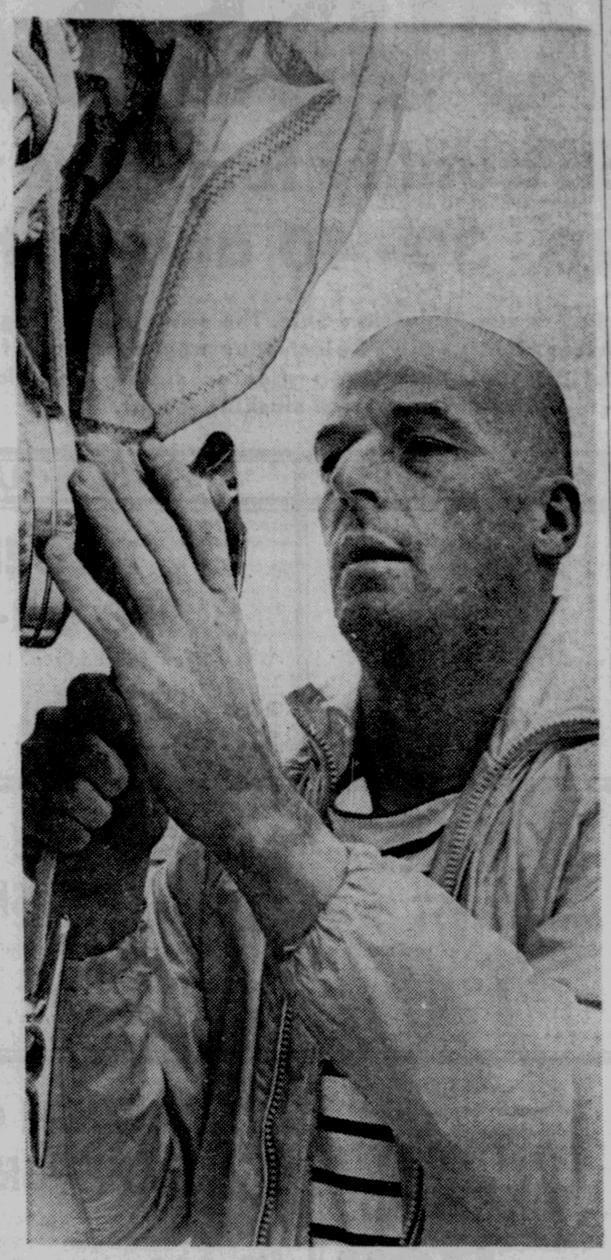
Shortly after that, Weissmuller moved to Northern California, his birthplace, and worked as a deep sea diver in Sausalito. He then met and married Peggy, they now have a 7-month-old daughter — and left deep sea diving for a job as a San Francisco longshoreman.

In between films and jobs, he crews on sailboats in bay races and on longer trips.

Weissmuller said he plans to stick with filmmaking in the Bay Area.

As far as the hair is concerned, the only thing that bothers him is the temperature. "I sure do get an acute feeling of temperature this way, and my neck gets cold."

People stare a lot, Weissmuller says, but he doesn't mind. "The hippies are a funny scene. The plastic ones get all uptight but the real hippies say, 'That's a groovy haircut, man, that's something else.' "



CHIP OFF THE BLOCK — Johnny Weissmuller Jr., rapidly following in the footsteps of his film star father, takes time out from filmmaking for one of his chief pleasures, crewing on sailboats in San Francisco Bay. He has also spent a lot of time in recent years in scuba equipment as a member of Sausalito Underwater Search, a firm that goes below on a wide variety of projects. (Independent-Journal photo)

Oak Knolls Strike Threat Over Rentals

By DAVID DIETZ

A group of about 30 residents from the Oak Knolls development in Marin City posed the threat of a one-month strike last night over living conditions which several dwellers described as filthy.

Although its oldest apartments and townhouses were built as recently as three years ago, the 56-unit Oak Knolls development was pictured at the meeting as litter-strewn and falling into disrepair.

A six-member tenants committee, which called the meeting in the Manzanita Center, came armed with a list of 33 grievances and a letter by the Marin County Department of Public Health calling upon the landlord, California Development Corp., to clean up the property and make building repairs.With the tenants was a San Francisco legal aid attorney, George Mix.

Thr grievances, ticked off by Mrs. Royce McLemore, a member of the tenants committee, focused on a variety of conditions, but high on the list was the need for a manager, maintenance man and gardener, Mrs. McLemore said Oak Knolls has been without a manager and maintenance man since August.

In his letter, sanitarian Low C. Chan of the public health department said the absence of a caretaker violated housing code regulations, as did accumulation of broken glass, dirt and refuse around the property and disrepair of roof drainage systems. Chan, who inspected Oak Knolls at the tenants' request earlier this month, had given California Development until Nov. 9 to correct the violations.

After the meeting, tenants said the landlord has only "swept a little bit" in response to Chan's complaints.

Mrs. McLemore said the committee had attempted three times within the past month to meet with a California Development representative but each time the meeting was posponed by the landlord's spokesman.

Mrs. McLemore said it seemed "there's no other choice but to hit him where it hurts because we're the ones living in filth."

"It's time we act," Mix said. "This is serious business and there's no time to waste. If you're here to bullxxxx and waste time and not work, then leave." Mix waited for a moment but no one left the room.

"I would like to hit that cat's pocketbook," he said, but warned that at least 90 per cent of the tenants would have to withold their rent to make the strike effective.

"Once you start messing with his money," Mix said, "He'll be here quick."

He told the residents the withheld rent could be used for maintenance and repairs or placed in trust until assurance of corrective steps were received.

Mix recommended that the tenants register formal complaint with California Development. If there is no response, another meeting should be called for further strategy, he said.

The tenants were to circulate a petition throughout Oak Knolls calling for prompt action on their grievances.

Teen Drop-In Plans Given Panel's Nod

Operation plans for a teen drop-in center were approved last night by the Corte Madera Park and Recreation Commission.

The commission recommended the town council approve the plans, submitted by chairman Nancy Lubamersky for the six-member youth committee appointed in July.

The committee recommended the center be open on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights, the hours to be determined by the town recreation director. One part of the center should be set aside for study, discussion, speakers and performers, with the other section for more active events, the committee recommended.

The center is to be created by remodeling the former Corte Madera Sanitary District office at 500 Tamalpais Boulevard.

The commission discussed proposed rules for use of Town Park and named commissioners Juliette Kraeger and Marritt J. W. Wieder to study the regulations and report at the Nov. 15 meeting.

The commission also endorsed the Marin County program of senior citizen recreation.

Litter Talk Slated

Members of the Progressive Club of Stinson Beach will discuss "the mess we're in — litter in the streets and weekend traffic congestion" with county and state police and roads officials at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Stinson Beach Community Center.

San Franciscans Defend Ferry Idea

Picking up largely where they left off last week, four representatives of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District board squared off today on whether ferryboats or buses, or both, would best serve Marinites commuting to San Francisco.

As they did at a meeting of the bridge board last Friday, when an 8-3 vote launched the district into the ferry business, William C. Blake and Stephen C. Leonoudakis, San Francisco representatives on the board, argued before a KTIM radio audience that more buses were not welcome in San Francisco and that ferryboats would move Marin commuters faster and more economically.

But Michael Wornum and Dean N. Meyer, two of Marin's three representatives on the bridge board, countered that an integrated system of buses and boats was the best interim plan while a rapid transit system was studied — as originally recommended by the bridge district's general manager, Dale W. Leuhring.

The four appeared on KTIM's "Sounding Board" program.

Leonoudakis and Wornum, who is also a Marin supervisor, were the principal antagonists, with Leonoudakis saying he was appalled at the Marin proposal to "put those big mother buses into Sansome Street every 30 seconds at the evening rush hour when the traffic is not only bumper to bumper, it's fender to fender."

He asserted that San Francisco would not tolerate more "fuming, smelling, puffing, miserable buses."

(Luehring had proposed replacing Greyhound with a fleet of 132 buses the first year of operation under a crash program that would cost about $7.7 million.)

Claiming that a new bus system would lose $1 million in its first year of operation with additional subsidies required in the future, Leonoudakis said a ferry system linking the San Francisco ferry building with a terminal in Corte Madera would pay its own way. He urged that Marin begin development of a bus system to feed the ferryboats, terminal access roads and parking facilities.

Wornum asserted that if San Francisco were so interested in halting further downtown traffic it should not have approved the southern crossing of San Francisco Bay and might consider a plan to ban all private cars in the downtown area.

He said he was not opposed to a ferry system, but explained, "How do I tell persons in Ross, Fairfax and Novato that ferries are good for them? We want to bring commuters to where they want to go.

To Leonoudakis' contention that new buses would not draw Marin commuters out of their "four-wheel alter egos — not with a crowbar —" Wornum suggested that the bridge district experiment with a fare-free bus ride while doubling tolls to private autos.

Meyer argued that San Francisco was ignoring planning experts in both Marin and San Francisco who urged a new bus system.

Blake said huge subsidies poured into the municipal bus system by the City of San Francisco proved buses were an outmoded and expensive transit means.

Nixon Ships Call Heeded By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon's call for a massive ship construction program—300 vessels in 10 years—to rebuild the aging and dwindling U.S. merchant fleet was promised speedy action by Congress.

In fact Congress authorized an unrequested $130 million for shipbuilding subsidies last week in anticipation of Nixon's call.

As outlined by congressional sources before today's formal announcement, Nixon's plan would:

Subsidize construction of 30 modern ships a year for 10 years to double U.S. shipcargo capacity and hopefully improve the U.S. balance of payments standing by $2 billion.

Require major expansion of the American shipbuilding industry, which would have to invest $4 billion in the program, $1.2 billion for bigger and more shipyards.

Reduce or eliminate the near $200 million annual federal subsidy for shipping operations by making the new ships up to five times more efficient than the hundreds of World War II-vintage ships now in the U.S. fleet.

Reduce the federal subsidy for ship construction from more than 50 per cent to about 35 per cent through mass production under multiship contracts.

Rep. Edward A. Garmatz, D-Md., chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee said 600 of the present 955 U.S. cargo ships are obsolete and he will press for immediate hearings and quick congressional action on Nixon's plan.

The American flag ship fleet has been losing ground to countries that can build and man them cheaper since the end of World War II and now ranks behind England, Japan, the Soviet Union, Liberia and Norway.

American ships carried 57.6 per cent of U.S. foreign trade shortly after the war. By 1968 the figure had dropped to 6.4 per cent.

The fleet includes 655 freighters, 274 tankers and 25 freight-passenger ships. Ninety per cent of the bulk carriers and 50 per cent of the tankers are more than 20 years old.

Tobacco Firms Lose A Million Customers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —More than one million American men and women quit smoking cigarettes in 1968, according to a new government report.

The Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Department is scheduled to release the report in several weeks. It is based on Census Bureau questions asked of households across the country.

The report will show that both older persons and youngsters increasingly are giving up cigarette smoking, that the proportion of young persons who have never smoked is increasing and that women smokers are less inclined to quit than men.

HEW declined to release the 1968 data but officials confirmed the findings.

"Tobacco Situation," a quarterly publication of the Agriculture Department, said in its September issue that cigarette use per person is declining.

"The smoking-age population is increasing," it said. "But increasing cigarette prices and the smoking-health publicity are reducing cigarette use per person and possibly limiting the number of smokers."

"Tobacco Situation" said cigarette consumption per person 18 and older this year is estimated 2 1-2 per cent below 1963 when 4,168 cigarettes (209 packs) were smoked.

"This would be about the same rate of decline as last year when consumption fell 2.2 per cent," the publication said.

HEW said recently that from June 1966 to August 1967 the number of former smokers of both sexes, aged 17 and over, increased from 14.4 million to 15.5 million. The 1968 report will show nearly 17 million former smokers.

The Census Bureau defines a person as a former smoker if he has smoked at least 100 cigarettes during his life but was not smoking cigarettes at the time of the interview. He is considered as having never smoked if he reported he has not smoked 100 cigarettes during his life.

For the population 17 and older, the percentage of smokers—those smoking cigarettes at the time of the interview—has declined from 39.6 in 1966 to 39.1 in 1967 and 37.7 in 1968. Similarly, the percentage increase in former smokers rises each year.

Much of the smoking data gathered in the 1968 survey of 52,500 households has not been tabulated. This includes the answers to questions about pipe and cigar smoking and other tobacco uses.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

Mrs. J. B. writes: "Our 10-year-old son steals and on several occasions has been caught. We punish him and make him return the atricles, but he won't stop. He is a loner and not so friendly or cooperative as are his sisters and brother.

"Nothing has worked and my husband has given up and I'm about to do the same. He is no good and perhaps he should be in reform school."

MANY CHILDREN steal once or twice while growing up, but it seldom becomes a problem. However, when it continues, there usually is an emotional interaction between parents and child.

Take him to an understanding pediatrician because there are many possible causes, including a poor relationship with the mother or father.

Why does he steal? I assume the lad is not a member of a gang or trying to save face or buy friends. A younger child may filch something that appeals to him but is denied him by his parents.

Perhaps he lacks a small allowance to buy candy, a baseball, or a pocket knife. Others steal because they are fascinated by certain items. Or, perhaps they are lonely and crave a little excitement.

BUT IN MOST instances, the youngster is trying to punish his mother or father for being rejected. His reaction may be anger and hostility. He is getting even because the parents are making him feel "small" or inadequate. Often an unpleasant incident triggers the episode.

To make matters worse, he may deliberately get caught to get their goats.

The physician usually can determine whether a 10-year old steals because he is lonely or whether he is stealing out of anger and resentment. These are correctable causes. All too often, the parents express their anger openly and quickly but do not allow the child the same privilege.

THE PARENTS should never tacitly encourage stealing by allowing the child to keep the stolen item. By the same token they should not overlook it just because he won't admit guilt, despite oberwhelming evidence.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

HE INSISTS ON GLASSES

M. P. writes: My husband has worn glasses for 10 years. He went to an eye specialist recently for a checkup and the doctor told him he doesn't need to wear the glasses for the time being. But my husband insists he can't see without them. Please advise.

REPLY

The mind plays strange tricks. Individuals who insist that they need glasses usually shop around until they find a physician who agrees with them. Let your husband decide whether he wants another opinion.

DEGENERATIVE DISEASE

H. H. writes: What is a degenerative disease?

REPLY

These diseases differ from infections and cancers in that there is gradual deterioration of the tissues and cells due to wear and tear or poor circulation.

REUSABLE TEA BAG

H. P. D. writes: I like weak tea, so I steep the bag for a few seconds and then use it over and over again. Is this a harmful practice?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge.

good aim

The I-J's on the way—and so is he!

Perhaps it's the daily habit of delivering the news right to your home that gives I-J carriers, like him, a sense of direction in life.

Maybe it's the feeling of managing a route, where each boy is his own boss. Or the idea of collecting and banking money each month. Or maybe the channeling of energy into responsible effort . . . serving others.

It could be the solid training, too, which these boys receive from our experienced circulation advisors.

But one thing's certain: these boys develop AIMS and GOALS often a lot larger than the boys themselves. The aim to serve . . . the goal of a college education, for instance . . . with savings to attain it. They discover that delivering the paper on time, in place, can lead to the larger ends of independence and initiative.

TV REVIEW

The Down And Outers Make Good

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—With the New York Mets now the world champions (of the United States), it figured this would be a good month for people who have been counted down and out.

In television, at any rate, it is.

For example, the Smothers Brothers, who were fired by CBS-TV, have latched on to an hour video special on another network. Their show will be broadcast on NBC-TV Feb. 16.

Then there is Jim Aubrey, the former network president who also was fired by CBS-TV. He has been made the key working boss of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and will surely control production.

ALL NETWORKS

In short, he now heads up a studio that, among other things, will try to sell television shows to all networks, including the one that fired him.

And then there is Muhammad Ali, the former Cassius Clay, who is the ex-world heavyweight champion. Ali has been having his problems for some time now, but you can see him Saturday as a commentator for the American-Russian amateur boxing competition on ABC-TV's "Wide World Of Sports," from Las Vegas.

The Mets, by the way, will be among those saluted in an April 2 NBC-TV special, "It Couldn't Be Done," which will focus on American achievements that were "thought to be out of reach." According to a press release, the Mets will be honored along with the Panama Canal, Mount Rushmore and the Golden Gate Bridge.

THE IMPOSSIBLE

"The idea of the program," says the producer, "is to single out Americans responsible for doing things which everybody said were impossible."

Now that is gorgeous creative thinking. If nothing else, it gives me the courage to show that I can stretch an angle at least as well. Let's see: As I recall, my angle on this piece was losers who came back on television. All right:

On Nov. 9, on ABC-TV, Richard Burton plays the illfated agent of "The Spy Who Came In From the Cold," on the Sunday movie.

On Nov. 2, a "lost" piano work by Franz Schubert, whose manuscript was discovered last year in an attic in an Austrian town, will be played by Lili Kraus on CBS-TV's "Camera Three."

According to reports, Lyndon Johnson, who announced during last year's primary campaigns that he would not run again for the presidency, will be the subject of a number of autobiographical CBS-TV documentaries covering his 38 years in public office.

Well, at any rate, it's October, and let's drink to the Mets. They have enlivened television, as you can see, with more than baseball. And everybody's got an angle.

Oakland Taps Negro To Run School System

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—School Supt. Ercell Watson seems likely to become the first Negro to head a major California school system.

Watson has been offered the job of superintendent of schools in Oakland, at an advance of $14,000 over his present $28,000-a-year salary. He is scheduled to meet the president of the Oakland school board Monday.

The board has already voted to offer Watson the $42,000-a-year post.

If he accepts, Watson would head a school district with a population which is more than 50 per cent black.

Watson came to Trenton in July 1968, from West Chester, Pa., where he served as assistant superintendent of schools.

His stay has been marred by student disruptions, administrative difficulties and parent and teacher criticism of proposed sex education and sensitivity programs.

Fete Set For Completion Of Big Bore

GORMAN (UPI) — A dynamite blast and a champagne party today marked "holeing through" of the five-mile long Carley W. Porter Tunnel which will help bring northern California water to southern California.

The pythonic shaft through the steep Tehachapi Mountains, which trapped 17 workers in a cave-in two years ago, is the longest of four tunnels what with the aid of pumps will bring water south.

A cave-in just before Christmas, 1967, trapped the construction workmen for two days, but no deaths were caused by the massive project. There were 28 injuries, however, among the work crew which averaged 160 men—80 at each heading in three shifts.

The two operations meet 900 feet below the surface—four years after the project began. The workmen used laser beams to guide the course and grade of the tunnel. When the gap was narrowed to 32 feet, a "pilot hole" showed an error of only one-eighth inch in grade.

When finally lined with concrete to a 20-foot diameter, water will flow through with a total capacity of 120 million gallons an hour.

The tunnel, considered one of the most difficult tunneling projects in California, is 900 feet below the surface but three times in the complex through the mountains, the aqueduct comes to the surface at known fault zones.

Mobile Homes Freeze Proposed

The Lynwood Park Improvement Association board has voted to support a moratorium on more mobile homes in Novato, according to secretary Barbara Munden.

The board voted Tuesday to have a representative attend the city council and city planning meetings to keep abreast of the mobile home developments, she said.

The board will also contact the city public works department to see about getting curbs on the islands on Sunset Parkway and improvement to the street lights.

It set its next meeting for 8 p.m. Nov. 19 at Lynwood School.

Dump Site Gets Delay On Pollution Action

Court action to force the operator of San Quentin Disposal Site to stop water pollution was postponed two weeks yesterday by Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales after the operator agreed to eliminate the problem.

Bales had been asked on Monday by the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board to seek an injunction against the San Rafael dump, and the agreement was reached in a one-hour, closed citation hearing held in Bales' office.

Roger B. James, the regional board's senior engineer, said he was satisfied with the agreement, which called for filling in a leaky area at the dump. The board's staff had objected that water leaking into the "cell" became "black and odoriferous" after contacting trash.

Thre operator of the dump, Martin Bramante of Belvedere, also agreed to pump dry another, larger cell after treating the water in it with chemicals to neutralize its toxicity, Bales reported.

Bales said that the dump already was in "much better shape" than it had been when the regional board issued its cease and desist order on Oct. 16.

If Bramante meets the Nov. 5 deadline, Bales said, "I'm not going to take any further action." But if the deadline is not met, Bales added, "I will seek an injunction if the regional board asks me to."

Ken Still Is Golf's Most Happy Fella

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ken Still is golf's most happy fella.

The world is his oyster, particularly the world of sports. And that, incidentally, isn't restricted to golf. He's an avid follower of all sports, particularly the pros.

The happy-go-lucky guy, a pro since 1961, made a breakthrough this year when he scored his first tour victory, in the Florida Citrus Open.

He followed that with another triumph, holding off a drive by Gary Player for the Milwaukee Open title. And he recently teamed with Gene Littler to win the CBS Golf Classic, a team affair filmed at the Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio which will be released later this winter.

And he was one of the top candidates for the $20,000 first prize when he teed off today in the first round of the San Francisco Open.

"I'm playing real good, just super," Still said. He had a sparkling 67, four under par on the 6,677 yard Harding Park Golf Club course in yesterday's pro-am to back him up.

"I missed the cut at the Sahara last week," he said, "but there's a reason for that. I was just pooped after winning the CBS Golf Classic."

The cold, windy, overcast weather bothers him not at all.

Some of his fellow pros criticize his easy, relaxed approach to the game. But carefree Ken goes his own way.

"I play my golf, but there's time for other things, too," he said.

The stories about him are legion.

He once charged on to a basketball court to challenge 7-foot-1 Wilt Chamberlain and was advised to "get out of here before I stuff you through the basket."

He's a personal friend of many of the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Chicago Cubs. During the baseball season he keeps a sharp eye out for spectators who may have a radio turned to a game and will interrupt his round to ask the score and inning.

On football weekends he heads down the fairway with a transistor in his pocket, listening to a game.

He's a very gregarious guy and is a great check-snatcher—just won't let anyone pick up a check. And this year he's picking up more and more of the type you cash instead of pay.

Women Get Their Chance At Revenge

Okay, ladies, here's your chance for revenge. One of your greatest enemies is moving to Marin County next month. You might want to picket his home. Or drive by and stick out your tongue at the old meanie.

I refer to Mr. William N. Creasy Jr. who has purchased a home in Kent Woodlands. Mr. Creasy is president of the Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League, but that's not why you ladies should despise him.

He is also president of Trans National Communications, Inc. with an extensive background as television producer of sporting events.

That profession has made him responsible for countless unfinished household chores. Because of him, weeds have run amok, petunias have perished unplanted, fences have gone unmended and attics and garages have remained cluttered while beer cans and peanut shells have piled high in front of the video box. You've heard of Mr. Clean? Well he's Mr. Dirty to the feminime eye.

A List Of Achievements

In short, Mr. Creasy indirectly has been the corespondent in more divorce cases than a legion of gigolos. All this because he has produced such classics as the first pro football Super Bowl game, five runnings of the Kentucky Derby and on four occasions the entire Triple Crown of thoroughbred racing, baseball's Game of the Week, soccer, rodeos, bowling, auto racing, skiing, college football and basketball, Wide World of Sports, American Football League games, and NHL action, including the Stanley Cup playoffs.

While the housewives of America may take a dim view of Mr. Creasy's accomplishments, I think we men should give him a rousing welcome to Marin. We can rent a big hall with a giant television screen tuned in to a beer commercial and have foot races to the refrigerator.

Welcome, Mr. Creasy, man's best friend.

Long Trip To See 49ers

JIM CALLAN, long-time 49er fan who deserted us some time ago for business on the East Coast, could stand it no longer and moved back to the Bay Area last month. "I drove 3,100 miles just to get back to see the 49ers," he said the other day. The way the 49ers have performed, that's a long way to drive. In an Edsel.

CHET CARLISLE, the ex-Tamalpais High School District superintendent (1953-69), has been presented a lifetime pass to all Marin County Athletic League contests which I'm sure he'll enjoy. Chet's a jock at heart, having won All-American cage credentials at U.C. Berkeley in his prime.

A Hard Name To Pronounce

COLLEGE OF MARIN students have trouble pronouncing Thongchai Sutivej so they just call the student from Thailand "Ping Pong." and for good reason: Thong was his country's table tennis champion for two years plus holder of many other crowns, including 10 tournament titles in California last year.

CUTE PUBLICITY release from San Francisco State College describing the Gator football team's injury problems:

"With less than 80 shopping days left until Christmas, American industry is starting to flood the market with toys of all sorts in an effort to separate harried shoppers from their money. San Francisco State is doing its share. It seems the Gator football team has developed a doll. Yes, that's right, it's called a Gator Quarterback Doll — wind it up and it gets hurt."

Kickers Drill For Stanford

In the six straight Bruin victories, Carver has returned punts 231 yards and kickoffs 159 yards. The only team that had any success in stopping him was California which either kicked away from him or booted the ball very high.

Rich Keller, Stanford defensive halfback who sprained an ankle slightly in practice, should be recovered in time for the Bruin game Saturday.

49ERS GO HAND IN HAND

Barry Denies Surgery

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Rick Barry, standout forward of the Washington Caps, denied reports he would be operated on for a knee injury suffered in an American Basketball Association contest with the Carolina Cougars last night.

OPERATION

Barry later said, "It looks like a lateral cartilege," on the other side of the injured knee this time. The former University of Miami all-America was operated on for a popped cartilage earlier this year. He denied that immediate surgery was planned.

"I don't know how that rumor got started," Barry said. He said he wouldn't tknow for sure until he was examined by the team's physician, Dr. Stanford Levine, in Washington today.

POSSIBLE

He said one of the doctors who examined him immediately after the injury said it was possible to play without cartilage if his ligaments were strong enough to support him.

Speaking from his motel room, Barry indicated he hoped to recover from the injury and get back into competition as soon as possible. There was no hint of retirement, but it was clear he was a disappointed athlete.

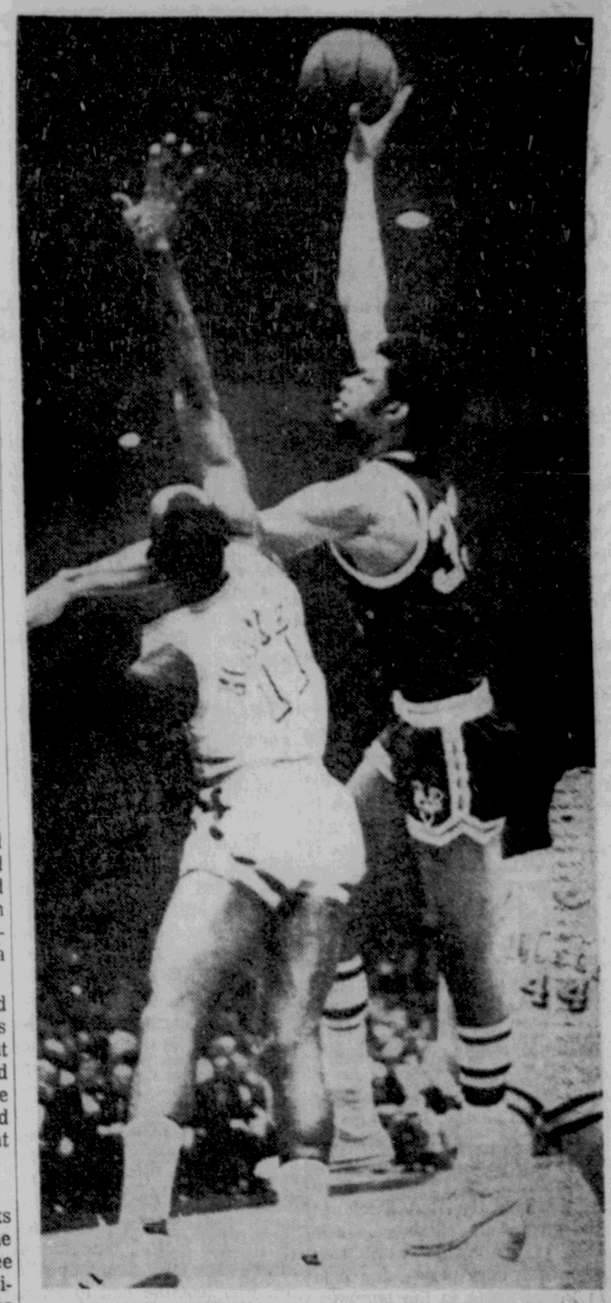
"I'm extremely frustrated at the way things have gone the past six months," he said. "I don't know about the future, right now I'm so frustrated and disappointed."

LED OAKS

Barry led the Oakland Oaks, now the Washington Caps, to the ABA championship last season with a 34-point-per-game average despite an ailing knee.

He also once led the NBA in scoring at San Francisco.

After receiving emergency treatment for last night's injury, he returned to the bench and watched his team bow to the Cougars, 122-91.



UP AND OVER—Lew Alcindor of the Milwaukee Bucks lets go with a hook shot over the outstretched hand of Elvin Hayes of San Diego Rockets. (AP Wirephoto).

UNSTOPPABLE

Lew Scores 36 Against Hayes

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lew Alcindor met former collegiate rival Elvin Hayes for the first time as a pro last night and the new giant of play-for-pay basketball was virtually unstoppable.

Only personal fouls could halt the 7-foot-1½ rookie center of the Milwaukee Bucks as big Lew was disqualified with his sixth with 3:10 left in the game with the San Diego Rockets. But Milwaukee won anyway, 115-102.

PRO HIGH

Alcindor scored his pro high in three games of 36 points, mostly on short hook or jump shots over the outstretched hands of the 6-9½ Hayes.

The Bucks (3-0) led all the way and the closest the Rockets (1-2) could come was three points while Alcindor and Hayes were both on the bench. The National Basketball Association game was seen by a near-capacity crowd of 13,643 at the Sports Arena.

Hayes, who played on the Houston team that broke the Alcindor-led UCLA Bruins' long winning streak in 1967 managed 21 points in 38 minutes of play, well under his average. Lew, playing 42 minutes, also outrebounded Big E, 19-15.

'SUPERIOR'

"Lew is a superior ballplayer in every respect," Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello said. "Hayes played him hard but there's no question in my mind who's the greatest."

Alcindor, a bit upset over fouling out for the second straight game, had a couple of his jump shots blocked by Hayes, then made an adjustment.

"I'm still learning how to shoot on the big centers in this league," he said. "In the first part of the game I let him see too much of the ball. Elvin has great jumping ability."

Alcindor also switched almost exclusively to his hook shot, pouring in 20 first-half points.

NCAA MEETING

San Jose State Draws Probation

KANSAS City, Mo. (UPI)—A national limit on athletic scholarships in football and basketball has been proposed by Dr. Willis M. Tate, president of Southern Methodist University, to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

The proposal is an answer to the rising costs of intercollegiate athletics. Dr. Tate, speaking as a member of the NCAA's long-range planning committee, said the rising costs are "the greatest threat to intercollegiate athletics today."

Dr. Tate made his presentation to the NCAA Council, which concluded its fall meeting yesterday. Only immediate result was the formation of a special committee to study Dr. Tate's report.

The report called for a national limit of 30 grants-in-aid in football per year and six in basketball.

Another item in Dr. Tate's report called for a code of conduct for athletes. The NCAA already has a code of conduct for coaches and officials. The Athletes' code would be set up with the help of students.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions yesterday put San Jose State's track program and Marshall University's (Huntington, W. Va.) football program on one-year probations.

San Jose State was cited because Olympic sprint champion John Carlos and pole vaulter Sam Caruthers participated in an unsanctioned meet, the Orange County Invitational, on June 14.

San Jose State will not be allowed to participate in the track championships in 1970, as a result of the probation.

Marshall's penalty was little more than a slap on the wrist since the Thundering Herd has lost 26 straight football games.

Marshall will not be allowed to compete in any post-season football competition and will not be eligible to appear on any NCAA telecasts.

The council said Marshall's penalty would have been much stiffer if university President Roland H. Nelson Jr. had not instigated the investigation of his own athletic department.

Late Shot By Mullins Is Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — San Francisco's Warriors, who collected their first victory of the season on a last minute jump shot, meet the undefeated New York Knicks tonight.

The Knicks lead the National Basketball Association's east division with a 5-0 record while the Warriors are 1-1 in the west.

Jeff Mullins was the man responsible for the Warriors' 94-93 triumph last night against the Atlanta Hawks.

With just seven seconds remaining to play, he threw in the basket that won the game. The two-pointer ran his total for the evening to 24.

High man with 25 points was the Hawks' Lou Hudson, who had thrown in a field goal just 10 seconds before Mullins won the game.

After Mullins made his shot, the Hawks had shots by Hudson and Bill Bridges, but both missed.

U.S. Bids For Both Winter, Summer Games

DUBROVNIK, Yugoslavia (AP) — The United States challenged long-standing tradition today in pressing its bid to host both the Summer and Winter Olympic Games in 1976 as part of America's bicentennial celebration.

Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty was expected to arrive at a meeting of Olympic officials here to bolster his city's bid for the Summer Games. Denver is bidding for the Winter Games.

The Americans feel their bicentennial will help convince Olympic officials to break with the tradition of awarding the Summer and Winter Games to different nations.

The bids were made to members of national Olympic committees and the International Olympic Committee executive committee meeting here to shape the agenda for full IOC and international sports federations meetings in Amsterdam next May.

The IOC usually votes first on the summer site before deciding who will host the Winter Games.

Robert Pringle, president of the Denver Candiature Committee, said that if Los Angeles wins its bid, "it doesn't mean we'll pack up and go home."

John Kilroy, who heads the Los Angeles delegation, said his city already had 80 per cent of the facilities necessary to hold the Summer Games and that remaining facilities have been planned.

Montreal is considered to be Los Angeles' chief rival but the Canadian city is reported to be having difficulty getting government funds to build necessary facilities.

Vancouver, B.C., figures that if Los Angeles gets the summer Games, Vancouver will beat out Denver for the Winter Games, according to Gordon Sid Young, an official with the Vancouver delegation.

This Is How They Wrote It In 1869

Baseball celebrated its centennial year in grand style. There couldn't have been more popular nationwide champions than the Mets. But what was baseball like in its first year? Here is an article from the Cincinnati Daily Gazette of Oct. 19, 1869, that delightfully brings to life the game as it was played 100 years ago:

"The weather bulletin promised us a fair day for the game and it was fair — to middling. That is to say, the sun shone once in a while, but not enough to mitigate the severity of a raw autumnal day. But the lovers of baseball cared little for the weather.

"IF THE ATHLETICS and the Red Stockings could meet on the Union Grounds to strive for the victory, they could be there to see. And so from 12 o'clock until half-past 2 a steady stream of human beings poured through the gates, until at least five thousand had assembled. And from half-past 2 until 5 they sat on hard benches and the cold grounds, unmindful of aching feet and stiffened fingers and blue noses, absorbed in the magnificent struggle going on before them.

"The excitement over the game was intense. It was known that the Athletics had come out here to break, if possible, the continuous chain of victories with which the Red Stockings had girdled the continent. Their best players, who were sick when our boys played the club in Philadelphia in the summer, were present in good condition, and it was conceded that the Nine was as strong a one as they had ever sent to a field.

"IT CANNOT be denied that there was some anxiety on the part of many of the friends of the Cincinnati Nine, and the progress of the game for the first few innings was watched with the deepest solicitude. But they need not have been solicitous.

"The Red Stockings never played better on the Union Grounds than they did in a 17 to 12 conquest yesterday of the Athletics, their fielding and batting being almost faultless. Nothing but the excellent qualities of their opponents in the field prevented them from running up a much heavier score.

THE GAME

"Game was called at twenty minutes past two o'clock. The Cincinnatis won the toss and sent their opponents to the bat.

First Inning

"Athletics — Reach went to his first on called balls, and got his second on a passed ball. McBride sent one past Waterman, and made his first, Reach coming home. Cuthbert made a beautiful strike to right field, on which he made his second, McBride going to third. Fisler popped one into the air, which fell into Waterman's fingers and staid (sic) there. Sensenderfer sent a magnificent one to center field, which Harry Wright fielded in handsomely. Sensenderfer got to his first, Cuthbert to his third and McBride coming home. Sensenderfer then tried to steal his second, but was cut off and slain on the road by Allison, who sent the ball to Sweasy. McMullen sent one whizzing along the ground to center field and took his first, Cuthbert comin in. Foran knocked a strong high one to Harry Wright, who took it well, putting the side out."

ALCINDOR

FOULS

"It seems like I'm getting worse," Lew said of his performance. "I keep fouling out. I fouled out only once or twice at UCLA."

Asked if Hayes gave him more trouble than other centers, Alcindor said:

"They're all giving me trouble, but I haven't played against them all. I have to work hard all the time, it's no vacation out there."

Lew hit 15 of 26 field goal attempts, all from within six feet of the basket. Hayes made only 9 of 31, many from long range in his attempt to bring Alcindor outside.

Orioles' Coach Joins A's Staff

OAKLAND (AP) — Charlie Lau, a member of the coaching staff of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles, will join the Oakland Athletics as a coach next year.

The A's announced yesterday that Lau, the Orioles' hitting coach, had been signed to a one-year contract and would probably be the club's third-base coach next season.

Riverside Grand Prix Trials Start

RIVERSIDE (AP) — The Canadian-American Challenge Cup might better be named the Hulme-McLaren Cup. But 41 other drivers hope to loosen the New Zealanders' grip on the title today as practice opened for Sunday's $70,000 Times Grand Prix.

Bruce McLaren and teammate Denis Hulme have won all nine Can-Am races this year but they will still receive a severe test in the 12th annual 200-mile classic at Riverside International Raceway, the next-to-last race in the series.

McLaren leads the series with 145 points, just five ahead of Hulme, while third-place Chuck Parsons of Chicago has but 62. Hulme, the defending Can-Am champion who won last Sunday's Mexico Grand Prix, has never won at Riverside.

McLaren has won the last two on the 3.3-mile course and is favored to make it three in a row — but Indianapolis 500 winner Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., is expected to offer the most serious challenge in a modified McLaren powered by a 494 cubic inch aluminum Ford engine.

"The bigger engine should definitely help us on a fast course like Riverside," contends Andretti, who finished fourth behind McLaren but on the same lap as him at Laguna Seca two weeks ago.

Other top prospects in the race are Jo Siffert of Switzerland, fourth in the Can-Am series with 46 points, who will be in a Porsche 917, and another New Zealander, Chris Amon, with 39, in a seven-liter Ferrari 612.

Blancas Wins In S.F. Golf Pro-Am Play

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Homero Blancas has given the touring golf pros something to shoot at as they tee off in the $100,000 San Francisco Open today, but defending champion Bill Casper is lurking right behind him.

Blancas had the best round in the pro-am competition over the Harding Park Course yesterday, shooting a six-under-par 65 and winning $500.

en Still, who shot a 67, led his team to the pro-am title with a net score of 55. Elmer Critchlow, Bob Newton and Ed Fickle were the amature's on the team.

Behind Blancas and Still were six golfers at 68. They were Casper, Don Bies, Frank Beard, Bert Yancey, Bob Lunn and Howie Johnson.

Shipes Wins By Decision

LAS VEGAS (UPI)—Charley Shipes, 148 of Oakland scored a unanimous but unpopular 10-round decision over Cipriana Hernandez, 156, of San Diego, in the featured fight at the Silver Slipper Ballroom last night.

Shipes scored with stinging lefts to the face and right crosses to the jaw through the first eight rounds to build up a sizeable lead over Hernandez. However, the loser rallied strongly in the final two rounds and the decision was greeted with a chorus of boos.

There were no knockdowns but Hernandez was bleeding from the nose and Shipes from the mouth at the finish. Judges Art Lurie and Mike Petrovich gave the fight to Shipes 47-45. Judge Ralph Mosa scored it 46-45 for Shipes.

Another 1,000-Yard Year For Tomales' Ron Petroni?

By GARY TISCHLER

It may be a small school out in the hinterlands, and its football teams play against nobody ever heard of, but Tomales High School seems to be a regular fountain of record-breaking backs.

This year's (and last year's) edition of the Tomales High School super-back is Ron Petroni, 5-11, 160 pounds, gunning for a 1,000-yard year for the second season in a row.

He's already supplanted a former Tomales star, Gary Dellepere in the rushing record books with his 1,000-yard plus last season. Dellepere, who still holds the Tomales varsity record of 101 points scored, rushed for 819 and 860 yards in his two varsity seasons. Last year, Petroni rushed for 1,001 yards and so far this season he's racked up 708 yards with another four games remaining.

He missed the scoring mark by three points last season, scoring 98. This season, he's got another crack at it, having already scored 56 points in five games.

Petroni gave people some idea of things to come as a sophomore on the junior varsity. His jayvee statistics are fantastic — 1,475 yards rushing and 154 points scored.

Incidentally, the Mafia influence in Tomales is even bigger than we suspected. In addition to Petroni and quarterback Dennis Rodoni, there's Mike Velloza, Bob Borello, Joe Giamma and Gino Luchesi on the football team. Mamma Mia!

MOVE OVER, JOB DEPT. — Once upon a time, Drake High School had the makings of a more than adequate football season. That was somewhere early this fall, but look what's happened since then to the proud Pirates. Not only have they lost four games in five tries, but they've lost top-ranked players by the bushel.

First Bob Sutherland, the Marin County Athletic League's leading rusher last season, was knocked out for the season with an injury after leading the Pirates in scoring and rushing through three games.

Then John Loane, a backup fullback and great kicker, who helped beat San Rafael with a field goal, was knocked out with an injury.

This week, more bad news followed. Starting center Rod Warnhoff is out for the year with tonsillitis and Jim Dominguez, a possible all-league wide receiver, was dropped from the squad because of disciplinary reasons.

THE PLOT THICKENS — Drake High School's Class C basketball team now leads the league race by a half game after a 31-29 hair-raiser over Marin Catholic Tuesday. And Redwood, which met Marin Catholic today at Redwood, moved into a tie for second with the Wildcats after a 54-41 rout of Terra Linda. Drake is 6-2, Marin Catholic and Redwood are 5-2, with both of Marin Catholic's losses coming at the hands of Drake.

TERRA LINDA CASUALTY — That's coach Don Lucas, who missed a large part of the week at school with a flu. But reports are that nothing would keep Lucas from showing up for Saturday's game at Novato, 2 p.m.

REPORT FROM NOTRE DAME — Here's an inside view of last week's titanic Notre Dame-Southern Cal football clash, from Father John Heaney of Marin Catholic, who attended the game in South Bend: "It was a fantastic ballgame. It was all USC in first half, while Notre Dame really took over in the second half. USC has a fine football team, and a tremendously quick defensive line. Their linemen were quicker than some of the Notre Dame backs. But the Notre Dame players still felt that a tie was like kissing your sister — they'll settle for the tie, but they'd rather have won."

Tennis Grand Prix Planned

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis players will be shooting for $2 million in prize money on a world circuit next year, predicts Jack Kramer, and in a couple of years there will be an open Davis Cup.

The onetime tennis promoter stopped in New York yesterday to disclose features of a plan to organize a Grand Prix tournament setup with more than $1,500,000 in prize money and at least $229,000 bonus at the end of the season.

PURPOSE

"The purpose is to put overall tournament administration on an international level," Kramer told a press conference at the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association headquarters. "We cannot continue under-the-table payments to the pro promoters."

The principal pro promoters are George MacCall of Los Angeles, who heads the National Tennis League, and Lamar Hunt, the wealthy Texan who finances the World Championship Tennis, Inc. Together, they control the pros.

The promoters have threatened to boycott open tournaments unless given special fees for permitting use of their talent.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Tournament sponsors cannot afford to get involved in this kind of a merry-go-round," Kramer said. "If money is paid MacCall, smaller promoters or player agents may make similar demands."

Kramer's format calls for a minimum of 25 tournaments around the world with total prize money ranging from $25,000 to $75,000 and above. Each tournament would be compelled to contribute between $5,000 and $10,000 to a bonus fund to be awarded on a point standing at the end of the season.

POINTS

"Points would count more in established tournaments such as Wimbledon, Forest Hills and the French International at Paris," Kramer said. "A player would have to compete in at least 80 per cent of the events to qualify.

"Top prize would be $50,000, second $30,000, third $25,000 and on down to $4,000 for 16th place. This might increase as the game's popularity grows."

Kramer said he already had received full endorsement from the United States, France, Britain, Sweden, Italy and Belgium. "I am sure every tennis playing nation will come in," the ex-promoter added.

The project will be considered at a meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Federation in Brussels Dec. 5 at which time, Kramer said, a committee will be set up to run the international circuit.

Just Entitle It 'One More For The Road'

We bring you now the one-act fantasy entitled, "One More For The Road." The scene is the headquarters of Baseball, the office of the Franchise Traffic Control Commissioner. As we look in, his phone is ringing. He picks it up.

Commissioner: "Hello, Franchise Traffic Control here. This is the commissioner speaking. Are we moving the Seattle franchise? Wait a minute, let me look at my board. Yes. We are. Where? Well, where would you like it? What? well, I mean, where are you calling from? Puyallup? Let me see here. Yes. It'll be coming through there any minute. Just hang a sign, I'll wave it down. Make an offer for it. They'll listen. What? Well, it cost $10 million last year but that money has been divvied up around the league. They paid 175 grand for a lot of out-of-work ball players. You can get it at a markdown, say, $2 million. What?! You're just calling to protest the moving? You wouldn't give more than a nickel for it? (Pause) Well. . . what am I doing?! I'm weighing your offer. Will that be cash or check? Put it in writing and you'll hear from us in case Milwaukee is closed." Hangs up.

THE COMMISSIONER turns to his secretary. "Get me New York." he snaps. A moment later, his phone lights up. He grabs it.

Commissioner: Hello, Mike? Listen, Mike, we're moving the Yankees. What? Don't scream at me, Mike! I don't set policy around here. I just put wheels under it. Where to? Well, just a minute, the writing is a bit smudged. It's either Des Moines or Dubuque. Anyway, it's in Iowa. Tell you what. When you get there, just say, 'Joe sent me' What do you mean, you'd rather go to Milwaukee? Mike, you know our policy. We don't send established, sound franchises to Milwaukee. We send expansion ones, sick ones. We let Milwaukee fatten 'em up, put a solid base under 'em, then we ship 'em down South for a big fat soft drink contract. Milwaukee's just sort of our feeding pen. They LIKE baseball up there, don't ask me why. Now, get on the road and call me from Council Bluffs." Hangs up.

THE PHONE RINGS. He picks it up, scowls into it, then begins to purple with rage.

Commissioner: "Yes, Quigby! What!? Whaddaya mean, you got TWO franchises in Little Rock? Wait a minute! What year is this? 1969, right? OK, then the Cardinals are in Little Rock this year. What?! The Kansas City Royals are there, too?! Quigby! Dammit! Can't you guys get anything right?! The Royals are not due there till 1974. What do you do? Wait a minute. I got an offer here from a guy in Puyallup, a firm cash offer. What? No, I don't know where the hell it is. What difference would THAT make? We got 11 franchises on the road now and YOU'RE going to quibble over geography?" Bangs the phone down in the cradle. It rings promptly. H e gets unctuous.

COMMISSIONER: "Yes, Mr. O'Malley. What? Mr. Stoneham wants to move back to New York? Shea Stadium? Mr. O-Malley, PLEASE! Not till after they have the tickertape parade for the Mets! I mean, how would it look if we transferred the franchise halfway between Battery Park and City Hall in open convertibles! What? OF COURSE, I know who I'm talking to! (Sighs) All right, Mr. O'Malley, as soon as we get a bus free." Hangs up. Pushes the buzzer.

Commissioner: "Miss Cast? Call the dispatcher and tell him to put a red light on the board for the Mets and move them out. Which direction? I don't know. Just get them going. I'll make some calls. Bring me an Atlas. Also an aspirin. Just put a tag on them marked 'Occupant' or say, 'If lost please call the office of Baseball, Franchise Traffic Control Division." R e l e a s e s buzzer, Phone rings. Picks it up, begins to sob.

COMMISSIONER: "W h a d-daya mean, there's a six-bus pileup on the Pennsylvania Turn pike of colliding franchises?! And that we've caused a traffic jam on the Mew York Thruway?! There must be a mistake. The Boston Red Sox?! Where do they think THEY'RE going? I don't even have a requisition for them. In fact, I need that bus. I got 26 Mets mad as wet hens with confetti in their hair waiting right now at a loading dock in Queens." Hangs up. Puts his head in his hands and begins to sob. Picks up phone. Dials. Get an answer.

Commissioner: "Commissioner of Baseball? This is Franchise Traffic Control. Listen! This job is too much for one man. Or one computer. I'm just going to put the whole game on the Pennsylvania Central and see where it gets off. We'll draw lots. We've worn out 1,700 buses, 10,000 tires, and I got one whole fleet back in repair. I got the San Diego franchise going by mule train, and the Cardinals going West by covered wagon. I got three franchises marooned in a storm in the Yukon, and one of them on the way to Hawaii is unreported and presumed down in the Pacific. Get yourself a new boy, Commissioner. I haven't been home in weeks. I've been having sandwiches sent in for months. I'm gonna get a job clocking gypsy caravans or desert nomads."

Raiders Bone Up On Defenses

OALAND (AP) — Oakland's Raiders are boning up on their defenses as they prepare to play the San Diego Chargers a team that refused to share an American Football League record with them.

The Chargers, who hold the record of 15 straight victories set in the 1960-61 season, defeated Oakland last season after the Raiders had won 14 in a row.

Coach John Madden spent most of yesterday's practice on the defense which is aimed at stopping Chargers Dickie Post, who has averaged 5.3 yards a run, and John Hadl, who has ccompleted 53.8 per cent of his passes.

The game Sunday at San Diego will be televised nationally.

GAME TOMORROW

Sonoma Staters Hope To Rebound

Sonoma State College's Cossacks will be looking for history to repeat itself tomorrow when they host the San Francisco State JV's in a 7:30 p.m. contest at Analy High School field, Sebastopol.

The game had been originally scheduled for Saturday, but was changed as some of the J.V. players are reserves on the varsity which plays Cal at Davis Saturday.

SSC's football team, the first in the school's history, scheduled mainly Far West Conference junior varsity teams this season before joining the league on a varsity level in 1970. Twice, the C o s s a c k s have stepped out of their "league" and both times have suffered overwhelming defeats.

The latest was a 43-6 loss to Taft Junior C o l l e g e (Kern County) last Saturday night. This week, the Cossacks hope to spring back like they did after their first "non-league" encounter, a season-opening 65-0 loss to Arizona Western. The Cossacks won two straight over FWC junior varsity teams after the defeat, posting identical 21-7 wins over Cal State (Hayward) and Cal Aggies.

"They (Taft) were just like Arizona Western," commented Cossack coach Lloyd Helgeson after the loss. "We made a few mistakes that hurt but, even then we could have been in the ball game with a few breaks."

The Cossacks lost what looked like a touchdown in the first half when an official backed in to a Bill Cox aerial intended for SSC end Dave Dohm, all alone at the Taft 10-yard line. The ball hit the official in the head.

Helgeson said he was pleased with the strides his team has made since the season-opening loss and cited lineman Benny Guerra and backs Herm Manuel and Luther Nelson as examples.

"Guerra's really been tough in our last three games and I think his play has really helped the rest of our line," Helgeson aid. "Manuel has been outstanding and, although he didn't make any long breakaway runs against Taft (as he did in the Cossacks two wins), he still picked up yardage in key situations. Nelson has also done great job and the two of them give us a basis for our running game."

Helgeson s a i d quarterback Bill Cox has also come along as a passer with the help of ends Dohn and Jack Trujillo. Trujillo, who was the number two quarterback at the s e a s o n 's start, moved to a wide receiver post after the season-opener and won himself the job.

Another SSC standout is kicker Tom Hickman, who hadn't missed an extra point until his attempt at Taft was blocked. Prior to that, Hickmen had added the point to that, Hickman had added the point after each of SSC's six touchdowns.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

Perhaps your husband has criticized you — in a friendly way, of course — about starting the f a m i l y automobile with a sudden burst of power. For smoothness, in driving or bowling, you should start out slowly, then gradually build up speed. A "screeching," overly-fast bowling start will most certainly u p s e t your rhythm.

Nolan Hoping Brodie Will Be Okay Sunday

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — Coach Dick Nolan says he hopes John Brodie can play quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers Sunday against Baltimore despite a sore arm.

Brodies, who says because of an injury his arm is not strong enough for accurate passing, worked out with the 49ers Wednesday but isn't expected to pass again until Friday.

The 49ers have lost 13 straight times to Baltimore and their chances were not enhanced by the recovery of Colts quarterback Johnny Unitas, voted the Associated Press' player of the week for his work last Sunday against New Orleans.

Unitas, who missed most of last season because of an injury, completed 20 of 28 passes for 219 yards and two touchdowns against the Saints.

The 49er-Colt National Football League game will be played Sunday in Baltimore.

First Gal Jockey

FOUNTAIN, Colo. (AP) — Sandy Schleiffers became the first woman jockey in Colorado history. Five nights after she began riding at Pikes Peak Turf Club she won on Fair Career, which paid $58.80 for a $2 win ticket. For her 11 months in five nights Sandy also had two seconds. Then she left to ride at California's Hollywood Park.

How to live to be 175.

The almost unbelievable story of Jim Beam Bourbon. And the fascinating secrets of a family art that have been handed down from Beam to Beam since 1795.
by Ronald L. Phillips

A modest man is T. Jeremiah Beam. But he can't help but let out a smile of quiet satisfaction when he tells this one.

"Bernie Hurst, my wife's sister's boy, is our head chemist. Got all kinds of fancy machines and measures. Well, Bernie, he took a sample of Jim Beam we bottled last week and ran an analysis on it."

"Then I gave him a drop—a very little drop—of the oldest Beam Bourbon we have. Some my dad, Col. Jim Beam, put up in 1911."

"Well, Bernie, he darn near died. Why that 1911 Beam came out exactly as light and mellow as today's Jim Beam!"

"And, you know, if we had any of the Bourbon that old Jacob Beam made way back in 1795, I swear it'd come out the same way, too."

Since 1795 a member of the Beam family has always made Beam Bourbon.

175 YEARS BEHIND THE TIMES

Clermont, Kentucky, is just outside of Shepherdsville. Little more than a road sign inviting you to slow down for a mile or so. A few homes and buildings checkered on the rolling Kentucky countryside.

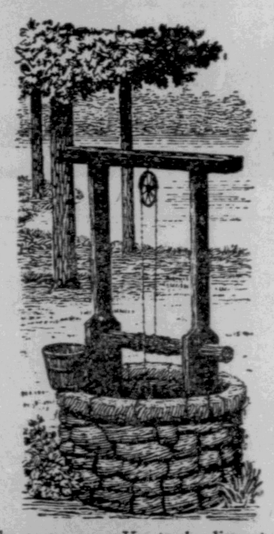
There's something almost magic about Clermont, though. The water is pure, limestone spring water. The soil is naturally sweet and rich. The weather is gentle and consistent from year to year. It's the kind of place that's as rare for making Bourbon as the grape country of France is for making wine.

The people in Clermont are special, too. They're human beings with a peculiar kind of sticktoitiveness.

When they find something good they hold fast to it. Forever if need be.

This is the country that Jacob Beam brought his family to in 1788. He started out farming. And discovered a way to make such a marvelously light and flavorful Bourbon his neighbors talked him into selling it.

His family still makes it the exact same way 175 years later.



The same pure Kentucky limestone water has been used in Beam Bourbon since 1795.

JACOB'S FIRST SECRET: START WITH A GOOD BEER

Jacob loved beer. But beer was rare in Kentucky during these post-revolutionary days. Most of the adults drank corn whiskey instead.

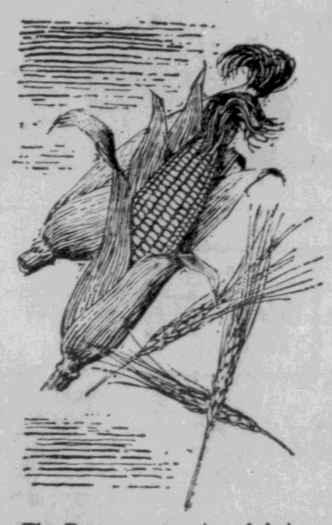
Jacob was intrigued by this whiskey. But he found it harsh and a little too raw. It varied a lot from one batch to the other, too.

One day, Jacob got an idea. The whiskey the folks were making was really a crude beer taken a few steps further. So, he concluded if he started with a light, mellow beer, he ought to end up with a new kind of smooth whiskey.

Jacob's farm land abounded with rich grain. He had a deep well full of fresh limestone water. So he started experimenting with home-grown ingredients.

He tried a number of different recipes of corn, rye and barley malt until he found the perfect marriage. He developed a unique strain of yeast. And then he put them together and let them ferment in great, open cyprus wood vats.

After three days he distilled this sweet-smelling mash, not once, but twice. Then he set it aside to mellow for a time.



The Beam secret recipe of choice grains has been passed down through six generations of Beams.

A SURPRISE FROM NATURE MAKES BEAM WHISKEY BEAM BOURBON

Once Jacob and his descendants began making whiskey in earnest, they needed something to age it in. Something big, yet strong enough to take the jostling wagons gave it going over the rutted Kentucky country roads.

They decided to use the most practical container of their day, a barrel. And they made it out of the sweet white oak trees that grew in majestic forests all about them.

The Beams soon learned that a bad barrel could spoil the best made whiskey. So they always used new white oak barrels. And they settled on a size that "one big man could handle by himself"

The Beam barrels do more than age Bourbon. They deliver a kind of wondrous natural flavor magic.

When a barrel is charred before it's filled, a layer of charcoal forms on the inside of the staves. This "filters" the whiskey over and over again. It gives Jim Beam its uniquely light, yet rich taste. And it gives Jim Beam a delicious natural golden amber color.

THE REAL SECRET OF JIM BEAM

Carl Beam lives right on the Clermont distillery grounds. He's on call 24 hours a day and rarely leaves the neighborhood. So particular is Carl about the handling of his yeast, his son, Baker, worked at his side for 10 straight years before Carl trusted him alone with the yeast.

Carl's other boy, David, also practices the Beam family art of making Bourbon. As does T. Jerry's nephew, Booker.

Some say it's Jacob Beam's perfect formula of natural grains. Some say it's the glorious limestone stream water. Others insist it's the rare yeast.

The Beams say it could be all of those things. But down deep they believe the real secret is their unyielding refusal to change things.

Jim Beam Bourbon is made by the same family, by the same formula, with the same quality as it was in 1795. But then, Jim Beam isn't just another Bourbon. It's truly a family art. As the Beams say: "The world's finest Bourbon since 1795."

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Oct. 23, the 296th day of 1969 with 69 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1915, some 2,500 women marched in New York City demanding the right to vote.

In 1942, the British Eighth Army launced an offensive at El Alamein, Egypt, to start the campaign which was to sweep the Axis forces out of North Africa.

In 1947, the State of Maine was declared a disaster area as forest fires caused damage estimated at $30 million.

In 1955, Ngo Dinh Diem was chosen to take over the South Vietnamese government in the country's first election. He later was assassinated.

A thought for the day: Carl Sandburg once said, "Time is a sandpile we run our fingers through."

Belvedere Sets Debris Box Test

A debris box for the disposal of cuttings and other waste materials will be placed at the Belvedere Fire Department by the city tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.

The box is being set out on an experimental basis to see if it will prove adequate to handle materials that will be banned from being burned in the ordinance that goes into effect Jan. 1.

If successful, the box will be placed at the firehouse, at 19 Community Road, during the last weekend of every month.

For Those Big Dividends, Always Watch For Spot Cards

On a bad day you can't afford to go out of doors without consulting your almanac, and you may land in the soup even if you stay indoors. Of course, you have to consult the right almanac, Poor Alfred's, where you will find this sage advice: Take care of the spot cards, and the aces and kings will take care of themselves.

DIAMOND LEAD

West opened the five of diamonds, and East won the first trick with the ace. East returned the queen of diamonds, and West carefully followed suit with the four to tell his partner that the lead had been from a five-card suit.

As it happened, this information was of only academic interest to East. Since he couldn't lead another diamond, East shifted to the jack of spades.

South took the king of spades and set to work on the clubs. West could take the ace of clubs and could even cash the king of diamonds, if he liked, but he couldn't defeat the contract.

WRONG BOOKS

It's easy to see that West had been reading the wrong books, such as the textbooks that tell you about defensive signals. It was a time for West to act rather than to signal.

If West paid attention to the spot cards he would see dummy's nine and eight and his own ten and seven — all "equals." South could hold no spot card higher than the six.

MUST OVERTAKE

West could make sure of bringing in his long suit, if he overtook the queen of diamonds with the king and then returned the seven of diamonds to force out the jack. South would have to tackle the clubs in the attempt to get nine tricks, and West would then take the ace of clubs and defeat the contract with the rest of the diamonds.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ K Q 6
♥ A Q J
♦ J 6 3 2
♣ J 7 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Heaven only knows!

Most expert partnerships do not play a jump to three diamonds as a force to game (unlike the jump raise in a major suit), so that is out. You can't bid a major with only three cards. You can't bid 2 no-trump with no stopper in clubs. Some experts would bid no-trump anyway; and some would craftily bid two clubs, intending to bid game in no-trump next. Some hands force even an honest man to tell a lie!

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Itel Corp. has announced agreement in principle to acquire Intercontinental Systems, Inc., through an exchange of common stock estimated at approximately $23 million.

The deal, subject to approval by directors and shareholders of both companies, is expected to be completed next January or February.

Itel is a diversified company in the date processing industry. Intercontinental, based in Palo Alto, manufactures and sells data handling equipment such as electronic typewriters and text-editing devices.

Bakery Dividend

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tasty Baking Co. has announced a 2.5 per cent stock dividend and an extra cash payment of 2 cents a share plus the regular 22 cents a share quarterly on common, all payable Dec. 1, record date Nov. 7. The extra cash dividend was 3 cents at this time last year.

Peace Talk Snarl Slows Stock Climb

NEW YORK (UPI)—Profit taking and a dampening of peace hopes pushed stocks lower today after three consecutive advances.

Peace enthusiasm was checked a bit by a comment from Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird that he would oppose a cease-fire by U.S. Forces in Vietnam that is not part of any agreement with North Vietnam.

Volume of around 14,000,000 shares was some four-million shares below the previous session.

Among the most active issues were International Telephone, City Investing, Benguet, Jersey Standard and Chrysler.

The automotive group displayed a mixed pattern desite a lag in mid-October car sales.

Oils also moved in irregular fashion after the Senate Finance Committee voted to cut the oil depletion allowance, a major tax benefit for the petroleum industry, from the present 27.5 per cent to 23 per cent. The House had voted to reduce it to 20 per cent.

Other heavily traded stocks included Lum's Inc., the restaurant franchising organizing which made its debut on the big board last week, Occidental, American Telephone and Fairchild Camera. Fairchild Camera reported a third quarter net of 13 cents a share versus a loss during the year ago period.

Electronics and chemicals were on the weak side in a number of instances, while steels traded narrowly.

Prices eased on the American Stock Exchange in moderately active trading.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Strong Insurance Holding Firm Stock Worthwhile

BY ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In 1964 I purchased UNICOA at 69 ¼. The company paid dividends in both stock and cash until this year. I would appreciate your advice.—E.H.

A. UNICOA, an insurance holding company, owns United Insurance which specializes in industrial or weekly premium life insurance. United acquired 97 per cent of Pyramid Life Insurance in 1968. At the year end its admitted assets were valued at $350 million.

Prior to UNICOA's formation as a holding company last year, Teledyne, a fast-growth conglomerate, acquired about 52 per cent of the company's outstanding stock in two separate tender offers.

If teledyne continues its usual methods UNICOA's remaining shares will eventually be obtained in an exchange offer. Not only would the takeover add to Teledyne's earnings but, because of UNICOA's debt-free position, it would supply additional borrowing capacity needed to finance future acquisitions. If growth is your objective I would favor holding these shares.

Q. What is your opinion on North American Rockwell? I bought it recently at the year's low because of its dividend rate. I would like to know if it is also a prospect for price appreciation.—R.H.

A. Shares, trading close to a nine-year low, reflect depressed conditions throughout the aerospace industry. North American receives about two-thirds of its business from government contracts; the Apollo space program alone accounted for 25 per cent of 1968 sales. Billings in this area are down and will probably continue to be stretched out or cut back. Until the F15 fighter contract is awarded in January, price action in North American, which is one of three companies competing, will probably continue indecisive.

Daughter Calls Frost Bay Area Poet, Too

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Robert Frost's daughter, here to play in a documentary film about his early years, hopes it will correct a misconception that her famous father was "just a New England poet."

Mrs. Lesley Frost Ballantine, 70, Frost's only surviving child, said the title poem in his first book of poems, "A Boy's Will," reminded Frost of San Francisco where he lived until he was 11.

"He always remembered San Francisco as one of the most brilliant of cities — in the quality of light, I mean," said Mrs. Ballantine, a tanned white-haired woman with a strong resemblance to her father. She lives in New York and in summer runs a girls' school in La-Granja, Spain.

G. William Gahagan of nearby Atherton, a motion picture producer and long-time Frost buff, is making the film for educational television. He hopes to follow up with others on Frost's years in Derry, N.H., and in England.

Gahagan said Frost who died in 1963, was born here in 1874, and not in 1875 as he always told biographers. The poet's exact birthplace, however, remains unknown, and loss of records during the 1906 earthquake complicates research. Gahagan still is tracking down places in the Bay Area where the Frost family lived.

The real star of the film is Prescott Frost Wilber, 11, who is on vacation from school in Fairfield, Conn., to play young Robert Frost in oldtime city scenes.

Prescott, who is Frost's great-grandson said, "Mostly it's fun. I'm the same age as he was when he left San Francisco."

Scenes have been shot of ferry trips across the Bay, picnics in Sausalito, visits to Golden Gate Park conservatory, and in Shield's bar.

The bar, where Frost visited his father at noon and partook of the free lunch, once was a hangout for Democratic leaders.

The poet's father, William Prescott Frost, was an aspiring Democratic political worker. He also was editor of the old San Francisco Evening Bulletin.

Frost's mother took him and a younger sister to live in Lawrence, Mass., after his father died in 1884 at 35, and Frost never visited California again until 1932.

Teacher Makes Bomb, Keeps Her Cool In Mishap

BETHPAGE, N.Y. (UPI)— When the mixture in the beaker began to smoke and bubble, chemistry teacher Marta Recarey knew exactly what to do.

First she dismissed the 30 students watching the experiment in the school laboratory.

Then Miss Recarey, 28, carried the beaker into the empty school gymnasium and placed it next to the wall. A bomb squad safely exploded it in a rear tank of a specially equipped truck.

Bomb squad detectives said later yesterday that the chemistry instructor had shown "very good judgment" because the mixture had inadvertently been transformed into a high-order explosive which could have killed anyone in the immediate vicinity if it had exploded.

The difficulty began when Miss Recarey, performing a routine experiment poured 500 grams of metallic potassium into a glass beaker containing an oil base.

She was unaware, however, that water was in the beaker, rendering the mixture extremely volatile.

After the beaker was placed in the gymnasium, the rest of the school's 2,000 students were evacuated.

Fire Education Program Backed

A fire prevention education program for kindergarten pupils was endorsed yesterday by the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association, president Franklin Buscher reported.

Fire prevention officers from each department will deliver kits of materials and instructions to teachers for classroom use. The program was developed by the Redwood Region Conservation Council, Buscher said.

The chiefs also asked for a second radio frequency for fire communications. The request will be investigated by the county communications department.

Athletic Grooming Rules Hearing Set

A public hearing on athletic grooming rules will be held as scheduled at 8 p.m. today in the Redwood High School student center by the Tamalpais High School District discipline committee, the district said today.

Several district residents have inquired about cancellation of the meeting, said Administrative Assistant Edward J. Neumeier. The only meeting canceled, he said, is next Monday's meeting of the Next Step Analysis workshop, which is studying district management.

Mail's Slow—Or Does Nixon Lack List Of Labor Chiefs?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Either AFL-CIO chief George Meany isn't on President Richard M. Nixon's list of labor leaders, or the mail is fouled up again—Meany hasn't received Nixon's letter urging wage restraint.

"We've been waiting and waiting," said a spokesman for Meany, referring to the Nixon letter the White House said was being mailed to 2,200 labor and business leaders.

"We make it a policy never to answer letters we haven't received," said the spokesman, who has numerous requests for Meany's reaction. "It's kind of ridiculous."

The White House said the letters were mailed over the weekend and Monday.

Meany's spokesman conceded it's possible the letter could have gotten caught in a slow mail delivery, although the AFL-CIO headquarters is just one block across Lafayette Park from the White House.

Meanwhile, it was learned Nixon told Meany he will invite the entire 35-man AFL-CIO Executive Council to the White House next Wednesday. Meany reportedly wasn't told the reason.

Nixon, whose anti-inflationary policies have been under attack by Meany, said his letters would caution both business and labor not to count on continued increases in wages and prices.

Meany, 75-year-old leader of 13.6 million members of 121 AFL-CIO unions, has sharply criticized Nixon's policies as creating more unemployment.

It also was learned that President Floyd Smith of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists had not received Nixon's letter. The union, one of the nation's largest with more than one million members, also has its headquarters in Washington. The machinists are involved with other unions in two of this year's major wage disputes as they negotiate new contracts with the railroads and with General Electric Co. and Westinghouse Corp.

San Rafael High Flagpole Bobbed By Eight Feet

Two men were seen fleeing from the area of the San Rafael High School flagpole after the pole was sawed nearly in two early Sunday, police reported today.

Chief Joseph J. Brusatori said a report had been filed by officers who saw the pair as they drove by the high school on Fourth Street at 2 a.m. Sunday. They pursued the two but were unable to locate them.

The sawing had been reported as of 2 a.m. Saturday by the city schools office. It actually was on Sunday, Brusatori said.

The pole was so nearly severed that it was necessary to remove the sawed end, shortening the staff by eight feet.

A milk goat will give an average of four to six pounds of milk daily for 10 months of the year.

Rafferty Hurls Names At Critics Of Football

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Rafferty yesterday denounced critics of college football as "kooks, crumbums and commies . . . hairy, loud-mouthed beatniks."

Rafferty who as high school football coach ran up a 51-4 won-lost record, told the North Sacramento Rotary Club football is "war—without killing."

"They are the custodians of the concepts of the past," he said of football players. "They posses a clear, bright, fighting spirit, which is America itself."

Rafferty was especially critical of Oregon State University students who brought pressure against football coach Dee Andros when he suspended a football player for refusing to shave his beard.

He said the activists "look and smell like they spent 10 years in solitary confinement on Devil's Island."

The university president was described as "a bigger ass than the players" because, Rafferty said, he set up a commission to investigate charges that Andros was "insufficiently sensitive."

"The actions of these Pseudo-intellectuals will lead to the destruction of this fine team," he said.

Rafferty said he would allow any individual or group to support a student on a football scholarship as long as the student did not receive preferential academic treatment.

"What's wrong with something that permits the son of a coal miner to go to college?" the state's top school administrator asked the Rotarians.

Rafferty recently made similar comments in a speech at Lake Tahoe.

Rasmusen has previously exhibited at Pratt Institute in New York, Pennsylvania State University, the University of Southwest Louisiana, Phillips Gallery in Salt Lake City and the Stanford University Gallery at Palo Alto.

He also is the author of several art textbooks and most recently co-authored "Sculpture from Junk" with Sausalito sculptor Art Grant.

Glasses At Sharon Tate Murder Scene Mystery Key

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police revealed today that the mystery piece of evidence which could lead to the solution of the bizarre slaying of actress Sharon Tate and four others is a pair of prescription glasses found at the scene.

Lt. Robert Helder, who is in charge of the homicide detectives working on the case since the Aug. 9 murders, made the disclosure. Last Friday police would say only that new evidence had been uncovered.

The bodies of Miss Tate, coffee heiress Abigail Folger, hair stylist Jay Sebring, Polish writer Voityck Prokowsky and 18-year-old Steven Parent were found at the Benedict Canyon estate rented by Miss Tate and her husband, Roman Polanski. Polanski was in Europe at the time.

Actor Peter Sellers has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the killer or killers.

Petaluma Youth Denies Burglary

John Edward Brown, 19, of Petaluma, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglarizing a San Anselmo house Tuesday.

A preliminary hearing was set for Friday.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein refused to reduce Brown's bail from $2,500 after learning that he is awaiting trial on three other felony charges.

Commute Crash Injures Two

Two San Rafael men received minor injuries yesterday in a morning rush-hour pile-up involving three cars on southbound Highway 101 at the San Quentin overpass, the California Highway Patrol said today.

John Hansen, 47, of 266 Orange Blossom Lane, and Robert F. Wilson of 544 Thyme Place, were to see their own doctors, according to the patrol.

They were passengers in a car driven by Margaret Elizabeth Degraves, 21, of 491 Las Colindas, San Rafael, whose car was hit from the rear by one driven by Domenico Ggilio, 22, of 1045 Fifth Street, Novato. The impact knocked her car into a third driven by George Nicolas Baziglin, 47, of 817 Montecillo Road, San Rafael.

The Mishap was at 7 a.m.

Panthers Offer To Deal For Prisoners

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Black Panther Party has offered to arrange the release of some American prisoners of war in Vietnam in exchange for the freeing of two imprisoned Panther leaders.

Panther Chief of Staff David Hilliard said at the party headquarters Wednesday that an unspecified number "of the Yankees detained by the courageous people of Vietnam" would be released if party co-founders Huey P. Newton and Bobby Seale were freed.

Newton is serving a 2-to-15 year sentence on a manslaughter conviction in the 1967 shooting death of an Oakland police officer.

A spokesman for the State Department in Washington said he had "no information" on the proposal and added that "There are established procedures for humane treatment and release of prisoners of war."

A State Department source said that the offer was "a most unlikely proposition" and said there had been "no sign that North Vietnam is interested in the proposal."

Hilliard readily admitted that the Panthers had not contacted the State Department.

"We don't expect the government to do anything of its own accord, but we do have faith in the people putting pressure on the government," he said.

Hilliard said both Seale and fugitive Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver had been in contact with representatives of the North Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front.

Cleaver added his own comments in a telephone call from Algiers, where he is now living, which came at the end of a news conference called to explain the exchange plan.

"I don't think anyone can look on this proposal as gimmick or a sham," Cleaver said. "These are valid proposals justified on grounds to intensify political solidarity."

"I think it is a healthy sign that we are able to get the cooperation of the Vietnamese people in this effort," Cleaver said, adding that he was "in a very good position to work with them on this level."

Hilliard said the Viet Cong look upon both Newton and Seale as "political prisoners allied with all the struggling people of the world in a world wide struggle against Fascism."

He said Newton's release in particular would "contribute to world peace."

Hilliard said Newton would be worth "as many prisoners as North Vietnam is willing to give freedom to," but added that "I don't think they'll release a whole battalion of those aggressors."

Younger For Reshaping Warren Rules

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Los Angeles Dist. Atty. Evelle Younger, who indicates he is running for state attorney general, disagrees with practically all the Supreme Court's law enforcement decisions under former Chief Justice Earl Warren.

But he says it is time to stop complaining about the Warren court. What is needed now, he believes, is for policemen to adjust to the court's "changing ground rules" on how to handle suspected criminals.

"The smart law enforcement officer long since has realized that complaining about Supreme Court decisions does not put felons behind bars," the former judge and Republican leader said yesterday.

Younger called a news conference to talk about a series of training films prepared by his office and shown on closed circuit television to law enforcement agencies.

Seven Northern California counties yesterday began subscribing to the series.

kThey are Amador, Calavera El Dorado, Placer, Sutter Yuba and Sacramento. The films will be shown twice monthly through the facilities of educational television. Eleven other counties also subscribe to the series.

Purpose of the films is to acquaint policemen with recent Supreme Court decisions. Younger said the cost of production and filming is equivalent to the annual salary of a rookie officer.

Younger said if he had been on the Supreme Court the past 15 years "I would have voted with the minorty 95 per cent of the time" on decisions affecting the mechanics of law enforcement. But he emphasized the rulings now are past history.

On another topic, Younger said the Mafia is not a "major problem" in California but there are "a number of families and retired hoodlums from the east living here. "I want to make sure they stay retired," he said.

STUDENT, MOTHER, TEACHER,

BY JOANNE GRANT

Joelle Seiber is a marvelously determined woman—determined to be an excellent mother, a top student, and eventually, a highly effective teacher.

She is devoted to her 3-year-old daughter Trina, a delicate blonde who has been deaf since birth and also has a heart defect.

Together they are meeting seemingly insurmountable difficulties, growing together in love and knowledge, and surviving, sometimes just barely, but always cheerfully.

Inspired by Trina's handicap, Mrs. Seiber, 21, is attending College of Marin, studying to be a teacher of deaf children. "There are not enough teachers and there are so many deaf children," she said, adding the rubella epidemic in the mid-60s was a major cause.

She is divorced and she and Trina live on welfare—$95 every two weeks. But that is not going to go on forever.

"I hate welfare," said the lifelong Marin resident fervently. "That's why I'm going to school."

Trina also attends school, an early education program for the deaf in Larkspur, where she is learning to speak despite her inability to hear.

She has had to miss school lately though because she and her mother have nowhere to live and there is no place for the bus to pick Trina up.

Trina has been going to school since before her first birthday—a necessity, her mother believes, if she is to learn to talk well.

In addition, Mrs. Seiber spends hours helping her daughter each day and considers this the most important part of her training as a teacher of the deaf.

"My work is with Trina," she said simply in an interview at a friend's home.

Mrs. Seiber admits frankly she could make it alone much more easily, but is determined to keep her child with her.

"I'm a mother. I have to provide for my child," she said firmly.

Her latest problem, however, has made that difficult to fulfill. The Seibers had been living in a a basement in San Rafael where it was "rotten, cold, horrible." Last week, Mrs. Seiber learned it was also subject to flooding as water poured in over their meager possessions.

Worried about Trina's health, they left and are staying with friends as she looks for a home—on foot because her old car broke down recently.

Never liking the basement arrangement, Mrs. Seiber has been looking for six months, repeatedly being turned away because landlords say they don't want children.

A second stumbling block has been money. Her welfare allotment allows $65 a month for rent though she can pay more by making cuts elsewhere.

"They're slowing me down," she said fiercely. "I have so much to do."

"There are so many people in the same position," she added. Many mothers, she asserted have placed their children with relatives or in a foster home in order to survive.

She won't do that. She will scrimp and save and sacrifice to give Trina a home. And, if determination has anything to do with it, she will become a teacher. "I'm going to stick to it. I'm going to finish school," she said doggedly.

PSYCHEDELIC CARAVAN — The buses which are home to about 60 persons who are long on demands but short on cash lined up at Civic Center yesterday as members of the commune tried to collect $700 in welfare funds. The "family" didn't get fed, but the buses did, with 155.9 gallons of gas.

'HOG FARM' ROLLS ON TO BERKELEY

By WAT TAKESHITA

A bus caravan of about 60 hippie transients, who demanded $700 in welfare funds during a two-day sit-in at Marin County civic center, settled for a $46.24 handout and headed for Berkeley last night.

The payment for gasoline and tolls drew fire from two county officials.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, who was at the Civic Center to see the caravan serviced at the county gas pumps, called it "paying blackmail."

"It's pretty plain how the board (of supervisors) felt about it," said Baar. "When somebody tires to blackmail, we shouldn't pay blackmail. Thats what bothers me."

Mario Balestrieri, deputy public works director who has charge of the county garage and the gasoline pumps, declared:

"I have a notion to charge welfare for the gas. I don't think we should absorb the cost of the gas."

The motley group, ranging in age from 1 to 45, planted itself on the fourth floor of the Civic Center yesterday afternoon, demanding $500 for repair of the communes psychedelic-hued buses, $200 for gasoline and plus food.

Miss Presley and top county officials headed by County Administrator Alan Bruce met the group on the hillside patio at the south end of the civic center.

Bruce told the group, calling itself "Hog Farm Commune", that members' individual applications would be rejected. Peter Whiterabbit, bearded spokesman for the group, then conferred with county officials and settled for gasoline for their nine vehicles plus toll over the Richmond-San Rafael bridge

Balestrieri said the vehicles took 155.9 gallons, which the county buys for 21 cents per gallon, or $32.74 total. The toll for the bridge, at $1.50 per bus or van, came to $13.50, which the administrator paid out of his petty cash fund.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos sent an unmarked patrol car to lead the caravan over the bridge.

County officials who were hastily summoned to confer with the communal family included Bruce, Miss Presley, Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales, County Counsed Douglas J. Maloney, Public Works Director Donald R. Frost, and Sheriff Mountanos.

The administrator said it was the collective judgement of the county officials that giving the Hog Farm Commune gas and toll was the best way to handle the situation.

Under the Welfare and Institutions Code, the welfare department and local police have the discretion to give aid in overnight lodging and food and transportation to stranded persons, said Bruce. He said the communal group was handled in the same way that any other stranded individual or family would be handled, except that

Protests Attitude Of Hanoi

PARIS (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge today cut short the Vietnam peace talks and stormed out of the conference in protest against the attitude of the Communist negotiators. He did not wait to deliver the American statement.

The chief American negotiator said he made the dramatic move to draw the attention of world opinion "to the completely negative attitude which has persistently characterized the other side."

Lodge said his move for an early adjournment, apparently made with White House blessing, did not mean the United States was quitting the conference. Instead, the U.S. delegation moved only for a one week adjournment.

Explaining his move to newsmen as he returned to the delegation headquarters, Lodge said, "I thought the time had

'RUSSIAN ROULETTE'

Agnew's Latest Target—Muskie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, keeping up his strongly worded attacks on administration critics, has accused Democratic Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of irresponsibly advocating a "Russian roulette" disarmament plan.

A spokesman said Agnew acted on his own, not on administration instructions, in challenging Muskie's proposal that the United States halt the testing of new, multiple-warhead strategic missiles for six months.

Agnew called the Muskie plan "a classic example of confused thinking."

"Who knows what Agnew means?" said Muskie, who ran for vice president a year ago and now is rated a front-rank prospect for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

Agnew's statement was the latest in a series of strong attacks on those disagreeing with Nixon.

"Does he clear these things with the White House?" asked Republican Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, who then admitted he didn't know the answer.

Muskie Tuesday proposed a unilateral U.S. cessation of the testing of multiple, warheaded missiles as a step to stimulate arms control efforts.

Brooke is the chief sponsor of a resolution backed by 43 senators urging a U.S.-Soviet moratorium on MIRV testing.

Brooke said he doesn't know whether the United States can afford the unilateral halt proposed by Muskie, but added "I certainly don't consider it an irresponsible proposal."

Agnew said in his statement yesterday the United States has exercised restraint in stockpiling strategic arms, but Muskie "is not content with this nation keeping prudent pace.

"He wants it to slip backwards," Agnew said.

"No responsible person would propose that the President play Russian roulette with U.S. security," Agnew said. "Yet that is what Senator Muskie did."

Criticism and defense continued to flow across the Senate yesterday in the wake of Agnew's weekend attacks on Vietnam protestors as anarchists encouraged by "impudent snobs."

And another charge was leveled against the vice president.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., accused Agnew of trying to put pressure on the Supreme Court in a Jackson, Miss., speech Monday.

Cranston quoted the vice president as saying President Richard Nixon believes Mississippi officials have made a strong case for additional time to desegregate schools.

The Democratic senator said that was "unwarranted, unethical and grossly improper."

Toliver Pay Raise Figures Are Corrected

James T. Toliver Jr., assistant to the principal of Sausalito School District, received a 12.2 per cent raise for the current school year, not 22.5 per cent as reported last Saturday in the Independent Journal.

His monthly pay check increased from $1,040 to $1,274, or 22.3 per cent. However, under his contract for the current school year he receives only 11 pay checks, whereas under the previous contract he received 12 checks.

He was hired in July, 1967, on a nine-month contract, beginning in September. Pay for the nine months, however, was split into 12 payments of $637.50 each, totaling $9,650.

Last year, he was again given a nine-month contract, at $12,500 —an increase of $2,850 or 29.5 percent. Again, it was split into 12 payments, of $1,040 each except for one of $1,060. The across-the-board raise given Sausalito teachers in 1968 was 7.7 per cent plus the annual step

A former Ross man was killed Sunday in Vietnam when his Bronco spotter plane was shot down by ground fire 21 miles north of Saigon.

Capt. James C. Woods, 32, died when bullets struck both engines of the observation plane, the Department of Defense reported. A passenger in the plane also was killed.

A 1959 graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, Woods received a presidential appointment to the Military academy at West Point and entered the Air Force as a pilot after graduation in 1959.

While a student at West Point, he was captain of both the swimming and wrestling teams. His father, the late Col. Fred J. Woods, was also a West Point graduate.

Born in Corregidor, Woods lived in Ross from 1946 until his appointment to the Academy. He had been stationed in Vietnam since February. An ardent skin diver, he practiced his hobby while stationed around the world.

He is survived by his wife, June Woods of Fairfield; a son, Thomas, 8; a daughter, Wendy, 5; his mother, Mrs. Fred J. Woods of Sonoma, and two brothers, F. Michael Woods of San Francisco and Milton C. Woods of Anaheim.

Sleuths Turn To Dick Tracy For Clues To Zodiac Slayer Of Five

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State crime investigators today sought help from comic strip detective Dick Tracy in the search for clues to the Zodiac slayer of the San Francisco Bay Area.

Agents of the state Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation began scrutinizing the Tracy comics on the theory that there might be some parallels between zodiac and the Scorpio leader of the Zodiac gang in the cartoon series.

Earl Bauer, a senior analyst in the bureau's crime laboratory, conceded comparing the comic strip with the Zodiac investigation was "kind of offbeat" but said it may provide a vaulable clue in apprehending the Zodiac.

The first Zodiac installment appeared in the comics Aug. 17, a few weeks after the Bay Area's admitted slayer of five persons dubbed himself Zodiac in letters to newspapers.

"You notice that these things come up more or less simultaneously," Bauer said. "So then you take a look to see if there are any parallels."

In Chester Gould's comic strip, Scorpio has an astrological Scorpio sign printed on his face. An astrology columnist was drowned and cuff links with the horoscope and a scorpion were found on his shirt.

Bauer, who said he was assisted by other CII workers, declined to discuss what, if any, conclusions he foresaw resulting from the analysis. "It's just speculation at this point," he said.

Yesterday Zodiac failed to show for a rendezvous in Daily City with San Francisco attorney Belli, with whom he talked with for nearly two hours on the Jim Dunbar television show.

There has also been another challenge to Zodiac—from the brother of San Francisco cab driver Paul Stine. The cabbie was shot to death Oct. 11 and the killer mailed a piece of Stine's bloodied shirt with a boastful letter to the San Francisco Chronicle.

Stine's brother, Joe, 34, operator of a Modesto service station, issued an itinerary of his daily habits and challenged Zodiac to "come and get me."

"I don't carry weapons," said the 165-pound Army and Air Force veteran. "I don't feet I need any. I was very close to Paul, and now I want a chance at his killer."

IN 10 MINUTES: DEATH

Mother Shocked By Humane Center Act

By ALAN JONES

A 10-week-old puppy brought to the Marin County animal shelter in Ignacio yesterday for adoption was instead put to death within minutes, while his 3-year-old master and the boy's mother pleaded with shelter employees to give the puppy back.

"We weren't there 10 minutes," said Mrs. Paula Potts of San Rafael. Mrs. Potts said they planned to leave the puppy for the weekend for adoption, and if he was not taken to claim him again on Monday.

When there is a surplus of animals at the shelter, it is the shelter's policy to destroy incoming animals as quickly as possible, kennel superintendent Jack Faulkner said. A dog would be kept only if the staff felt it was more likely to be adopted than an animal already in the shelter, he said.

"She was told we cannot guarantee placement," Faulkner said. He said Mrs. Potts also signed a release form making the puppy the shelter's property.

"We don't just indiscriminately destroy animals. That's not our policy, it never has been and never will be," Faulkner

'Waiting For Godot' Author Beckett Wins Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Samuel Beckett, who created the "Theater of the absurd" with his 1953 play "Waiting for Godot," today won the 1969 Nobel Prize for Literature.

The Swedish Academy cited the 63-year-old, Dublin-born Beckett, who is also known for his novels and poems, for "his writing, which—in new forms for the novel and drama —in the destitution of modern man acquires its elevation."

The new forms cited by the 18-member Academy became popularly known as "theater of the absurd." "Waiting for Godot," first staged in Paris and then Germany, England and finally Broadway, was the forerunner of the era.

(Beckett's "Waiting for Godot" is in its last two nights of a run at the College of Marin's studio theater located in the Fine Arts Building. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. each night.)

The play, a "tragicomedy" with only four characters and almost no action, has been called the crystallization of all Beckett's work. Its main characters are two tramps standing by a roadside waiting for the mysterious, unknown Godot who never comes.

Beckett, who began his literary life as secretary to James Joyce, was traveling abroad at the time of the announcement. His agent in Paris said the author was somewhere in the Mediterranean, Italy or even the United States.

SAMUEL BECKETT
'Theater of the absurd'

The Nobel prize carries a cash award of $72,500.

Last year's literature prize recipient was Japanese author Yasunaru Kawabata.

Beckett, who lives in France and writes in the French language, has been a candidate for the prize for many years.

But a strong faction inside the Swedish academy has been fighting against his nomination. This year, the pro-Beckett faction won out.

He maintains an apartment in Paris where he lives with his French wife.

But only very close friends and his publisher know the address and the Nobel prize winner has given very few interviews.

Dr. Karl Ragnar Gierow, the permanent secretary of the Swedish Academy, said Beckett made a name for himself in the space of three years through five works—the novel "Molloy" in 1951, its sequel, "Malone Meurt" the same year, the play "Waiting for Godot" and two novels in 1953, "L'Innommable" and "Watt."

"In this brief period modern literature thus acquired one of its most important names," Gierow said.

U.S. Antiwar Movement Is Hit In Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's National Assembly adopted a resolution today condemning the antiwar movement in the United States, and one member accused the U.S. Democratic party of inciting the movement to further its political struggle against the Republicans.

Although the assembly has 135 members, many were not present, and the resolution was declared adopted on the affirmative votes of 58 members.

"STRONG PROTEST"

The resolution urged a "strong protest of the unjust act of the...antiwar movement elements, disregarding the sacrifice of blood and bones of Vietnamese soldiers and people as well as the sacrifice of allied troops in Vietnam."

It said the assembly was determined to "safeguard the right to self-determination" and appealed to "all people, groups and organizations...to stand up together and destroy all plots and movements aimed at forcing the Vietnamese people to accept a Communist slavery regime in any form."

Opening the debate, Tran Quy Phong said.

The Democratic party now has a majority in both houses. If the Democrats really want a U.S. retreat from Vietnam, why don't they put the Vietnamese problem to the vote by their majority to force (President) Nixon to do it the way they want?

POLITICS HIT

"They don't do that, but they do incite students to act the way as, 'do the thing I say, not the thing I do.'...Now American students are taken advantage of by a group of political opportunists...

"Antiwar activities are looked on only as an oral battle of Democrats against Republicans for their purpose of winning more votes in coming elections, opening the way for the Democratic party to return to power."

Last Week's U.S. Viet Death Toll Same As For Entire '63

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. headquarters said today 78 GIs died in Vietnam combat last week, the same number slain in fighting during all of 1963 before the American buildup began.

It was the fourth successive week that the battle lull had kept U.S. deaths below the 100 mark, a level never broken last year. Not since December of 1966 has the death rate been this low.

Another 684 Americans were wounded last week, 299 of them seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Again, South Vietnamese losses—301 killed and 878 wounded—were much higher than the U.S. casualties, an indicator of the Saigon government's progress in assuming more of the fighting.

Military spokesmen said the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese lost 1,624 men killed, their fewest battle fatalities ths year and another result of the battle lull that began six weeks ago.

The U.S. death toll was a slight decrease from the 82 GIs slain the previous week and equaled the number of Americans who died in Vietnam in all of 1963, the year before big U.S. units began arriving.

Since Jan. 1, 1961, a total of 39,047 U.S. servicemen have been killed in Vietnam and 255,531 have suffered wounds.

The lull in fighting continued overnight, headquarters said, with scattered fighting killing 163 Communist troops. American losses were put at 11 killed and 34 wounded.

For the second successive day, U.S. B52 bombers raided within 500 yards of the demilitarized zone today, hitting what spokesmen called guerrilla base camps and supply areas.

Eruptions from the 500 and 750-pound bombs in the two early morning strikes sent clouds of dirt and debris into the air over the target area, the same place where the Stratoforts raided yesterday.

U.S. headquarters said this area is the center of a new buildup by North Vietnamese troops, started since American Marines began leaving the area in the process of being withdrawn from the war.

Troopers of the 101st Airborne Division, sent north to fill in part of the void left by the departing Marines, came under mortar attack there Wednesday and reported "light" losses in the 30-round barrage.

It was one of 10 shelling attacks reported in this morning communiques. Ground fighting continued light, spokesmen said, with a total of 53 guerrillas slain against four Americans killed and five wounded.

Reagan Slates London Trip For Business Talk

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan will deliver the keynote address to a conference of business leaders from the British Isles in London Nov. 6, his office said today.

Reagan will speak at a meeting of the Institute of Directors. The institute includes about 4,200 leaders of business and industry in England, Scotland and Wales.

The Republican governor, now on a speaking tour on behalf of Republicans, will leave for London Nov. 1 after addressing the state Republican Convention at Anaheim. He and Mrs. Reagan also plan to visit Paris briefly before returning home, Reagan's office said today.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Haynsworth Delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's debate on the Supreme Court nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. may be delayed until mid-November, in part because of senatorial junketing.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., leader of the opposition to Haynsworth, leaves tomorrow for an extended overseas trip with the ultimate destination New Delhi, India. Bayh will not return to Washington until Nov. 9.

Also going to New Delhi for an interparliamentary union conference is Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., Haynsworth's sponsor.

Loan Involvement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has made public documents that show Hubert Humphery urged top government officials to approve a loan to a Minnesota firm later sued by the government for deceit and breach of contract.

The $2.3 million loan from the Agency for International Development was granted to NAPCO Industries of Minneapolis in 1962. The government filed a civil complaint against the company Feb. 16, 1968, charging NAPCO with "deceit, false claims and breach of contract."

Although there was no suggestion that the former vice president profited in any way from his efforts to help the company, Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, charged Tuesday that Humphrey was "plainly guilty of highly improper conduct."

Could Erupt

SEATTLE (UPI) — Mount Rainier may be an old volcano but even old volcanoes may blow their top, according to a world authority on volcanology.

"When volcanoes near the end of their lives, they have a tendency to become active," said Dr. Howell Williams of the volcanology center at the University of Oregon in a public lecture last night.

In his lecture at the University of Washington, Williams pointed out that Rainier is an old volcano "far beyond maturity" and is the very kind which has been known to "blow its top."

If Rainier should blow, Williams said he would expect the eruption to be "mostly ash" but added a violent blast from Rainier was "not inconceivable."

Overpay Error

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state has overpaid 66 nursing homes in the Medi-Cal program by about $1 million largely because of bookkeeping errors, Health Care Services Director Carel Mulder disclosed yesterday.

Mulder said the overpayments to homes caring for poor patients were found in the first 66 of Medi-Cal's 1,200 nursing homes whose state payments are being audited.

However, he said none of the overpayments resulted from violations of Medi-Cal rules or laws. Mulder said the errors occurred in figuring cost statements on which payments are based.

Quake Is Felt

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — The first sharp earthquake felt here in more than a year swayed the county administration building and other tall structures yesterday afternoon but no damage or injury was reported.

Seimologists at the Univresity of California placed the epicenter in the Pacific Ocean about 75 miles southwest of Point Arguello.

Preliminary Richter scale readings for the tremor at 3:51 p.m. ranged from 5.3 to 5.8 at seismology stations in California and Nevada. A light aftershock came at 5 p.m.

CHELMSFORD, England (UPI)—A freight train loaded with mortar shells and smoke bombs jumped the tracks last night but the Ministry of Defense said there was neither injuries nor danger of explosions.

Alioto Calls Reagan Only Oilman Pawn

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Republican fund-raiser Henry Salvatori — not Gov. Reagan — is really governing California, Says San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto.

Alioto asserted yesterday that Reagan was so under the influence of Salvatori, a wealthy Los Angeles oilman, that Reagan had "incapaciated" himself from what Alioto termed the top 1970 campaign issues-"dirty air and dirty water."

Reagan "is beholden to the very people who are causing these defects," Alioto declared in a speech to the Democratic Women's Forum of Los Angeles.

Alioto last week asserted the GOP governor was a pawn of business lobbyists - headed, the mayor said, by Salvatori-in part because Salvatori and others had raised funds to buy Reagan's Sacramento residence.

Assembly Democratic leader Jesse Unruh, D-Inglewood, also spoke to the women's group and declared he wasn't going to believe that state finance director Casper Weinberger's statement on a particular subject actually represented Reagan's thoughts "until I see Henry Salvatori's comment."

PG&E Quarterly Profits Decline

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. has reported 1969 third quarter earnings at 59 cents a share, down from 62 cents a year ago.

President Sherman L. Sibley said the basic cause of the earnings slip was severe inflation affecting both operating the construction costs.

In the 12-month period ended Sept. 30, 1969 earnings advanced to $2.61 a share from $2.48 a year earlier.

Auto Stolen

A 1963 black-over-red Jaguar XKE, license HUG-522, owned by Bruce Gordon, of 113 Barbaree Way, Tiburon, was stolen today from Humboldt and Pine streets in Sausalito, police reported. The theft was between midnight and 1 a.m., they said.

COMMUNE

this was an unusually large group.

The Hog Farm Commune started three years ago in Llano, N.M., according to member Thomas Masters, It travels cross-country, putting on psychedlic light shows and rock festivals. Members say they helped set up the Woodstock Festival in New York.

"We came here last week for a starve-in in San Francisco and hoped to set up a festival in Los Angeles but it fell through," Masters said. A 400-pound pig named Pigasus is part of their show and rides in one of the vans.

When asked who the group leader is, Buffalo Bob, 39, replied: "There is no leader. Everybody is a leader." He acknowledged that Buffalo Bob is not his given name and said, "but what's the value of a family name. I've got my identity. I react to Buffalo Bob at the moment."

"Have you looked for a job?" asked a newsman.

"We figure our job is communication," replied Buffalo Bob. "We're very particular and specific as to jobs. What's the use of taking any haphazard job just to keep alive without a chance to get all our buses together and go in a group. If we have to work, I guess we will. But we want to hit the road and turn people on."

Buffalo Bob said his group stayed at Gate 5 in Sausalito Tuesday night. "If we have to, we will camp out in the parking lot here all night, unless we're all arrested."

"One reason we came here was to see if we could make it easier for welfare people to get money," put in Mac Pate. He said the eight-page application for welfare aid is difficult.

"I've had six years of college and it's still difficult. It's a mental drag. I can now see what people have to go through to receive aid. They're (welfare workers) not only impersonal, but cruel."

He said the people at Gate 5 opened their homes and shared food, and markets such as the Super G gave them bruised food. "The people are all willing to help, but not the government."

Ephraim Robbins, who said he was born in Australia to American parents, identified himself as the father of three who sat in the welfare office for four and one-half hours Tuesday, asking for food for his children. "They said they couldn't give us even a dollar. So last night we went out and stole food for the kids."

Are there married couples in the group? "Some couples are more constant than others," said Pate. "But we're all married to each other. We're one family."

An 18-year-old girl from Maine, who said her full name is Alannah, petted a live king snake coiled around her neck. She said the group had never asked for welfare aid before. "But we did get food stamps once in New Mexico."

Adults and children, mostly long-haired and wearing psychedelic colors and plaid outfits, sat on the Civic Center patio munching sunflower seeds, waiting for Peter Whiterabbit to complete negotiations with county officials.

It was dusk when Whiterabbit emerged to announce they would get only gasoline and bridge toll. "No dinner," cried one. "In other words, you're running us out of town," grumbled another. "Oh, we can eat in Berkeley," said a girl. "we can dig in the garbage cans."

But Whiterabbit was firm. "The Sheriff has agreed to lead the group across the bridge and pay the tolls."

There were anguished shouts, followed by "Hurray for the sheriff."

"A couple of you remain behind to clean up the sunflower shells," Whiterabbit instructed his group. But Leslie Wider, maintenance supervisor for county buildings, said the patio would be cleaned by regular crews.

Young Woman Found Dead In Alto Motel

A beautiful, young Scottish girl, despondent over her husband's death two months ago, rented an Alto motel room Tuesday and surrounded by pictures of her late husband swallowed a fatal overdose of barbituates.

Elspeth Moyra Brown, 25, who moved to Sausalito from San Francisco six weeks ago, was found dead at the Village Motel, 670 Redwood Highway, Alto, at 11:45 a.m. yesterday by the motel manager, the Marin County Coroner's office reported.

According to friends, Mrs. Brown, a night floor nursing supervisor at St. Joseph's Hospital in San Francisco, had been a chronic depression since her husband of six months died in August.

A native of the Orkney Islands in Scotland and the daughter of a Scottish diplomat, Mrs. Brown came to the United States three years ago to work in San Francisco.

Last year, friends said, she met and married David Brown, 32, a student at San Francisco State College. "She and David were very much in love; they had a very happy marriage," according to Sue Carrell of 202 South Street, Sausalito, with whom Mrs. Brown had lived these past six weeks.

However, in August, Brown was injured in an automobile accident. A few hours later he was dead, apparently the victim of a blood clot, according to Miss Carrell.

"She took it very hard," Miss Carrell said. But friends and professional associates tried to help. "We got her to move here as soon as we could," Miss Carrell said. And Mrs. Brown, herself, realizing the depths of her depression, was seeing a psychiatrist.

But despite the affection and concern of friends, Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Brown packed a suitcase, left her will and a letter to her hospital supervisor on her bed in Miss Carrell's apartment and drove to the Village Motel.

Miss Carrell, concerned that Mrs. Brown had not returned home Tuesday night, looked in her room yesterday morning and found the notes. At about the same time, Mrs. Brown's body was discovered at the motel.

Mrs. Brown is survived by her family in Scotland.

said. But "if we have a hundred puppies coming in a day, there isn't room . . . there aren't enough people to begin to place all the animals.

Mrs. Potts said her son David remembered, moments after the dog was turned over, that he had a ball for it to play with. She said she asked for the puppy back, but was told it was in quarantine.

When she said she wanted to take the dog home, Mrs. Potts said, a girl inquired and then returned to tell her the dog had been put to sleep.

"I know they have too many," she said, "but I think ours should have been given a chance at least."

Faulkner said the shelter keeps only the dogs it thinks most likely to be adopted. "With the experience we've had, we can pretty well determine what people are looking for. Certain types will place better than others."

"These things do happen from time to time," he said. "It's a shame they do. We don't like to put animals to sleep."

"I'd just like other people to know this," Mrs. Potts said, "that they don't even give puppies a chance that are taken in there."

Faulkner said Mrs. Potts had turned in the puppy because her son was too young for it and the pup was not housebroken. He said, "It probably was like a lot of little animals, messing in the house . . . she probably just didn't want to put up with it, I don't know . . ."

"People should know," Mrs. Potts said. "Because some people have pets they have had for years, and have to move . . . they should know their dog doesn't have a chance."

Agent Spots Too-Busy Goings-On

A narcotics agent who noticed unusual activity on Fourth Street in San Rafael yesterday afternoon followed his hunch as well as two cars to Prospect Avenue where he hid in bushes to witness what appeared to be a marijuana sale.

Later, armed with a search warrant, the agent returned with reinforcements to arrest Terry Phillip Stone, 19, of 331 Prospect Avenue, on suspicion of marijuana possession. Stone had a can of marijuana in his house, the agent said.

Stone was held at Marin County Jail today in lieu of $3125 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

The agent said that he became suspicious when he saw two youths jumping in and out of two cars, returning and repeating the performance. When both cars left the area of Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue, he followed them.

He said while he hid in some bushes he saw one of the youths come out of the Prospect Avenue house carrying five marijuana reefers.

increase of approximately $300 per year.

For the current year, he was given an 11-month contract starting Aug. 1 at $14,024— an increase of $1,524. But this time, the pay is split into 11 payments of $1274 except for one of $1,284.

The across-the-board pay increase given administrators and teachers in Sausalito School District this year was 7.5 per cent, plus the annual step increase.

Negotiations with Toliver were carried on separately from those with other teachers. School board minutes show no record of such separate negotiations.

Board Takes Reins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Instead of a "mother general," a newly formed board of directors has been elected to govern the Roman Catholic order of the Immaculate Heart Sisters, now in the midst of extensive reforms.

Colfax County, N.M., was named for Schuyler Colfax, vice president of the United States from 1869 to 1873.

come for somebody to make a punctuation mark."

"I'd like to say by way of background that what I did was within the scope of my instructions," he added.

"I hope our action today may call attention generally to the completely negative attitude which has persistently characterized the other side, and that there may be progress in the future."

North Vietnamese negotiator Xuan Thuy had used the talks today to say that demonstrations against President Richard M. Nixon's Vietnam policies M. Nixon's Vietnam policies have a positive effect on the Paris conference and could help break the longstanding deadlock.

He hailed last Wednesday's Vietnam Moratorium Day as the genuine voice of the American people and pledged his government's support for further antiwar rallies. He spoke at the 39th meeting of the conference where both he and the Viet Cong accused Nixon of stepping up the fighting in Vietnam.

Thuy also accused the United States of extending the war to Laos. As he did, a dispatch from the Laotian capital of Vientianne reported North Vietnam had sent more troops into Laos and they and the Communist Pathet Lao had opened a major new drive against towns wrested from the Communists in fighting last summer.

Thuy said of the recent antiwar demonstrations in the United States: "The current struggle of the American people has a positive effect on the Paris conference on Vietnam since it demands that President Nixon renounce his policy of aggression in Vietnam and immediately and totally withdraw U.S. troops. It contributes to removing the cause of the present deadlock of the conference."

Suspensions Mark Time At College

The case of College of Marin's three suspended students was in a state of flux today.

The three students, suspended Monday by Dean of Students Irwin P. Diamond for actions at Thursday's Marin Junior College District board meeting, are still attending classes pending an appeal hearing.

The student conduct committee, which is to hear the appeal, is still unformed in the face of the student government's refusal to appoint its four student members.

The Associated Students Executive Council was to meet this afternoon to discuss the case and possibly to reconsider its decision to boycott the appeal committee.

The student conduct committee — or its three nonstudent members—was to meet today to organize and schedule an appeal hearing, probably tomorrow or Monday, Diamond reported.

The three students, Del Mar Jackson, William Nason and Brigardo Groves, were suspended for their roles in the near-riot at the board meeting.

Five candidates are running for two positions on the Novato Fire Protection District board at the Nov. 4 election.

Both incumbents, chairman Peter J. Ferrarese and Dante Panfiglio, seek re-election.

Two policemen are among the challengers.

Candidates in alphabetical order, are:

PETER J. FERRARESE, 54, of 10 Los Alondros, manager of the Novato Branch of Crocker-Citizens National Bank, was appointed to the board in 1955 and has served three terms as chariman.

He was born in Dunsmuir, Siskiyou County, and moved to San Rafael with he was 10. He started his banking with the Bank of America while attending the college of Marin in 1936. He worked for the First National Bank before it merged with Crocker-Citizens Bank.

Ferrarese and his wife, Margaret, have three children, Peter, 26, of Novato; Paul, 25, of San Anselmo, and Mrs. Patricia Browder, 23, of Larkspur.

Ferrarese has served on the board of trustees of the Novato Unified School District and is past president of the Novato Kiwanis Club, Novato Chamber of Commerce and the Novato Civic Foundation.

Credit Restored To Angela Davis Class

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Academic credit has been restored to a UCLA philosophy course taught by assistant professor Angela Davis, a black militant and admitted Communist whose dismissal was ruled unconstitutional.

UCLA Chancellor Charles E. Young yesterday announced that, in compliance with a court order, enrollment for credit would be accepted for Philosophy 99, "Recurring Philosophical Themes in Black Literature."

Young warned students, however, that if University of California regents' attorneys should be successful in their appeal before the end of the course, "the status of credit ...may be placed in jeopardy."

Superior Court Judge Jerry Pacht held Monday that the firing of Miss Davis by the regents simply because she admitted she was a member of the Communist Party was unconstitutional. The judge also ruled that subsequent action by the regents stripping Miss Davis' course of credit was illegal.

Young's announcement coincided with the release of a statement in Berkeley from University President Charles J. Hitch who called the restoration of credit "the only appropriate action he could take in compliance with the order of the court."

Later yesterday an attorney sought a court order that would bar Miss Davis from teaching at any campus of the University of California system.

Donald C. Gallagher filed the suit here as a taxpayers action similar to the one that resulted in the ruling that the regents policy against hiring Communists was unconstitutional.

President Picks District Judge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Richard M. Nixon announced yesterday he will nominate Sacramento Attorney Philip C. Wilkins to be U.S. District Judge for the Eastern District of California.

Wilkins, 56, a Republican party worker and longtime supporter of Nixon, will replace veteran Judge Sherrill Halbert who retired Sept. 30. The post ays $40,000 a year.

The court district, largest in California, covers an area from the Oregon border south to Bakersfield and from the Nevada line west to California coastal counties.

Florida's state flower is the orange blossom.

Additional performances of Lear are slated for Nov. 1, 6, 7, and 8.

Continuing with the fall theme, "A Perspective of Man," Anthony Newley's allegorical musical "Stop the World — I Want to Get Off," will open Dec. 5 for five showings in the auditorium.

Hollis Warns On Pay For Moratorium

Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools, has cautioned all school districts in Marin against approving pay for any teacher who absented himself from class on Oct. 15 5o participate in Vietnam war moratorium activities.

Hollis had earlier cautioned the districts that the California Education Code did not permit payment for absence for such purpose.

In his follow-up letter this week, Hollis noted that the district's payroll order submitted to the county schools office must be verified by the district's payroll representative as true and accurate, and urged special attention to absences on Oct. 15. Copies of his memorandum were sent to the county auditor and to Richard V. Godino, assistant county counsel who handles public school legal matters.

Petaluma Panel Sets Parks Tour

A field trip to review the condition of Petaluma parks and recreational facilities was scheduled last night for next Thursday at 10 a.m. by the Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission.

During a study of park development and improvement, the commission said a survey of present facilities should be made before recommendations on future projects are made to the city council.

Getting special attention on the trip will be Wickersham Park which has been proposed for redevelopment.

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission also:

LITTLE LEAGUE — Received a letter from Edward J. Tracy, vice president of the National Little League, requesting that baseball facilities at Kenilworth Park be leased or deeded to the league. The commission said a meeting would be scheduled with league officers.

FENCE ORDINANCE — Asked Richard W. Shollenberger, park director, to get more information on the planning commission proposal that park sites adjacent to subdivisions and schools be fenced.

TREES — Said it would review the street tree ordinance and make a study of types and locations of trees and prepare recommendations on how many new trees are needed and of what varieties.

Plans For Girls' Wing Eyed By Panel

Plans for the new girls wing at Marin County Juvenile Hall were reviewed yesterday by the county Juvenile Justice Commission, with an eye toward calling for bids in early spring, chairman Rex T. Silvernale reported. Final plans and specifications will be prepared during the winter.

The commission also discussed the drug abuse program authorized by the board of supervisors and urged more participation in it, Silvernale said.

Note Of Caution Aired On New Drug Program

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Only a limited number of youths will be able to receive treatment through a new state law even if their parents turn them in as drug users needing help, a medical official says.

Dr. Harry Brickman, director of the Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health, said in an interview that he is afraid the public has misconceptions about drug treatment under a new law going into effect Nov. 10.

The new state law says parents may seek to have their children committed for involuntary treatment instead of facing a jail sentence.

But Brickman, a psychiatrist, said the conditions for receiving treatment are that the youth is a danger to himself or others.

He said his department will decide whether to grant commitments in Los Angeles County and will use strict guidelines.

Many parents are panicky about drugs and falsely think any usage, including that of marijuana, means the youth is a danger, the doctor said.

"I regret the scare tactics taken by many over drugs because the kids see through this and the problem is only worsened," he said. "The use of marijuana by youngsters cannot be viewed simply as a drug abuse problem but rather as a reflection of social and political unrest in the community."

"It is regrettable if parents think that now instead of arrests there will be large treatment programs awaiting the youngsters. This is not so."

"If anyone is looking for this to be a panacea for the general drug use problem, especially marijuana, this is not the case."

Sued For Divorce

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Folksinger Jimmie Rodgers, who almost lost his life in a freak automobile accident more than two years ago, was sued for divorce yesterday by his wife of 12 years on grounds of extreme cruel conduct.

Mrs. Alza Colleen Rodgers, 33, asked superior court to approve an integrated property settlement agreed upon by the couple last Aug. 15.

They have two children, Michele, 9, and Michael, 6.

Suspect Held In Pot Probe

J. D. Sumner, 35, of 315 Mountain View Avenue, was booked into City Jail and scheduled for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Sgt. William R. Reed said that Sumner gave three marijuana cigarettes to Sonoma County narcitics officer Paul Stefani on Oct. 10.

'Can Jail A Cake... Not A Revolution'

Seale's fellow defendants tried to bring a birthday cake into the courtroom and U.S. marshals confiscated the cake.

"You can jail a cake, but you can't jail a revolution," Seale yelled.

By that time the whipping cream had hit the fan anyway.

Seale called the trial of the "Chicago Eight" a "railroad operation from Nixon on down." He told the judge and a prosecutor they were "racists" and called a U.S. marshal a "pig."

The turmoil came from the attempts of the seven other defendants and 20 black spectators—the largest number of Negroes to show up so far—to hold a "Bobby Seale Day" at the trial. Most of the action came in the afternoon session.

When a marshal removed one spectator for refusing to stand when U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman entered the courtroom, Seale said, "You're a pig for kicking him out." The blacks in the spectator section sang out, "Right on."

While the seven other defendants lined up outside the courtroom, defense attorney William Kunstler asked the judge to allow them to present a birthday cake to Seale, who is in custody on a murder charge.

"I wouldn't even let anyone bring me a birthday cake in here," the judge said.

When the seven other defendants tried to bring the cake in, a marshal grabbed it from Jerry Rubin. "Cake-naper," Abbie Hoffman shouted "They've arrested your cake," Rennie Davis yelled to Seale.

WEST TO EAST BERLIN

Hardest Border To Get Across

By ALFRED SCHROEDER
Toronto News Service

BONN — Crossing the Canadian-U.S. border is easy, simple. Crossing the borders in Western Europe usually requires no more than a passport or some other identification. But attempting to travel from West Germany to East Germany is not only extremely difficult for most West Germans but plain humiliating.

Getting an assignment to cover East Germany, the German Democratic Republic, means that a West German newsman is heading for a certain battle with stubborn Communist bureaucrats and a "guided tour" to wherever he is going.

A well-trained, party-line "guide" and a schedule prepared by the press office in East Berlin assure that you will not deviate from the official routes.

You don't just jump into the car and go. And you quickly check your first reaction to reach for the phone to arrange details for the trip. A phone call from West Germany to East Germany usually takes a day, and you never know if the person you need to talk with wants to talk with you.

So you settle down, knowing you can't rush things, and send a cable telling who you are, what your intentions are, and what you would like to report on.

And then you wait. Days, at least, mostly weeks. You send a reminder. Still no answer, unless the East German regime has a show going somewhere, like the Leipzig Fair, their show window to the West. That, they want you to cover, but only that.

Since you want to get your assignment over with, you might give in to the crazy notion to go to East Berlin. Uusally flying to West Berlin and crossing the Wall into East Berlin is the quickest way. West Germans can get a day's permit to East Berlin. Not West Berliners, they can't go at all.

And you are certainly heading for an adventure when you decide to drive through the corridor from West Germany to Berlin, as I did several times.

The last time — and the last time ever, I swear — was several months ago. I intended to stay in West Berlin for a week. My wife was to join me for the weekend, coming up by plane. I had most of her baggage in my car.

Driving from Bonn to the border-crossing point at Helmstedt near Hannover takes a good four hours. Traffic on the Autobahn thins out the closer you get to the border, or demarcation line, as German officials like to call it, since border sounds so permanent.

And then, as you approach the border, there is the long queue of cars and trucks waiting for their turn. The formalities usually take 15 to 30 minutes. That is normal.

But every so often, completely at random, an abnormal procedure takes place, and the last time I went I was the hand-picked victim. Hand-picked by a tall Communist border-guard, jack-booted, breeches, a Soviet-style field-jacket, a tough square, unsmiling face, submachine gun slung over his shoulder.

Waving me out of the line of waiting cars, he directed me to a nearby wooden shed. I knew what was coming. I had seen and heard of it before, but this time I was going to be the one, the victim of one of their super-thorough spot checks.

"Go and take care of your passport formalities. Leave the car here," the guard snarled at me in a strong, high-pitched Saxon accent. And those were to be the last words I was to hear from him, even though I was about to spend the next two hours with him.

I went to the guardhouse across the road, where some 20 people were waiting. Some were swearing, but quietly and to themselves for fear one of the many guards would retaliate with the treatment I was about to get.

I surrendered my passport and was handed a number in return. "Wait outside until your number is called." A stereotype remark, impersonal, made hundreds of times a day.

The passport disappeared through a small slot in the wall behind the desk. There they keep elaborate files on people they don't want in, or those who have committed "unfriendly acts," like journalists who report what they see. My name is there, too.

This procedure can be fast. Perhaps five minutes or less. But it can take up to 30 minutes. Once you get the passport back, you line up at the next counter where you empty your wallet and count out your money, coins and all.

Then another queue, where the "road usage charges" are being paid, a good and steady source of much-needed hard currency for the regime. (And the one and only place in all Germany where you pay to use public roads.)

And then, normally, you can go through, after the guards outside have taken a look at the baggage, under the hood and in the trunk.

But I had to go over to the shed where the guard was still waiting. Invitingly, he opened the squeaking doors. A lift of his chin indicated that he wanted me to drive in. I did and the doors were bolted behind me. Two other uniformed men joined us.

"Take your suitcases out and open them" one of the others said quietly. I did, holding them open so they could see in. But no, they weren't satisfied. I had to unpack every single bit of clothing. Every suit-pocket had to be turned inside-out, the other pieces had to be shaken out before their eyes. They wouldn't touch any of it.

As I emptied my wife's handbag, I put down a little pocket-calendar which immediately caught their interest. "Let's see that," one of the guards said and I held it out to him.

But he wouldn't touch it. With him looking over my shoulder, I had to read out every entry, starting with the New Year. "Paula birthday," "bowling in Bonn," "baby sitter," "shopping in Cologne," "Alexander vaccination," and things like that.

After they were satisfied that it contained no secret spy code, the check continued. Next was the trunk. Tools, spare-wheel, everything came out, lined up on the floor. Then the hood. They peeked at the motor, ran a mirror under the car, and I had to let the air out of all the tires.

Then, they made me take out the seats. One of the door-paddings had to be removed, scratching the paint. The air filter was taken off and they looked at the other places all over the car. Finally they nodded. The two guards left and the armed soldier stayed with me.

By that time I was sweating and steaming, on the fringe of blowing my top. But I knew they were waiting for that. It would make things harder still. So, swearing under my breath, I began putting things together, re-assembling the car and packing my suitcases.

I reinflated the tires amd my guard opened the door for me.

He walked to the gates and as I drove through, he waved to the other guard up the road to let me through his gate and another gate 20 yards away.

I was heading for West Berlin, driving along a 90-mile stretch of Autobahn, carefully watching the speed limit so they wouldn't stop me again. Before entering West Berlin, more formalities, more passport checking and forms to be filled out. And finally the guard waved me through.

I was in West Berlin, breathing clean, free air.

Shoreline Board Adopts Guides

The Shoreline Unified School District board last night adopted the policy and procedures guide for the district, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

The guide is a composite of policy and procedure guides of the districts which make up the new unified district.

In its only other action, the board expelled an elementary student after a closed meeting on disciplinary action. The district is now working with the probation department and child welfare department of the county to place the student elsewhere, McCully said.

PIES AT FESTIVAL

Little Jack Horner Would Have Loved It

The San Francisco Film Festival, whose pretensions to greatness were once considered to be pie in the sky, got a pie in its eye last night.

The San Francisco police got a bit crusty about the whole thing and busted the piemen.

Thirteen persons — seven of them from Marin County — were arrested on suspicion of disturbing the peace but a leader of the pie-in said today the only people disturbed were the police.

Stephen Schmidt, of Gate 6, Sausalito, and a producer for the houseboat-based Grand Central Station film firm, said today the throwing of about 100 meringue pies was in connection with a film his company is making.

"It was intended to be fun," he said of the pie-throwing melee which caused such luminaries as Mayor Joseph Alioto, film stars Anthony Quinn, Virna Lisi, Anna Magnani, producer Stanley Kramer and underground king Andy Warhol to duck in the back door of Nob Hill's Masonic Auditorium.

"It was to be a tribute to the great tradition of making movies on the run . . . getting away from the re-creation of reality and making it as real as it can be," he said. He added that the arrival of 40 officers and a carload of tac squadmen interrupted what had been a "nice mixture of reality and fantasy."

Schmidt said Grand Central Station's movie — filmed on location with eight cameras last night — will be entered in the festival Saturday as the Sausalito firm's entry. "It should be very funny," he allowed.

The pie-throwing began about 7:30 p.m. as guests were arriving for the opening of the festival. "We only threw pies at our own people, not at anyone who didn't want to get into it," Schmidt said. "Some outsiders got in because it looked pretty fun.

"All of the people hit with pies — except the police — were volunteers who knew what was going to happen to them. We had a cleanup crew standing by to take care of the mess afterward but the cops chased them off."

"The police overreacted to a situation," he said. Possibly contributing to the "overreaction," participants admitted, was the fact that one of the nonvolunteers who got plastered was San Francisco police captain Donald Scott. The captain was, by his own admission, a "Large, slow-moving target.

Finally, the firemen were called to hose down the sticky street, the fluffmakers were carted away by spattered police and the gowned and tuxedoed movieland elite went in to watch the world premiere of Anthony Quinn's "Secret of Santa Vittoria."

No pies were thrown inside.

Marinites arrested were: Robert S. Schiff, 25, Neal Warner, 22, Thomas Howell, 23, Suzette Hershman, 23, Jacqueline McKee, 32, and Ronald Breaux, 29, all of Sausalito, and Charles Huff, 19, of Mill Valley.

First For Women

LONDON (AP) — For the first time the Church of England's two main missionary societies, although predominantly male, are headed by women. Mrs. Susanna Hodson, wife of Bishop Mark Hodson of Hereford, has been elected first chairwoman of the United Society for the Propagation of the Gospel; Miss Diana Reader Haris has been installed president of the Church Missionary Society.

Precedent Seat Belt Buckling Failure Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Failure to buckle seat belts may have considerable effect on the outcome of any accident liability lawsuits in the future, court experts say.

The forecast came after the California Supreme Court allowed to stand yesterday a lower court decision that failure to use seat belts may be considered as evidence of contributory negligence in auto accidents.

Other states have had divided opinion in similar cases. yesterday was the first time the issue had reached the top California court, and although the court didn't make a formal ruling, its declining to hear further debate on the issue let the lower court decision stand and thus become legal precedent.

The case was the outgrowth of an accident liability case involving two motorists in Los Angeles.

A state Courts of Appeal ruling held that whether seat belts should have been used was a matter for the jury to decide.

Superior Court Judge Arnold Praeger presided over the Los Angeles trial, ruling the jury should ignore testimony relating to the use of seat belts because there had been no expansive testimony by expert witnesses. A new trial was then ordered solely on the issue of damages.

An appellate court subsequently upheld the first part of Praeger's ruling but ordered that the new trial should include questions of liability and expert testimony.

"The nonexpert can only guess. We will not undertake to enumerate the factors that would be considered by physicists and other experts in answering these questions," the appellate court stated.

Charges Delayed Pending Probe

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Dennis Joseph Taylor, 18, of San Rafael, pending further investigation of his case by the district attorney's office.

Taylor was arrested Sunday on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs and possessing them for sale, contributing to the delinquency of a minor and being drunk in public.

Sheriff's deputies said they found Taylor parked with two young girls early Sunday morning on Civic Center Drive. The trio appeared to be intoxicated, the deputies said. A search of the car revealed what seemed to be a cache of Seconal pills in the glove compartment.

Candles haven't always been used merely to spread light. King Alfred ordered the manufacture of time-leeping candles, six of them sized to burn in 24 hours. In both England and the American colonies, the saying "sale by the inch of a candle" signified an auction where people could bid until a length of candle burned out.

Police Officer, Two Women; Hurt In Collision

A newly appointed San Rafael police officer, his wife and the wife of another police officer received minor injuries yesterday in a three-car pileup at Mission and Nye streets, San Rafael.

William A. Mohler, 24, of Petaluma, who will join the San Rafael force Nov. 1, was treated for a neck sprain at Marin General Hospital.

His wife, Arnita, who received a cut right arm and sprained hand, was treated by her own physician.

Mohler's car, stopped on Mission Street, was hit from the rear by a car driven by Tom A. Battaglia, 57, of 43 Manor Road, Kentfield, at 2:41 p.m., police reported. The Mohler car in turn crashed into the rear of the stopped car ahead driven by San Rafael police officer Sherman William Hool, 29, of San Rafael.

Hool's wife, Leonie, was treated by her family physician for head injuries and whiplash, police reported.

An amazing new ingredient now comes in this familiar package.

It's called a longer-lasting engine.
Longer lasting than what?
Longer lasting than our old engine, which in case you didn't know, was one of the toughest engines around.
The new version is more powerful. (Top speed: 81 mph vs. 78 mph.)
It has better acceleration.

And most important, it weighs the same as the older version. So it doesn't have to work as hard to get you where you're going.
But the generation gap ends there:
It still takes pints of oil instead of quarts.
The new engine will still give you a good 26 miles to a gallon of gas.
It still abstains from antifreeze.
And it's still conveniently located in the rear for better traction in mud and snow.
Yes, all the things that made our old package a hit last year are back.
Including our old package.

Following Line Of Logic To Its Naked Conclusion

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino has given the Tamalpais High School District board a very interesting memorandum on the legal aspects of the athletes' hair cut issue. It is interesting, not for what it says about hair — which isn't much — but for its implications.

Godino's memorandum cites several court decisions that public schools cannot regulate the length of students' hair as a condition for school attendance, hair length being "an essential individual freedom." He then notes that "a slightly different situation exists on the athletic fields" — one on which no court has yet ruled.

Bereft of legal precedent in the matter, Godino then developed his own line of reasoning. Teaching of competitive sports, he held, requires discipline for team cohesiveness. Therefore, the coach may require that members of his team "conform to a particular dress or grooming standard." But then he noted that each sport presents a different question. So he concluded that the athletic director may not decree hair length for all athletes regardless of their sport.

THE IMPLICATIONS are fascinating. If hair length is a matter of individual freedom, so is dress. Athletes, however, are required to wear uniforms. Suppose the football player insists his psyche is damaged by the sweater with the big white number and the odd-looking khaki pants, and insists on playing in dungarees and a plaid shirt? The coach may require him to wear the standard padding for self-protection—but may he force him to wear the uniform pants and jersey?

Or let us suppose the school's colors are red and white, but a particular basketball player cannot stand to wear red and insists on wearing blue. Is the convenience of the referee in identifying which team has the ball more important than the youth's personal freedom?

Let us leave the athletes to quarrel among themselves, and turn to the school band. It is uniformed. But many members do not like the uniform. Since they practice at home and school in their ordinary dress, it cannot be argued that the uniform has educational value. Can they, then, be required to appear in it?

THE QUESTIONS follow quite logically—once we accept the initial premise that personal preference is of paramount importance as being "an essential freedom of the individual." Where this line may lead was indicated in another recent happening in Marin, when Lothar Salin of the county parks and recreation department suggested that, because many people like to swim in the nude, the county should try to find a secluded beach where they may do so without fear of arrest.

If some like to swim in the nude, others like to walk around in the nude. Suppose (to get back to the athletes) that a basketball player reported in the gym unclad. Since his teammates have seen him naked in the dressing room, how could they argue that their sensibilities were offended?

And suppose the same youth went to class in the nude, and the class was polled, and a majority voted to let him stay that way?

SOMEWHERE ALONG the line (probably 'way back in those court decisions which Godino cited) we have overlooked something. We have overlooked that society, and each segment of society, is entitled to make rules by which its members must abide. Probably along the way, we have also overlooked such matters as morality and common sense.

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey apparently gave some of his fellow Democrats an itchy time by saying recently that generally he approved of the way President Nixon was approaching settlement of the Vietnam war.

Particularly pained were various Democratic senators who had to go on weekend television interview shows and face a yes-or-no situation. Did they support Humphrey or not?

The answers varied but added up to a hopeful belief that Humphrey did not mean it exactly as he said it. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and a 1972 presidential possibility within his party, thought Humphrey was talking largely in terms of time — that Nixon was entitled to more of it.

"I don't think the President should be pressured or panicked into a point of view with which he does not agree," Muskie said.

Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., chairman of the Democratic National Committee, seemed to swerve around Humphrey and say what he wanted from Nixon was more of a definite schedule, something of a timetable whereby the public could count on disengagement in Vietnam.

INTO THIS distinguished company, however, came Sen. Gaale McGee, D-Wyo. with a speech in which he said too many Americans do not believe what they read in the newspapers, hear on radio or see on television.

McGee said one reason for this public disenchantment was that journalism generally had "for too long dodged responsibility for what it reports." He thought the press should exercise responsibility for the news by seeing to it that balance was maintained in presenting issues of public interest."

"Too often have I seen statements reported simply because someone—even a senator, perhaps—said them," McGee said in a speech at Denver.

PRESIDENT NIXON, meantime, has been listening to similar discordances within his own Republican party. Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., and Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., both thought, along with some others, that the President should have withdrawn his nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., to the Supreme Court and withdrawn it a long time ago.

The President also said publicly that he would not be swayed by the impact of last Wednesday's "Vietnam Moratorium," and that presidential policy could and would not be made in the streets.

It was no secret, however, that the administration kept close tabs on the demonstration which was devoted largely to opposing Nixon policies in the war. Possibly there was no policy change as result of the Moratorium, but the dimensions of it were measured carefully.

Looking back over the preceding maze of positions and statements, it is hard to escape one conclusion—that when a political figure speaks of telling it "like it is," what he really means is "tell it as I want it."

Double Standard In Statue Heist

While I have long been an admirer of Mr. (Beniamino) Bufano's work and his nonconformist spirit, I can't help but speculate what the consequences might have been had it been some teen-agers who carted off "Louis Pasteur."

Now these teen-agers have voted to restore the statue and are donating money for that purpose. They are to be commended for their efforts.

However, if I recall correctly from rather recent news items, the court has appointed a sort of keeper for Mr. Bufano, to restrain him from some of his more impulsive acts. It seems to me that Mr. Bufano should be held liable for the costs incurred in this latest caper.

If it has been juveniles, they and their parents most certainly would have been held liable.

Rules Necessary, Not Only In Sports

First, let me make my position clear. I don't think long hair or beards belong on athletic fields. And it's not because I don't care for long hair on men — which I don't — but because the coaches have rules against it.

The main issue, as I see it, is not the long hair but the disregard for known rules. Athletic teams and society cannot exist without rules.

Unfortunately, a small segment of students today feel that they aren't "in" unless they show their contempt for authority and laws. If we're not careful, this will swell to the majority, if parents and school superintendents continue to undermine the standards set by teachers and coaches.

I have been involved with athletics for a long time. My two boys became interested in sports at an early age and were active in most all sports through high school, college, and beyond. Therefore, I have been very fortunate to be acquainted with so many coaches. And I don't know of one, who was worth his salt, that didn't have a strict code or set of rules to follow. These standards were not set just to produce winning teams but to produce men — men with character and self-discipline; in other words, good citizens.

China Camp Far From Ghost Town

I enjoyed the article about the history of China Camp and the surrounding area (I-J Marin Magazine, Oct. 11). It was interesting and must have taken much work to prepare.

Everyone talks of China Camp of the past. However, it is not a ghost town, the shrimp are still in the bay, and cooked shrimp is available at China Camp six-eight months of the year.

Now that the fall run of striped bass has started full swing off the shores of China Camp and cooked shrimp is available most of the time, you are lucky to find a parking place at China Camp on the weekends.

Alexakos' View Draws Dissent

Alexakos wrote Monday of "intellectual geegaws and knickknacks that clutter and confuse the mind." He stated, "It is a luxury indeed to believe that law and oreder can exist without force," and "another luxury is our lopsided concern with justice."

We can agree that a fraction of any population will obey certain laws only if forced to. And at times attempts to be completely just lead to injustices. But if we are trying to clarify our thinking, we should consider this nation's experience during the years of Prohibition.

That experience should have taught us at least two things: (1) A law that does not earn willing compliance from most people cannot be enforced. (2) The more forecefully an unpopular law is "enforced," the stronger grows organized crime and the weaker becomes respect for all law. We see it happening today with the laws on marijuana and with the corruption in the army service clubs. The "amatuers" get picked off leaving "the organization" with a near monopoly. And "the organization" has or rapidly gains the resources to reduce its risks by corrupting law enforcement agencies and politicians.

Alexakos blames delays of the courts on our lopsided concern for justice. The facts do not support him. Many of the delays result simply from the legal maneuvering of lawyers trying to help their clients postpone or avoid justice. More are due to the failure of communities to provide enough law courts.

No, Alexakos, it is a mistake to believe that force can provide the principal support for law and order, and that human kindness, misdirected or not, is ever a luxury.

Social Security Series Valuable

On behalf of the Social Security Administration, I want to compliment you on the excellent articles by Harry Craft concerning the operation of the social security program.

As Mr. Craft pointed out in his lead paragraph, social security in Marin County has to be regarded as big business. By informing your readers of their rights under the law, you are not only performing a valuable public service but are also indirectly contributing to the growth of the economy.

Ours of course is a service agency whose primary aim is to ensure that the right person receives the right social security check at the right time. In disseminating information about our program you have helped to make our job easier.

Louder They Yell, Less They Know

It has always been my opinion that a school, large or small, is a place or institution to attend to get an education, not to dictate as some of the so-called students seem to think. As for financial aid, what have the howlers done to earn it? It is all money put there by the tax paying public, and anyone shouting "this is my school" should be ousted to show just who is running the show. The louder they yell, the less they know.

I haven't the vocabulary to express just what I think of them . . .

SAN FRANCISCO—The lure of California is one of the most remarkable phenomena of our time. Like a great magnet it pulls people — young, old, a vanguard of hippies, escapees, opters out — from the rest of the country to this slope on the Pacific shore.

The belief was that the state's growth rate had begun to flatten out. On the contrary, the latest Census Bureau estimate showed that the population upsurge was continuing at a rate of 23.7 per cent annually. Since the last head count 3,700,000 people swelled the grand total of this record-breaking state.

Even for the chamber of commerce boosters this is almost too much of a good thing. Like the frantic movement of the lemmings to the seashore, with an instinctual drive that sends them finally to their destruction, there will soon be standing room only if the present rate of growth continues.

NOTHING COULD illustrate this better than the controversy over Point Reyes National Seashore. A beautiful, still relatively untouched peninsula about an hour from San Francisco, Point Reyes is one of the few spots on the coast that has not fallen to developers and the subdividers. With parks in the metropolitan bay area hideously overcrowded, Point Reyes is a natural outlet for city dwellers in search of quiet and unspoiled beauty.

But the subdividers are on the doorstep and pressing hard. Less than half the land for Point Reyes has been acquired by the federal government since the project was authorized in 1962. With each passing year land values have sharply increased. And now the White House is saying through the Bureau of the Budget that a freeze is imperative through 1973 to hold down spending and hold inflation.

THIS IS AN illustration, too, of the dilemma of the Nixon administration. Economy and a balanced budget are the prescription for the price spiral. Yet prices continue to move upward, making it more and more difficult to take essential action.

Other parks and seashores staked out by Congress to save a part of vanishing America before it is all paved with concrete are also threatened by the double-squeeze of inflation and economy. Besides Point Reyes, Cape Cod in Massachusetts, Assateague Island in Chesapeake Bay and Padre Island in Texas are in a half-completed state, threatened by land speculators who stand to gain from federal delay.

The Nixon administration has been generous with rhetoric. Secretary of Interior Walter Hickel, in a speech to the National Park and Recreation Association in Chicago, proposed a $6.3 billion development program for urban parks. The secretary noted that while 75 per cent of the population is concentrated in urban areas, city dwellers have reasonable access to only 25 per cent of available recreation facilities and 3 per cent of public recreation lands.

"The solution is clear," said Hickel with a fine rhetorical flourish, "an equitable distribution of outdoor recreation resources and opportunities."

POINT REYES precisely fits this description. But Hickel in the same speech included an escape hatch that negated much of the fine rhetoric. "Present fiscal restraints" would very likely make it impossible to ask Congress for any funds to make the grandiose dream a reality. The Hickel speech coincided with a letter from Budget Director Robert Mayo to House interior chairman Wayne Aspinall warning that under "present constraints" land purchase for parks and recreation areas would not be completed until mid-1973. That was the large economy answer to Hickel's pie in the sky.

When President Nixon met former President Johnson in the redwood forest last summer, the same generous rain of rhetoric fell on the touching scene. The redwoods — some of the redwoods — had been saved from the exploiters. It has been a furious battle with the conservationists in and out of Congress repelling one assault after another. Thanks to federal-state action finally carried through, generations to come will see a part of this magnificent heritage out of the past.

THE CONSERVATIONISTS are going into battle over Point Reyes, and nowhere is the breed more aggressive and determined than in California. Aspinall is moving to get added funds out of Congress, so that untouched shore may still be saved.

But the economizers have the final say. Congress can propose but the Bureau of the Budget disposes by freezing extra money that may be voted. As the people push accelerates, the standing-room-only sign covers more and more of a once-free land.

Bolivian Regime Joins Peru In Anti-U.S. Camp

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign Affairs Analyst

The new regimes of Bolivia and Peru are nationalistic, leftist and anti-American.

The ingredients are the same as have faced the United States before in the leftist-leaning government of Joao Goulard in Brazil, in Communist Cuba, and in right-wing anti-American governments in Argentina.

But this time the ingredients are mixed in different proportions than in the past and they complicate the problems of President Nixon as he seeks a new approach to U.S. relations with Latin America.

GEN. ALFREDO Ovando Candia, leader of the Bolivian coup that overthrew the elected successor government to the late Gen. Rene Barrientos Ortuno, has described the policy of his new regime as "leftist nationalism."

He said he would seek "ideological confederation" with Peru whose elected government fell to a military coup on Oct. 3, 1968.

Within less than a month of his take-over, Ovando was following the script.

Last weekend he announced his government was taking over the $140 million Bolivian Gulf Oil Co. He hinted that other foreign-owned operations in Bolivia also would be seized.

Natural targets, according to Bolivian government sources, would be South American Placers, a U.S. gold mining company, and American-owned Bolivian Power Co. that supplies power to La Paz, the Bolivian capital.

IN THIS, Ovando was following the precedent set by Peru which first seized the American-owned International Petroleum Co., claiming a debt of more than $690 million owed by the company to the government for illegal operations, and going on from there to seize mining properties and the sugar interests of W. R. Grace & Co. Next on the list is a take-over of internal communications effecting the International Telephone and Telegraph system.

Both Bolivia and Peru have huge Indian populations which are in the majority but scarcely figure in the economy of either.

Both new governments have declared themselves leftist but non-Communist although both have moved toward closer relations with the Communist bloc.

BOLIVIA HAS expressed appreciation for more than $200 million in U.S. aid but has declared the United States does not understand Latin American grassroots problems.

It has declared it will seek the help of Communist Romania in operating the oil properties.

Up in the air is the question of compensation to Gulf Oil, of the future of a natural gas pipeline to Argentina to be financed largely by the World Bank and future U.S. aid.

THE MILITARY of both Bolivia and Peru have been described as admirers of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic, a sentiment shared by many of the military in Argentina.

Cuba found quick riches in seizure of American properties and since has been forced to exist on $1 million a day from Russia.

Outsiders Fight For Parking Space; Students At College, For Money

Maybe typical of the way people have been acting lately was a confrontation in Corte Madera Saturday of two motorists from Oakland and San Francisco.

Both tried to land the same parking space, refusing to yield ground until the inevitable collision. Then they got out and started a fist fight over it, battering each other but slightly by the time police arrived to calm things.

They still weren't through. When police arrived, each tried to have the other arrested — one for assault, the other for assault with a deadly weapon, meaning his car.

Police sent them both home to cool off. If they'll fight like that for a Corte Madera parking space, think how crowded it must be in Oakland and San Francisco!

The work-study program, $187,000, 80 per cent of it federal, 10 per cent from employers and 10 per cent from the college.

National Defense loans, $29,500, with 10 per cent coming from the College of Marin Foundation and the rest in federal money.

Economic Opportunity grants, $23,500, all federal money.

Nursing student loans, $12,500, 90 per cent federal and 10 per cent local money.

Nursing scholarships, $2,500, all federal money.

Law enforcement education loans, $3,600, all federal money.

Federally insured loans, $8,000 lent so far this year.

College of Marin grants, $8,500, from donations and bookstore income.

Part-time student jobs, $30,000 from the district budget.

Student meals program, $30,000 from an override tax levied this year.

Emergency loans, $5,000, all local money.

The GI Bill, an estimated $850,000 this school year in Veterans Administration money.

All the above funds have been fully committed, except for small amounts in the law enforcement and nursing programs, and local tax money can't be used for financial aid in most cases. That's why the college has been scratching so hard to find new sources of aid money.

AT LAST WEEK'S college board meeting, a girl from the Third World Liberation Front capsuled part of that group's philosophy very neatly.

"We believe if we can't get the education we want, then nobody can get it," she said.

Somebody like that really needs an education; but with that attitude it seems unlikely any meaningful learning will sink in.

ART BUCHWALD

Nixon Spans Generation Gap With A Bridge Named Agnew

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon caused a great deal of speculation when he announced so far in advance that he was going to make a major pronouncement concerning Vietnam. By selecting Nov. 3 as the date, he has given the press and other news media an opportunity to guess what he is going to say and do. The rumors are getting wilder each day.

I can reliably report that, despite all the trial balloons that the White House is sending up, one of the things he plans to announce is that he is making Vice President Spiro Agnew his liaison between the White House and the intellectual community.

A SPOKESMAN SAID, "No one in the administration has a better understanding or a deeper interest in the intellectuals than the vice president. Time and time again Mr. Agnew has gone to bat for the educated classes in the country, particularly the students.

"The President feels that by announcing Mr. Agnew's appointment as his personal representative, he will be able to take some of the steam out of the moratorium protests. The feeling is that the vice president is the only one who can communicate with the students and protesters."

I asked the spokesman how the President had discovered this.

"THE PRESIDENT has always known that his vice president has been a popular figure on the nation's campuses. Not only has Mr. Agnew had rapport with students, but he is also respected and admired by professors and college presidents. They see in Mr. Agnew a man of warmth, generosity and intelligence and someone who an state their case to the President."

"Did the President come to this decision on his own?"

"No, he did not," the spokesman said. "He discussed it with representative college students."

"Which ones?"

"David Eisenhower and his wife, Julie. I don't think there is any doubt that they speak for the entire college generation."

"Will Vice President Agnew be to the Nixon administration what Eric Goldman was to the Johnson administration?"

"YES, EXCEPT THAT, as vice president, Mr. Agnew will have more influence on intellectual matters in the country. It is hoped that when students or educators, writers, historians, philosophers and artists have something to say, they will put it in the willing ear of Mr. Agnew. We want them to feel the vice president is one of them."

"Has the vice president been informed of his appointment?"

"Yes, and he's very excited about it. He loves working with youth and with educated people. He feels that they're the hope of the future and that what they have to say is important to the direction in which this country is going. He is particularly impressed with their eagerness to speak out on the issues of the day, and he feels that the more the intellectual community is heard from, the less mistakes the administration will make. He doesn't believe if you've seen one campus, you've seen them all."

"THE PRESIDENT was most fortunate to have someone of Mr. Agnew's intellectual standing available," I said.

"President Nixon feels that way. At first he was going to appoint Gen. Lewis B. Hershey to the job, but David and Julie persuaded the President that Mr. Agnew would be a better choice."

"I don't see how Vice President Agnew can take on this job with everything else he has to do," I said.

"The President hopes to ease up on Mr. Agnew's other duties so he can devote all his attention to the intellectuals and students. For a start, he told the vice president he no longer has to meet him at the airport."

Sausalito Bar Robbery Denied

Three of four men accused of committing Sausalito's first armed robbery in 18 months last Thursday pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to the felony charge.

A preliminary hearing for Kenneth Earl Armstrong, 26; Isac Junior Junkins, 19, and Willie L. Lee, 20, all of San Francisco, was set for next Wednesday. The fourth defendant John Allen Nalls, 19, is being held in jail in San Mateo County, it was reported in court.

They were arrested by Millbrae police after an all points bulletin describing the suspects and a getaway car was flashed by Sausalito police. They are accused of holding up a bartender at Smitty's Tavern.

Reed Pupils Due Old Style Report Cards

A return to old-fashioned report cards, complete with social conduct evaluation, has been authorized by the Reed School District Board, according to Supt. Robert B. Gaw.

Trustees, meeting Tuesday night, voted 4-1, with Chairman Leo Souza dissenting, to reestablish checklist and letter grade report cards for all grades in the district.

Trustees said the move was made to bring a measure of uniformity in reporting to parents throughout the district. Previously, each school used its own method of reporting, relying heavily on parent conferences and written evaluations of a student's academic achievements.

Under the new system, primary grade students will be evaluated by a check list system with progress noted as "satisfactory" or "nonsatisfactory," Gaw said.

All other students will receive both the checklist grading and letter grades. However, parents will be allowed to request that their children not receive letter grades.

In all classes, parent-teacher conferences will be scheduled twice a year.

In addition to academic subject evaluation, Gaw said, the board voted to reinstitute social conduct evaluation, dropped by many California school districts in recent years in favor of the more private parent teacher conferences.

The Reed School District Board Also:

GARDENING — Heard a report of steps taken by staff to deal with weed problems.

ENROLLMENT — Heard that district enrollment as of Oct. 15 was 2,043, compared with 2,028 on Sept. 17.

REPORT — Took no action on a supplementary report of the district citizens study and finance committee outlining parents' attitudes.

BONDS — Heard the district may have a buyer for $180,000 in unsold construction bonds.

DEDUCTIONS — Refused a request by the American Federation of Teachers to have union dues deducted automatically from paychecks, as already done for members of the California Teachers Association.

SCREENING — Heard Gaw outline screening procedures for hiring a new assistant superintendent in charge of business.

Interior Panel Boss Favors Seashore Funds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The House Interior Committee's chairman favors legislation to provide more funds to purchase land for Point Reyes National Seashore.

Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., said yesterday while attending the American Mining Congress convention that "We authorized the thing several years ago."

"Going ahead, keeping our word ... that's the important thing," he said.

The congressman blamed the Bureau of the Budget because $38 million still is needed to buy some 31,000 acres in Marin County for the park.

The bureau cut the fund for such purchases from $124 million to $76 million, he said, and refused to set up a priority list for expenditures. Pt. Reyes is one of several projects seeking money.

Chlorine Kills Little Reed Sewer Odor

The addition of chlorine to incoming sewage has significantly reduced odors emanating from the Richardson Bay Sanitary District's Trestle Glen treatment plant in Tiburon, according to a sanitary engineer's report.

In a letter to the sanitary district board dated Tuesday, San Rafael engineer Warren E. Nute said the chlorine has "completely eliminated hydrogen sulfide previously detected" in manholes on Stewart Drive in Little Reed Heights, main source of odor complaints.

Also, Nute said, the chlorine treatment has reduced to one-tenth the concentration of hydrogen sulfide at the treatment plant.

Detection of odor sources at the plant, Nute said, has indicated "the collective effect of the odors away from the plant results from the combination of the small odor sources within the plant."

Nute said he now is testing the activated sludge treatment process to "formulate more positive process control methods or process improvements . . . (to) reduce odors due to plant upsets."

The letter was the second in a series of monthly reports from Nute to the board on odor studies and controls.

Water Panel Sets $1,000 Waste Fees

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Companies and public agencies discharging wastes into California waters will have to pay fees of up to $1,000 the Water Resources Control Board said yesterday.

The board said the fees would be imposed when the agencies report on the quantity and quality of their wastes, and are in addition to the waste treatment requirements they must meet.

Agencies later changing the quantity or quality of their wastes would pay new fees.

A meeting will be held in Sacramento Nov. 20 to set a complete fee schedule for waste dischargers.

The fees were authorized by the anti water pollution bill passed in the last legislative session. Violators of treatment standards can be fined up to $6,000 a day.

Trespass, Pot Charges Denied

Stephen Lee McDonnell, 20, of Richmond, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of marijuana possession and trespass stemming from his arrest Oct. 15 in a Stinson Beach cabin.

A preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 31.

The cases of three other young persons arrested with McDonnell and charged with trespass were referred to probation officers for possible transferral to juvenile court.

Geraldine Dianna Oldham, 18, and Ralph Ward Daeschner, 19, both of Richmond, and Steven Randall Ward, 18, of El Cerrito, were told to return to court Nov. 7.

The case against Daniel William McDonald, 18, of El Cerrito, charged with trespass was dismissed when it was learned that he was entering the Marine Corps soon.

Quiz Slowing Commuters On Bay Span

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bay Bridge commuters face a little extra delay this week for the sake of smoother bridge crossing in the future.

Interviewers from the State Division of Bay Toll Crossings are questioning commuters at the toll gates yesterday through Sunday to find out where motorists are going.

The information will be used to help determine how many ramps and toll gates will be needed for the planned Southern Crossing, said Robert Hardgrove, the division's information officer.

The interviewers began at 6 a.m. today stopping every 10th car for a maximum of 30 seconds' quizzing. Their goal is 16,000 commuters a day.

Teaching Women Of Peru

By BETTY FROST

The different, sometimes difficult milieu of Huancayo, Peru, came alive as the slender blonde young woman spoke of the three years she and her husband lived there.

Mrs. Robert McLaughlin, the former Charlotte Robinson, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Robinson, in Tiburon. But the ties which she and Robert made during their lengthy stay in Peru remain strong.

The Peace Corps volunteers finished their studies at the University of Washington three years ago and went to Kansas City for a 10-week-training program sponsored by the University of Missouri. Robert had his degree in architecture, and Charlotte had majored in art education.

THE COUPLE settled in what Charlotte calls a "newish adobe building," where they had an apartment on the second floor. They had running water, but no hot water or heating in a climate that "was like a perpetual early Marin spring."

Huancayo is 10,500 ft. in elevation, and has a population of around 90,000 people. The city, in central Peru, is a transportation focal point for travelers to the high mountains, the jungle and the city of Lima. Because it is a crossroads, the city is famous for its Sunday Fair. Goods are displayed along a mile long market place.

"It is the largest market in Peru," Charlotte said.

McLaughlin spent 18 months working in the national office for urban planning in Huancayo. He later taught architectural design at the Universidad del Central del Peru. He also designed and built a day nursery for the children of working women. The project was sponsored by the Methodist Church, which maintains a school in Huancayo.

CHARLOTTE TAUGHT home economics and sewing under a program of the Peruvian Department of Agriculture. She also had what would be comparable to a 4-H Club. She assisted the women of the town in forming clubs to learn how to utilize their food in a more nutritious way.

"The potato is native to Peru," she said, "and there are about 20 delicious varieties, but I tried to discourage the women from using rice, potatoes and beans at the same meal."

The native food she found very good, and she learned to do a number of dishes. Chinese food is also popular in Peru, which has a large Chinese population and a number of Chinese restaurants.

While the women "are always spinning thread so that it is very hard and waterproof, and do excellent weaving and embroidery," Charlotte was ble to show them how to make clothes that fit properly.

"I HAD NEVER taken a course in home economics" she stated, "so it must have been what I learned at home from mother." Adina Robinson is a home economics teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School.

Her own cooking facilities consisted of a prima stove, which had to be pumped to operate. When she contrived an oven out of a five gallon oil can it was a sensation with her Peruvian friends. She taught the women how to make their own ovens.

"Cinnamon rolls really caught on," she recalled.

For our visit she made "chicha morada," a soft drink made of purple corn.

AN ATTRACTIVE, bright blue trunk, made, the young woman insisted," from orange crates and tin cans because the Peruvians utilize everything," revealed a treasure chest of momentoes . . . a miniature bus like the Huancayo transportation . . . three handsome llama replicas, a throw of alpaca fur, conquino masques used in festival dances . . . gourds with designs burned into them — some utilitarian serving as bowls, others decorative . . . mantas, large square scarves in which Peruvian women carry their babies on their backs . . . a pancho from the high country near Cuzco . . . cloth handpainted by an Amazon jungle tribe.

But her relations with the people are what Charlotte values most. She maintains her friendships with several families and send them books and dress patterns, which are very expensive in Peru. "It is no kindness to send them items on which they will have to pay heavy duty," she said.

HER INFLUENCE has opened new opportunities for at least two young women. One, Gladys Taverso, has been granted a scholarship at Mary

Uncertain Women Can Ease Into College Life

By BARBARA HOSMER

Some of the mechanics of going back to college after years away were outlined by Sister Marie, O.P., director of admissions at Dominican College in the second of the series "Continuing Education for Women" at the San Rafael campus yesterday.

There are two kinds of applicants who come to her admissions office, Sister Marie said, — those who already know the direction their study will take and others who are motivated toward further education but who are not quite sure what they are interested in.

She suggested that a good way to ease back into college life would be to take one course in a no-degree program to start sampling on a part-time basis.

"I suggest that you go through the catalog, select what interests you, and ease into college life. It is probably more interesting to take one or two courses at the moment," she said.

Then, she suggested to the largely 30 to 40 age group, the student might wish to move on toward a degree program in a field of interest.

As for Dominican College, she said that each person returning to college after years away is considered on an individual basis and that the important thing is to find each's interest and discuss it.

"The whole application folder — the high school and any college records as well as things you may have done in between — is considered in its entirety."

This year Dominican will offer for the first time a chance for mature persons enrolling a chance to take the College Level Examination to evaluate the propective student's knowledge in five areas of liberal arts. The test, as explained by Robert G. Cameron, director of the Western Region office of the College Entrance Examination Board, is scored on a level with current college sophomores and the sections passed allow credit and requirement fulfillment.

"This general battery of tests shows where strengths and weaknesses are and also will assist a counselor in suggesting a program of studies," Cameron pointed out.

Subject examinations will also be offered to measure achievement in specific college courses, also lower division.

College Level Examinations will be given at Dominican College the week of Jan. 18. To take the general tests application for admission must be filed with Sister Marie, Director of Admissions, by Dec. 8; and application for specific subject examinations must be filed with Sister M. Anita, O.P., registrar, between Dec. 8 and 12.

Cameron said that the test questions are short answer type.

Artelle Farley, supervisor of student teaching for the college, outlined the one year graduate program for teaching credentials. She added that junior college teaching credential requirements are slightly beyond master's degree level.

'Kate Smith Sweetheart Neckline' Is So Old It's 'Funky' Fashion

By LINDA DEUTSCH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Add a new word to fashion's vocabulary: "funky." It means clothes so old they're new. The latest qualifier: the "Funky Forties."

Even once-conservative firms such as Miss Pat and Koret of California tossed in a few "attic prints"—tiny flowers on fluid jersey. Dubbing its sportwear "collectors' items," Miss Pat interpreted the 40s in a funky floral cardigan jacket with a gored flip skirt. Alongside was the "underwear look," crocheted minidresses culled from way back in the 20s.

Another keyword in California sportwear was freedom—the freedom to be active. Combos by Alex Colman, White Stag and Koret were multipurpose outfits to suit the athlete and socialite. Colman's miniculottes were covered with maxiskirts. And long tunics over long pants doubled as dresses when the pants were stripped away. Koret called it the "picture puzzle look," pieces that fit together in various combinations.

Running with the rugged sports gal, White Stagg provided fashions for jogging, golfing, tennis, water skiing and even surfer suits— body-clinging, bright print rubber jackets over matching shorts.

Skirt lengths varied from mini to maxi and everything in between. But designers of pants agreed: The big bell-bottomed slacks of last seasons have disappeared. Enter the straight leg —neither fitted, nor flaired.

Funky is in; floppy is out.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 17-year-old girl. All my life I've tried to please my father, but he remains cold towards me. I get ridicule from him. He downgrades my mother, too, because "brains are bad for a woman."

I've tried joking around with him and hugging him to show affection, but he shoves me away or snaps something out at me.

He thinks my older sister is just great. She never made the honor society, but she is certainly A-plus with our father. He bought her a car which she demolished. Yet I have to earn my own money for the car that will provide me transportation to college if I am able to go. She got a B.A. this year.

The latest is that my sister is to have a very expensive wedding, and there isn't enough money saved to pay for it and also my expenses at college. Nothing has been said yet, but I know I'll be the fall guy again.

Should I plan to leave home as soon as I graduate from high school in June?—SECOND AND NOTHING.

DEAR S AND N:

I can't believe your father's favoritism would extend to giving your sister a big wedding at the expense of your college education. A long mother-daughter talk might show you antagonism works both ways. Perhaps without knowing it, you've been turning off your father as much as he has turned you off. If you both learn the reasons why you strike sparks, there may still be time to change things.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

In answer to "Invasion of Privacy" who doesn't like the telephone operator giving her a jingle when she leaves the phone off the hook on purpose, to get a little rest:

She won't be bothered if she takes the phone off the hook, waits for the dial tone, then dials her own phone number. She'll get a busy signal, and any one who calls will also get a busy signal.

If that sound is too noisy, put a pillow over the telephone, and you can sleep like a baby. But anyone having a party line had better not try this.—FORMER TELEPHONE OPERATOR

DEAR HELEN:

I have a managing cousin who thinks she is doing me a favor, but she's just about to ruin my love life.

She is four years older than I am, and she tells my boy friend all the time that he should come to see me more often, treat me nicer, bring gifts, and so forth. He works, so he can't be at my house all the time. I'm afraid he thinks I'm putting her up to this, because he has acted kind of cold lately.

How can I tell my cousin to lay off and also get across to my boy friend that I'm not trying to manage him through her?—T.Y.

DEAR T:

If "cool it, cousin!" doesn't get through to her, then she's a hopeless managing female; and you'd better warn your boy friend that anything she says should not be held against you. He'll probably understand because almost everybody has at least one born matchmaker in the family.—H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent Journal.

Plan For Safety Of The Children When They Go Trick Or Treating

Whether your children are tricked or treated on Halloween depends on you, according to Dr. Albert H. Domm.

"Well-planned events and safety consciousness will treat youngsters to an enjoyable evening," says Dr. Domm, child safety spokesman and medical director for an insurance company.

He warned that unsupervised children may be "tricked" by accidents on the eve of witches and goblins.

"Parents can join their boys and girls in home and community Halloween parties for their own enjoyment and their children's welfare," he says.

Many clubs and community groups sponsor such parties at parks, schools and meeting places for the purpose of treating children and protecting them from tricks. Dr. Domm strongly urges parents to take advantage of these events.

He also offered several safety suggestions:

Beware of costumes which might be inflammable. If youngsters wear masks, be sure they can breathe easily and that their vision is not impaired.

You would not ordinarily let your children wander through the streets alone at night, so do not let Halloween be an exception. Accompany the children to parties. If youngsters go door-to-door, stay near them.

What To Buy In Markets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — USDA's food experts report that food shoppers this weekend will find good selections of meat and poultry and some choices in fresh vegetables and fruit in food stores and supermarkets. All areas will feature a good variety of seafood.

Broiler-fryer chickens and turkeys head the list of the most abundant meats. Ground beef, beef liver, roast and steaks should be in good supply for all shoppers. Pork items in best supply in all areas are bacon, boston butts, chops, roasts, ham and smoked picnics. Some areas may feature sausage and spareribs. The most abundant fish in all areas are Maine sardines, canned tuna and fish sticks and portions, according to the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Fresh vegetables in best supply are cabbage, onions, potatoes and sweet potatoes. Apples and grapefruit will be the most abundant fruits.

Other foods on USDA's plentiful foods list for October are fresh pears, canned peaches, rice and dry split peas.

In the West:

Poultry and eggs are higher in all West Coast markets while pork is lower. Beef, veal, calf, lamb and butter are relatively unchanged from last week.

All sizes of eggs are higher. Chicken fryers are higher in California.

Boston butts are lower while spareribs are also lower in Portland but higher in Los Angeles. Smoked hams are higher in Los Angeles and lower in other markets. Slab bacon is lower in Portland while sliced bacon is lower in California.

Fruits and vegetables in best supply include: Apples, bananas, grapes, oranges, cabbage, celery, onions and potatoes.

Best seafood buys in the West, according to the U.S. Department of the Interior, are king crab legs, canned tuna, canned Pacific shrimp, rockfish, sword fish and Pacific oysters.

STAN'S

We sell Head skis and give away Head service.

Head does such a great job putting a ski together we don't have to spend much time keeping it together.

But accidents happen. So once in a while we fix one up.

If the damage is accidental and the ski is less than a year old, we either replace it from our own stock or repair it without cost. After the year's up, there's a replacement or repair 5 year warranty, pro-rated by age on all metal skis.

And we can help you out in a lot of small ways, too. Like fixing an edge that doesn't edge correctly. Or filling in a gouge from a sudden rock that came out of nowhere. Or refinishing your Head refinishable tops that got all scratched up in the liftline. Or maybe you just need a little pep talk for the slopes.

The care and feeding of you and your skis is important to us.

You'll probably never need it.

The other girl is studying to become a home economist and will continue the work Charlotte started in Huancayo.

"I consider motivating this girl to help her people my most worthwhile long term accomplishment in Peru," she said.

Charlotte attended Reed School District elementary schools, and was graduated from Redwood High School. Her husband's family are from Fort Yates, N. D. Robert went ahead and is now living in the town of McLaughlin, 35 miles out of Fort Yates. The settlement was named for his grandfather, James McLaughlin, the first Indian commissioner in the area. Fort Yates is the headquarters of the standing Rock-Sioux Tribe.

The architect will be an economic development specialist for the United Tribes, designing housing and community buildings for several reservations.

And Charlotte? She thinks there may be an opportunity to continue the work she did in Peru, teaching the women of the tribes health and hygiene and the principles of nutrition.

Candidate Wants Campaign Funds

FRESNO (UPI) — An announced candidate for the state Senate yesterday told a legislative hearing the state should pay part of a candidate's campaign expenses.

HE said if the state paid for campaigns the elected officials would "owe the public for its support and not some interest group."

Prober Decries Wholesale U.S. Drug Abuses

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The House Crime Committee today opened four days of hearings into the flow of drugs from legitimate sources into the mushrooming world of the addict.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., chairman, said "no problem confronting our nation is more serious or critical" than abuse of dangerous drugs.

URGES RECORDS

"Our committee will undertake immediately an effort designed to bring about adequate record-keeping concerning the effects of dangerous drugs," Pepper said last night.

He said his committee hoped to find out "the number of persons who are both psychologically and physiologically dependent upon dangerous drugs."

Pepper revealed previously that the investigations in preparation for the hearings have led not only to illegal drug pushers but also to outwardly respectable dealers in pharmaceuticals.

"Everyone, including most of the medical profession, will be astonished to learn how little regulation there is of the volume of production of legitimate drugs by legitimate companies—much of which is not used as medicine but for some kind of kick," Pepper has said.

PILLS MISUSED

He said tranquilizers, barbituates and diet pills were being misused "by the million."

The committee's scope of inquiry is broad—youth crime, drugs, and law enforcement, including police, courts and correctional institutions.

Pepper has said he believes the country needs "wholesale reform" of the laws for rehabilitating addicts, as well as public attention on the "vultures" who push drugs through illegal channels.

"The testimony which will unfold in the next four days of hearings will demonstrate the methods of illegal as well as irresponsible destruction," he said.

Sergeant Uses Fifth During Graft Quiz

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sgt. Maj. William O. Wooldridge refused today on grounds of possible self-incrimination to reply to charges that he and a group of buddies profiteered from operation of enlisted men's clubs on Army bases.

Wooldridge and three others accused of sharing a rake-off running into many thousands of dollars cited the Fifth Amendment in response to questions by the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee.

Wooldridge—once the Army's top noncommissioned officer—remained mute even while being described by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., as "a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and being told by Percy the charges against him were "a discredit to the very uniform you wear."

Wooldridge invoked the Fifth Amendment 37 times in 80 minutes before the committee switched to questioning others among the four men seated side-by-side at the witness table. The questioning covered the men's military background, finances, alleged kickbacks, German and Swiss bank accounts and reports of transactions of thousands of dollars at a time between them.

Wooldridge's attorney told the subcommittee that the sergeant "may later, indeed, be prosecuted. I have to protect him . . . as a soldier he is still a U.S. citizen."

At almost the same time that the beribboned Wooldridge —as well as three other men linked to the alleged scheme of kickbacks, rakeoffs and other irregularities — took the Fifth, the Army announced a further downgrading of Wooldridge's status.

Army Secretary Stanley R. Resor said the former top-ranked enlisted man in the Army was being "involuntarily released" from its sergeants major program. In effect, it meant that he was being barred from any future role as a key non-commissioned adviser on assignment of enlisted men to senior positions from the battalion level on up to all-Army.

In addition to Wooldridge, those taking the Fifth Amendment were M/Sgt. William E. Higdon, retired Sgt. 1/c Seymour (Sandy) Lazar.

David L. Thomas, lawyer for Wooldridge, Higdon and Narvaez, told the committee at the outset that his three clients had been advised not to answer questions because of the "accusatory nature" of the hearing.

The alleged scandals began at Augsburg, Germany, in the early 1960s, moved to Fort Benning, Ga., about the time Wooldridge got his Pentagon job, then shifted to Vietnam. Wooldridge was transferred to Gen. Creighton W. Abrams' Saigon staff last year.

Higdon, Hatcher and Lazar were colleagues of Wooldridge at Augsburg, Germany. Their assignments since have been similar and all four have been accused of participating in the Ft. Benning and Vietnam thefts as well.

Lazar is now president of Maredem Co., a firm Wooldridge and the other sergeants formed while in Vietnam. A subcommittee accountant said they used the company as a profitable conduit to sell goods to clubs they managed.

Paul Revere was born in 1735 and died in 1818.

Innocent Plea To Possession Of Stolen Goods

Steven Francis Potter, 18, of 270 Oak Manor Drive, Fairfax, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing stolen property.

A preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Potter was arrested Tuesday in San Rafael when he returned to a motorcycle shop to pick up a cycle which was being repaired. The repairman had noticed that the serial numbers of the cycle had been removed.

Police said Potter told them he had purchased the brand new motorcycle for $100 from a man who gave him a ride while he was hitchiking. Officers said the youth had no bill of sale, registration slip or license plates for the cycle.

Vocabulary Switch

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — Young people have their own new vocabulary for describing hopeful and hopeless living, says Paul Geren, president of Baptist-owned Stetson University, but they don't like the older generation's terms for it, such as "lost" and "saved."

Bushido is the code of moral principles which developed among the Samurai class of Japan during the civil war period of the 16th Century.

Arab Guerrillas Kidnap Lebanese

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A force of 650 Arab guerrillas invaded Lebanon from Syria at three points today and kidnapped 20 Lebanese army soldiers before they were driven back with tanks and rockets. Anti-Lebanon demonstrations broke out in Damascus and Amman where a Lebanese flag was Fighting also broke out in a Palestine refugee camp outside Beirut between refugees and Lebanese security forces and there were antigovernment and anti-American demonstrations in the cities of Lebanon. A bomb exploded harmlessly near the U.S. Embassy.

CRISIS MOUNTS

The crisis in the Arab world over Lebanon's efforts to halt guerrilla attacks against Israel mounted steadily despite reported Libyan efforts to mediate. A series of guerrilla attacks in Haifa, Israel, which destroyed five apartment houses brought a new crisis in Israel.

As Israeli planes bombed and strafed Arab guerrilla bases in Jordan and hit Egyptian artillery positions, Israeli Premier Golda Meir called in Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and several other cabinet ministers in Jerusalem to discuss the Haifa bombings.

Informed political sources speculated that strong Israeli punitive action might be in the offing. The meeting was not officially classified an "emergency" cabinet meeting since all members were not present.

But the urgency was underscored by the events in Haifa.

APARTMENTS HIT

The bombs destroyed a dozen apartments and killed two persons in two days. Haifa Mayor Moshe Fleemevv announced formation of a civil defense corps to check every building in the city of 209,000. All schools were inspected before students were allowed to enter them.

The demonstrations in Damascus and Amman indicated anti-Lebanon feeling was on the rise. In Amman, a demonstrator, apparently a guerrilla, was killed by a hand grenade. Reports from the scene said the grenade apparently fell from a marcher and that the victim hurled himself on it to save the others.

MEDIATION OFFER

Political sources in Beirut said Col. Moammar Kazafi, head of the Libyan Revolutionary Command, telephoned Lebanese President Charles Helou and offered to mediate the dispute between the army and the guerrillas. The Libyan ambassador also delivered what was described as an "important letter."

The Israeli attacks against Egypt followed a night of cross-canal artillery duels. Cairo reported Egyptian planes struck deep into the Sinai Desert during the night but Israel said it was a harmless effort to hit the Nahal Yam settlement and there were no damages or casualties.

The Novato Fire District board last night officially stated that it would not fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Donald Donaghue until after the Nov. 4 election, in which five men running for two positions on the board. (For candidates, see page 5.)

At the district board meeting on Oct. 8, candidate Richard W. Price presented a petition with 314 signatures asking that the vacancy be filled immediately, or that if the board waited until after the election that the losing third place candidate be appointed.

Board chairman Peter J. Ferrarese, himself a candidate, has said, however, that he thinks the board should appoint the best qualified man, whether that man runs or not.

The Novato Fire District board also:

INSURANCE — Renewed health insurance coverage with California Physicians Service for the coming year. The district pays $14.73 per month for single firemen and $36.24 for firemen and one dependent. The firemen must pay an additional $7.74 per month to cover his children. This costs the district approximately $12,000 per year.

TANKER — Approved Assistant Chief Alvin S. Butti drawing up specifications for a new tank truck. It will replace a 30-year-old truck.

EXAMINATION — Set 8:30 a.m., Nov. 1 for examinations for firemen. Although the district has only one vacancy at the present time, it keeps a list of eligible firemen to fill vacancies as they occur.

PENALTY — Discussed but reached no conclusion on the number of penalty days which the district would assess against Hayco Co. of San Rafael in delays on the construction of the drill tower.

ESTABLISHMENT IDEALIST

Mining Firms Warned To Heed Needs Of Society

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—At least one corporate chairman of the board sees no conflict between social idealism and good business sense.

Frederick J. Close, board chairman of Aluminum Company of America (Alcoa), told members of the American Mining Congress yesterday that big companies must hire more minority workers and work to wipe out unemployment, become involved in politics at all levels, attempt to resolve the crisis in the cities, and follow the advice of the young.

"We've got to help build a better society," Close said. "If we don't build it, there won't be any corporation. The stockholder who objects may find himself without any dividends."

The Pittsburgh, Pa., executive, calling himself an idealist "even after 40 years in business," told the 75 mining executives at the management sessions that they should take note of the dissatisfaction of youth.

"It's the white man's society," Close said. "He's going to have to correct it. How many promises have we made? How many have we kept?"

In other action, a government official told the miners' meeting the industry has plenty of job openings.

Petaluma Poundman Reports Dog Killings

Petaluma Poundmaster William Matthews has reported the poisoning of four dogs in two days in the Howard Street vicinity.

Matthews said two of the dogs have died while two others remain ill. He said a veterinarian described the symptoms as similar to those caused by strychnine poisoning.

Woodcutter, Pal Arrested After Chain Saw Theft

A 22-year-old unemployed woodcutter and a 16-year-old youth were arrested in San Rafael today on suspicion of stealing seven chain saws valued at $2,200 from the Turf and Tree landscaping firm.

Kenneth James Hough, 22, who gave an Arizona address and one at 202S Feliz Road, Novato, was booked into Marin County Jail after he was found climbing an embankment next to the landscaping firm at 625 Grand Avenue at 1 a.m. by police. Nearby police found two chain saws and a knife in a sheath.

Police found Robert Lee Wallace, 16, of 1320 Leafwood Avenue, Novato, lying on the floorboards of a car parked at the D and S Garage lot next door. He was booked into Juvenile Hall on suspicion of burglary.

Two additional saws of the seven reported missing from a locker inside the firm were found near the scene of the arrest, police said.

Hough is to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Novatan Jailed On Loan Charge

The 27-year-old owner of a San Rafael beauty shop was arrested today on suspicion of grand theft after a Marin district attorney's investigator said that the man had fraudulently obtained a $2,000 loan from a San Rafael bank.

Booked into Marin County Jail, where he was held in lieu of $1,250 bail, was Gary Edward Smith, of 11 Equestrian Acres, Novato, who owns Gary's Hair Styling at 912 Lootens Place.

John Kingston of the district attorney's staff said that Smith obtained a loan from Commonwealth National Bank by using the pink slip for a car he no longer owned as collateral.

SHEDS HIS HAIR

Tarzan's Son Doing Futuristic Film Role

By ANNE BARDWELL

There's a tall, lanky, hip young man wandering around Sausalito these days and not only does he not have long hair, he doesn't have any hair at all.

He's the son of Tarzan in Yul Brynner disguise.

Who is he? Why he's Johnny Weissmuller Jr., son of the best known in a long series of Tarzans, and he's bald because he's making a movie about the plastic society of our future.

The movie is "THX 1138," named after the hero of the film who revolts against his subterranean, pill-happy, test-tube civilization and tries to bring some humanity back into his world.

In the film, Weissmuller plays a robot policeman — thus the bold head. "I'm a humanoid, a robot, and I play lots of small roles, whatever they need me for."

The screenplay is original, Weismuller says, even though the story summary sounds like a combination of "1984," "Brave New World" and "Farenheit 451."

"It's unbelievable how close it is to today's drug-happy society," notes his wife, Peggy. Since it's an underground society, all the scenes are interiors, many shot in the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's tunnels and control rooms, the Marin County Civic Center and the Oakland arena . . ." And in many of them nothing had to be changed to fit in with the script . . . we're already there," Mrs. Weismuller said.

In the film, Weissmuller said, "Anyone from the womb is an outlaw as is anyone who enjoys sex. They're sent to the surface to live with the hairy ones, the primitives. Underground it's all test tubes and pill trips and euphoria."

Acting in films is nothing new for the 29-year-old Weissmuller, who was reared in Southern California in the 1940s and 1950s with the children of other famous stars, including Jimmy Mitchum Robert Mitchum) Artie Lake (Arthur Lake of Dagwood fame) and Mia Farrow (her mother, Maureen O'Hara, was the first Jane in his dad's Tarzan flicks.)

Johnny Weissmuller Sr. still lives in Southern California. John's mother was Beryl Scott, a San Francisco socialite, who divorced John Sr. in 1944 and has since remarried and lives in Carmel.

He's been working in films and on the stage for 10 years, mostly in "10th through the door" parts. "You know, the sheriff walks into the saloon and everyone piles out the swinging doors. Tenth through the door, that's me."

He also has done a lot of stunt work, learning the craft from his father's stunt man, Paul Stader. Remember the scene in "Mister Roberts" where the drunken sailor drives the motorcycle off the end of the dock? Guess who?

A friendly giant of a man (he's six feet, 6 inches tall and 215 pounds) with deep brown eyes and a craggy face, Weissmuller says he specialized in water stunts. "I always hated the falling out of buildings. You were supposed to land on a pile of cardboard boxes and I was always afraid I'd miss."

Once, he was the abominable snowman for a cooky commercial. "We filmed it at Pismo Beach with a camel named Sharky. I was disgusted as the friendly snowman and was all suited up in this white furry stuff and Morton Meek, yes, that was his name, would ride across the sand on Sharky the camel.

"Sharky loved chocolate chip cookies and stopped to put one on my chest. (I was missing a button, you see) and then I'd reveal my true self, the abominable snowman, and start to chase him. Then Morton Meek would turn into supercookie and there we were chasing each other across the sand at Pismo Beach. It must have been 110 in the shade and felt like 120. It was awful."

Shortly after that, Weissmuller moved to Northern California, his birthplace, and worked as a deep sea diver in Sausalito. He then met and married Peggy, they now have a 7-month-old daughter — and left deep sea diving for a job as a San Francisco longshoreman.

In between films and jobs, he crews on sailboats in bay races and on longer trips.

Weissmuller said he plans to stick with filmmaking in the Bay Area.

As far as the hair is concerned, the only thing that bothers him is the temperature. "I sure do get an acute feeling of temperature this way, and my neck gets cold."

People stare a lot, Weissmuller says, but he doesn't mind. "The hippies are a funny scene. The plastic ones get all uptight but the real hippies say, 'That's a groovy haircut, man, that's something else.' "

CHIP OFF THE BLOCK — Johnny Weissmuller Jr., rapidly following in the footsteps of his film star father, takes time out from filmmaking for one of his chief pleasures, crewing on sailboats in San Francisco Bay. He has also spent a lot of time in recent years in scuba equipment as a member of Sausalito Underwater Search, a firm that goes below on a wide variety of projects. (Independent-Journal photo)

Oak Knolls Strike Threat Over Rentals

By DAVID DIETZ

A group of about 30 residents from the Oak Knolls development in Marin City posed the threat of a one-month strike last night over living conditions which several dwellers described as filthy.

Although its oldest apartments and townhouses were built as recently as three years ago, the 56-unit Oak Knolls development was pictured at the meeting as litter-strewn and falling into disrepair.

A six-member tenants committee, which called the meeting in the Manzanita Center, came armed with a list of 33 grievances and a letter by the Marin County Department of Public Health calling upon the landlord, California Development Corp., to clean up the property and make building repairs.With the tenants was a San Francisco legal aid attorney, George Mix.

Thr grievances, ticked off by Mrs. Royce McLemore, a member of the tenants committee, focused on a variety of conditions, but high on the list was the need for a manager, maintenance man and gardener, Mrs. McLemore said Oak Knolls has been without a manager and maintenance man since August.

In his letter, sanitarian Low C. Chan of the public health department said the absence of a caretaker violated housing code regulations, as did accumulation of broken glass, dirt and refuse around the property and disrepair of roof drainage systems. Chan, who inspected Oak Knolls at the tenants' request earlier this month, had given California Development until Nov. 9 to correct the violations.

After the meeting, tenants said the landlord has only "swept a little bit" in response to Chan's complaints.

Mrs. McLemore said the committee had attempted three times within the past month to meet with a California Development representative but each time the meeting was posponed by the landlord's spokesman.

Mrs. McLemore said it seemed "there's no other choice but to hit him where it hurts because we're the ones living in filth."

"It's time we act," Mix said. "This is serious business and there's no time to waste. If you're here to bullxxxx and waste time and not work, then leave." Mix waited for a moment but no one left the room.

"I would like to hit that cat's pocketbook," he said, but warned that at least 90 per cent of the tenants would have to withold their rent to make the strike effective.

"Once you start messing with his money," Mix said, "He'll be here quick."

He told the residents the withheld rent could be used for maintenance and repairs or placed in trust until assurance of corrective steps were received.

Mix recommended that the tenants register formal complaint with California Development. If there is no response, another meeting should be called for further strategy, he said.

The tenants were to circulate a petition throughout Oak Knolls calling for prompt action on their grievances.

Teen Drop-In Plans Given Panel's Nod

Operation plans for a teen drop-in center were approved last night by the Corte Madera Park and Recreation Commission.

The commission recommended the town council approve the plans, submitted by chairman Nancy Lubamersky for the six-member youth committee appointed in July.

The committee recommended the center be open on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights, the hours to be determined by the town recreation director. One part of the center should be set aside for study, discussion, speakers and performers, with the other section for more active events, the committee recommended.

The center is to be created by remodeling the former Corte Madera Sanitary District office at 500 Tamalpais Boulevard.

The commission discussed proposed rules for use of Town Park and named commissioners Juliette Kraeger and Marritt J. W. Wieder to study the regulations and report at the Nov. 15 meeting.

The commission also endorsed the Marin County program of senior citizen recreation.

Litter Talk Slated

Members of the Progressive Club of Stinson Beach will discuss "the mess we're in — litter in the streets and weekend traffic congestion" with county and state police and roads officials at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Stinson Beach Community Center.

San Franciscans Defend Ferry Idea

Picking up largely where they left off last week, four representatives of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District board squared off today on whether ferryboats or buses, or both, would best serve Marinites commuting to San Francisco.

As they did at a meeting of the bridge board last Friday, when an 8-3 vote launched the district into the ferry business, William C. Blake and Stephen C. Leonoudakis, San Francisco representatives on the board, argued before a KTIM radio audience that more buses were not welcome in San Francisco and that ferryboats would move Marin commuters faster and more economically.

But Michael Wornum and Dean N. Meyer, two of Marin's three representatives on the bridge board, countered that an integrated system of buses and boats was the best interim plan while a rapid transit system was studied — as originally recommended by the bridge district's general manager, Dale W. Leuhring.

The four appeared on KTIM's "Sounding Board" program.

Leonoudakis and Wornum, who is also a Marin supervisor, were the principal antagonists, with Leonoudakis saying he was appalled at the Marin proposal to "put those big mother buses into Sansome Street every 30 seconds at the evening rush hour when the traffic is not only bumper to bumper, it's fender to fender."

He asserted that San Francisco would not tolerate more "fuming, smelling, puffing, miserable buses."

(Luehring had proposed replacing Greyhound with a fleet of 132 buses the first year of operation under a crash program that would cost about $7.7 million.)

Claiming that a new bus system would lose $1 million in its first year of operation with additional subsidies required in the future, Leonoudakis said a ferry system linking the San Francisco ferry building with a terminal in Corte Madera would pay its own way. He urged that Marin begin development of a bus system to feed the ferryboats, terminal access roads and parking facilities.

Wornum asserted that if San Francisco were so interested in halting further downtown traffic it should not have approved the southern crossing of San Francisco Bay and might consider a plan to ban all private cars in the downtown area.

He said he was not opposed to a ferry system, but explained, "How do I tell persons in Ross, Fairfax and Novato that ferries are good for them? We want to bring commuters to where they want to go.

To Leonoudakis' contention that new buses would not draw Marin commuters out of their "four-wheel alter egos — not with a crowbar —" Wornum suggested that the bridge district experiment with a fare-free bus ride while doubling tolls to private autos.

Meyer argued that San Francisco was ignoring planning experts in both Marin and San Francisco who urged a new bus system.

Blake said huge subsidies poured into the municipal bus system by the City of San Francisco proved buses were an outmoded and expensive transit means.

Nixon Ships Call Heeded By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon's call for a massive ship construction program—300 vessels in 10 years—to rebuild the aging and dwindling U.S. merchant fleet was promised speedy action by Congress.

In fact Congress authorized an unrequested $130 million for shipbuilding subsidies last week in anticipation of Nixon's call.

As outlined by congressional sources before today's formal announcement, Nixon's plan would:

Subsidize construction of 30 modern ships a year for 10 years to double U.S. shipcargo capacity and hopefully improve the U.S. balance of payments standing by $2 billion.

Require major expansion of the American shipbuilding industry, which would have to invest $4 billion in the program, $1.2 billion for bigger and more shipyards.

Reduce or eliminate the near $200 million annual federal subsidy for shipping operations by making the new ships up to five times more efficient than the hundreds of World War II-vintage ships now in the U.S. fleet.

Reduce the federal subsidy for ship construction from more than 50 per cent to about 35 per cent through mass production under multiship contracts.

Rep. Edward A. Garmatz, D-Md., chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee said 600 of the present 955 U.S. cargo ships are obsolete and he will press for immediate hearings and quick congressional action on Nixon's plan.

The American flag ship fleet has been losing ground to countries that can build and man them cheaper since the end of World War II and now ranks behind England, Japan, the Soviet Union, Liberia and Norway.

American ships carried 57.6 per cent of U.S. foreign trade shortly after the war. By 1968 the figure had dropped to 6.4 per cent.

The fleet includes 655 freighters, 274 tankers and 25 freight-passenger ships. Ninety per cent of the bulk carriers and 50 per cent of the tankers are more than 20 years old.

Tobacco Firms Lose A Million Customers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —More than one million American men and women quit smoking cigarettes in 1968, according to a new government report.

The Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Department is scheduled to release the report in several weeks. It is based on Census Bureau questions asked of households across the country.

The report will show that both older persons and youngsters increasingly are giving up cigarette smoking, that the proportion of young persons who have never smoked is increasing and that women smokers are less inclined to quit than men.

HEW declined to release the 1968 data but officials confirmed the findings.

"Tobacco Situation," a quarterly publication of the Agriculture Department, said in its September issue that cigarette use per person is declining.

"The smoking-age population is increasing," it said. "But increasing cigarette prices and the smoking-health publicity are reducing cigarette use per person and possibly limiting the number of smokers."

"Tobacco Situation" said cigarette consumption per person 18 and older this year is estimated 2 1-2 per cent below 1963 when 4,168 cigarettes (209 packs) were smoked.

"This would be about the same rate of decline as last year when consumption fell 2.2 per cent," the publication said.

HEW said recently that from June 1966 to August 1967 the number of former smokers of both sexes, aged 17 and over, increased from 14.4 million to 15.5 million. The 1968 report will show nearly 17 million former smokers.

The Census Bureau defines a person as a former smoker if he has smoked at least 100 cigarettes during his life but was not smoking cigarettes at the time of the interview. He is considered as having never smoked if he reported he has not smoked 100 cigarettes during his life.

For the population 17 and older, the percentage of smokers—those smoking cigarettes at the time of the interview—has declined from 39.6 in 1966 to 39.1 in 1967 and 37.7 in 1968. Similarly, the percentage increase in former smokers rises each year.

Much of the smoking data gathered in the 1968 survey of 52,500 households has not been tabulated. This includes the answers to questions about pipe and cigar smoking and other tobacco uses.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

Mrs. J. B. writes: "Our 10-year-old son steals and on several occasions has been caught. We punish him and make him return the atricles, but he won't stop. He is a loner and not so friendly or cooperative as are his sisters and brother.

"Nothing has worked and my husband has given up and I'm about to do the same. He is no good and perhaps he should be in reform school."

MANY CHILDREN steal once or twice while growing up, but it seldom becomes a problem. However, when it continues, there usually is an emotional interaction between parents and child.

Take him to an understanding pediatrician because there are many possible causes, including a poor relationship with the mother or father.

Why does he steal? I assume the lad is not a member of a gang or trying to save face or buy friends. A younger child may filch something that appeals to him but is denied him by his parents.

Perhaps he lacks a small allowance to buy candy, a baseball, or a pocket knife. Others steal because they are fascinated by certain items. Or, perhaps they are lonely and crave a little excitement.

BUT IN MOST instances, the youngster is trying to punish his mother or father for being rejected. His reaction may be anger and hostility. He is getting even because the parents are making him feel "small" or inadequate. Often an unpleasant incident triggers the episode.

To make matters worse, he may deliberately get caught to get their goats.

The physician usually can determine whether a 10-year old steals because he is lonely or whether he is stealing out of anger and resentment. These are correctable causes. All too often, the parents express their anger openly and quickly but do not allow the child the same privilege.

THE PARENTS should never tacitly encourage stealing by allowing the child to keep the stolen item. By the same token they should not overlook it just because he won't admit guilt, despite oberwhelming evidence.

HE INSISTS ON GLASSES

M. P. writes: My husband has worn glasses for 10 years. He went to an eye specialist recently for a checkup and the doctor told him he doesn't need to wear the glasses for the time being. But my husband insists he can't see without them. Please advise.

REPLY

The mind plays strange tricks. Individuals who insist that they need glasses usually shop around until they find a physician who agrees with them. Let your husband decide whether he wants another opinion.

DEGENERATIVE DISEASE

H. H. writes: What is a degenerative disease?

REPLY

These diseases differ from infections and cancers in that there is gradual deterioration of the tissues and cells due to wear and tear or poor circulation.

REUSABLE TEA BAG

H. P. D. writes: I like weak tea, so I steep the bag for a few seconds and then use it over and over again. Is this a harmful practice?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge.

good aim

The I-J's on the way—and so is he!

Perhaps it's the daily habit of delivering the news right to your home that gives I-J carriers, like him, a sense of direction in life.

Maybe it's the feeling of managing a route, where each boy is his own boss. Or the idea of collecting and banking money each month. Or maybe the channeling of energy into responsible effort . . . serving others.

It could be the solid training, too, which these boys receive from our experienced circulation advisors.

But one thing's certain: these boys develop AIMS and GOALS often a lot larger than the boys themselves. The aim to serve . . . the goal of a college education, for instance . . . with savings to attain it. They discover that delivering the paper on time, in place, can lead to the larger ends of independence and initiative.

A pretty good aim, don't you think? THERE'S A REAL FUTURE IN IT!

TV REVIEW

The Down And Outers Make Good

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—With the New York Mets now the world champions (of the United States), it figured this would be a good month for people who have been counted down and out.

In television, at any rate, it is.

For example, the Smothers Brothers, who were fired by CBS-TV, have latched on to an hour video special on another network. Their show will be broadcast on NBC-TV Feb. 16.

Then there is Jim Aubrey, the former network president who also was fired by CBS-TV. He has been made the key working boss of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and will surely control production.

ALL NETWORKS

In short, he now heads up a studio that, among other things, will try to sell television shows to all networks, including the one that fired him.

And then there is Muhammad Ali, the former Cassius Clay, who is the ex-world heavyweight champion. Ali has been having his problems for some time now, but you can see him Saturday as a commentator for the American-Russian amateur boxing competition on ABC-TV's "Wide World Of Sports," from Las Vegas.

The Mets, by the way, will be among those saluted in an April 2 NBC-TV special, "It Couldn't Be Done," which will focus on American achievements that were "thought to be out of reach." According to a press release, the Mets will be honored along with the Panama Canal, Mount Rushmore and the Golden Gate Bridge.

THE IMPOSSIBLE

"The idea of the program," says the producer, "is to single out Americans responsible for doing things which everybody said were impossible."

Now that is gorgeous creative thinking. If nothing else, it gives me the courage to show that I can stretch an angle at least as well. Let's see: As I recall, my angle on this piece was losers who came back on television. All right:

On Nov. 9, on ABC-TV, Richard Burton plays the illfated agent of "The Spy Who Came In From the Cold," on the Sunday movie.

On Nov. 2, a "lost" piano work by Franz Schubert, whose manuscript was discovered last year in an attic in an Austrian town, will be played by Lili Kraus on CBS-TV's "Camera Three."

According to reports, Lyndon Johnson, who announced during last year's primary campaigns that he would not run again for the presidency, will be the subject of a number of autobiographical CBS-TV documentaries covering his 38 years in public office.

Well, at any rate, it's October, and let's drink to the Mets. They have enlivened television, as you can see, with more than baseball. And everybody's got an angle.

BEST SHOWS

Best bets on television tonight:

KPIX (5), 9 p.m. Connie Stevens and Dean Jones star in the movie drama, "Two On A Guillotine."

KRON (4), KCRA (3), 10 p.m.—Dean Martin's guests are Victor Borge, Carol Channing, Dom DeLuise and Walter Brennan.

Oakland Taps Negro To Run School System

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—School Supt. Ercell Watson seems likely to become the first Negro to head a major California school system.

Watson has been offered the job of superintendent of schools in Oakland, at an advance of $14,000 over his present $28,000-a-year salary. He is scheduled to meet the president of the Oakland school board Monday.

The board has already voted to offer Watson the $42,000-a-year post.

If he accepts, Watson would head a school district with a population which is more than 50 per cent black.

Watson came to Trenton in July 1968, from West Chester, Pa., where he served as assistant superintendent of schools.

His stay has been marred by student disruptions, administrative difficulties and parent and teacher criticism of proposed sex education and sensitivity programs.

Fete Set For Completion Of Big Bore

GORMAN (UPI) — A dynamite blast and a champagne party today marked "holeing through" of the five-mile long Carley W. Porter Tunnel which will help bring northern California water to southern California.

The pythonic shaft through the steep Tehachapi Mountains, which trapped 17 workers in a cave-in two years ago, is the longest of four tunnels what with the aid of pumps will bring water south.

A cave-in just before Christmas, 1967, trapped the construction workmen for two days, but no deaths were caused by the massive project. There were 28 injuries, however, among the work crew which averaged 160 men—80 at each heading in three shifts.

The two operations meet 900 feet below the surface—four years after the project began. The workmen used laser beams to guide the course and grade of the tunnel. When the gap was narrowed to 32 feet, a "pilot hole" showed an error of only one-eighth inch in grade.

When finally lined with concrete to a 20-foot diameter, water will flow through with a total capacity of 120 million gallons an hour.

The tunnel, considered one of the most difficult tunneling projects in California, is 900 feet below the surface but three times in the complex through the mountains, the aqueduct comes to the surface at known fault zones.

Mobile Homes Freeze Proposed

The Lynwood Park Improvement Association board has voted to support a moratorium on more mobile homes in Novato, according to secretary Barbara Munden.

The board voted Tuesday to have a representative attend the city council and city planning meetings to keep abreast of the mobile home developments, she said.

The board will also contact the city public works department to see about getting curbs on the islands on Sunset Parkway and improvement to the street lights.

It set its next meeting for 8 p.m. Nov. 19 at Lynwood School.

Dump Site Gets Delay On Pollution Action

Court action to force the operator of San Quentin Disposal Site to stop water pollution was postponed two weeks yesterday by Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales after the operator agreed to eliminate the problem.

Bales had been asked on Monday by the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board to seek an injunction against the San Rafael dump, and the agreement was reached in a one-hour, closed citation hearing held in Bales' office.

Roger B. James, the regional board's senior engineer, said he was satisfied with the agreement, which called for filling in a leaky area at the dump. The board's staff had objected that water leaking into the "cell" became "black and odoriferous" after contacting trash.

Thre operator of the dump, Martin Bramante of Belvedere, also agreed to pump dry another, larger cell after treating the water in it with chemicals to neutralize its toxicity, Bales reported.

Bales said that the dump already was in "much better shape" than it had been when the regional board issued its cease and desist order on Oct. 16.

If Bramante meets the Nov. 5 deadline, Bales said, "I'm not going to take any further action." But if the deadline is not met, Bales added, "I will seek an injunction if the regional board asks me to."

Ken Still Is Golf's Most Happy Fella

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ken Still is golf's most happy fella.

The world is his oyster, particularly the world of sports. And that, incidentally, isn't restricted to golf. He's an avid follower of all sports, particularly the pros.

The happy-go-lucky guy, a pro since 1961, made a breakthrough this year when he scored his first tour victory, in the Florida Citrus Open.

He followed that with another triumph, holding off a drive by Gary Player for the Milwaukee Open title. And he recently teamed with Gene Littler to win the CBS Golf Classic, a team affair filmed at the Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio which will be released later this winter.

And he was one of the top candidates for the $20,000 first prize when he teed off today in the first round of the San Francisco Open.

"I'm playing real good, just super," Still said. He had a sparkling 67, four under par on the 6,677 yard Harding Park Golf Club course in yesterday's pro-am to back him up.

"I missed the cut at the Sahara last week," he said, "but there's a reason for that. I was just pooped after winning the CBS Golf Classic."

The cold, windy, overcast weather bothers him not at all.

"This is just like home, man, and it's always nice to get home," the native of Spokane, Wash. said.

Some of his fellow pros criticize his easy, relaxed approach to the game. But carefree Ken goes his own way.

"I play my golf, but there's time for other things, too," he said.

The stories about him are legion.

He once charged on to a basketball court to challenge 7-foot-1 Wilt Chamberlain and was advised to "get out of here before I stuff you through the basket."

He's a personal friend of many of the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Chicago Cubs. During the baseball season he keeps a sharp eye out for spectators who may have a radio turned to a game and will interrupt his round to ask the score and inning.

On football weekends he heads down the fairway with a transistor in his pocket, listening to a game.

He's a very gregarious guy and is a great check-snatcher—just won't let anyone pick up a check. And this year he's picking up more and more of the type you cash instead of pay.

Women Get Their Chance At Revenge

Okay, ladies, here's your chance for revenge. One of your greatest enemies is moving to Marin County next month. You might want to picket his home. Or drive by and stick out your tongue at the old meanie.

I refer to Mr. William N. Creasy Jr. who has purchased a home in Kent Woodlands. Mr. Creasy is president of the Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League, but that's not why you ladies should despise him.

He is also president of Trans National Communications, Inc. with an extensive background as television producer of sporting events.

That profession has made him responsible for countless unfinished household chores. Because of him, weeds have run amok, petunias have perished unplanted, fences have gone unmended and attics and garages have remained cluttered while beer cans and peanut shells have piled high in front of the video box. You've heard of Mr. Clean? Well he's Mr. Dirty to the feminime eye.

A List Of Achievements

In short, Mr. Creasy indirectly has been the corespondent in more divorce cases than a legion of gigolos. All this because he has produced such classics as the first pro football Super Bowl game, five runnings of the Kentucky Derby and on four occasions the entire Triple Crown of thoroughbred racing, baseball's Game of the Week, soccer, rodeos, bowling, auto racing, skiing, college football and basketball, Wide World of Sports, American Football League games, and NHL action, including the Stanley Cup playoffs.

While the housewives of America may take a dim view of Mr. Creasy's accomplishments, I think we men should give him a rousing welcome to Marin. We can rent a big hall with a giant television screen tuned in to a beer commercial and have foot races to the refrigerator.

Welcome, Mr. Creasy, man's best friend.

Long Trip To See 49ers

JIM CALLAN, long-time 49er fan who deserted us some time ago for business on the East Coast, could stand it no longer and moved back to the Bay Area last month. "I drove 3,100 miles just to get back to see the 49ers," he said the other day. The way the 49ers have performed, that's a long way to drive. In an Edsel.

CHET CARLISLE, the ex-Tamalpais High School District superintendent (1953-69), has been presented a lifetime pass to all Marin County Athletic League contests which I'm sure he'll enjoy. Chet's a jock at heart, having won All-American cage credentials at U.C. Berkeley in his prime.

A Hard Name To Pronounce

COLLEGE OF MARIN students have trouble pronouncing Thongchai Sutivej so they just call the student from Thailand "Ping Pong." and for good reason: Thong was his country's table tennis champion for two years plus holder of many other crowns, including 10 tournament titles in California last year.

CUTE PUBLICITY release from San Francisco State College describing the Gator football team's injury problems:

"With less than 80 shopping days left until Christmas, American industry is starting to flood the market with toys of all sorts in an effort to separate harried shoppers from their money. San Francisco State is doing its share. It seems the Gator football team has developed a doll. Yes, that's right, it's called a Gator Quarterback Doll — wind it up and it gets hurt."

49ERS GO HAND IN HAND

Barry Denies Surgery

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Rick Barry, standout forward of the Washington Caps, denied reports he would be operated on for a knee injury suffered in an American Basketball Association contest with the Carolina Cougars last night.

OPERATION

Barry later said, "It looks like a lateral cartilege," on the other side of the injured knee this time. The former University of Miami all-America was operated on for a popped cartilage earlier this year. He denied that immediate surgery was planned.

"I don't know how that rumor got started," Barry said. He said he wouldn't tknow for sure until he was examined by the team's physician, Dr. Stanford Levine, in Washington today.

POSSIBLE

He said one of the doctors who examined him immediately after the injury said it was possible to play without cartilage if his ligaments were strong enough to support him.

Speaking from his motel room, Barry indicated he hoped to recover from the injury and get back into competition as soon as possible. There was no hint of retirement, but it was clear he was a disappointed athlete.

"I'm extremely frustrated at the way things have gone the past six months," he said. "I don't know about the future, right now I'm so frustrated and disappointed."

LED OAKS

Barry led the Oakland Oaks, now the Washington Caps, to the ABA championship last season with a 34-point-per-game average despite an ailing knee.

He also once led the NBA in scoring at San Francisco.

UNSTOPPABLE

Lew Scores 36 Against Hayes

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lew Alcindor met former collegiate rival Elvin Hayes for the first time as a pro last night and the new giant of play-for-pay basketball was virtually unstoppable.

Only personal fouls could halt the 7-foot-1½ rookie center of the Milwaukee Bucks as big Lew was disqualified with his sixth with 3:10 left in the game with the San Diego Rockets. But Milwaukee won anyway, 115-102.

PRO HIGH

Alcindor scored his pro high in three games of 36 points, mostly on short hook or jump shots over the outstretched hands of the 6-9½ Hayes.

The Bucks (3-0) led all the way and the closest the Rockets (1-2) could come was three points while Alcindor and Hayes were both on the bench. The National Basketball Association game was seen by a near-capacity crowd of 13,643 at the Sports Arena.

Hayes, who played on the Houston team that broke the Alcindor-led UCLA Bruins' long winning streak in 1967 managed 21 points in 38 minutes of play, well under his average. Lew, playing 42 minutes, also outrebounded Big E, 19-15.

'SUPERIOR'

"Lew is a superior ballplayer in every respect," Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello said. "Hayes played him hard but there's no question in my mind who's the greatest."

Alcindor, a bit upset over fouling out for the second straight game, had a couple of his jump shots blocked by Hayes, then made an adjustment.

"I'm still learning how to shoot on the big centers in this league," he said. "In the first part of the game I let him see too much of the ball. Elvin has great jumping ability."

Alcindor also switched almost exclusively to his hook shot, pouring in 20 first-half points.

NCAA MEETING

San Jose State Draws Probation

KANSAS City, Mo. (UPI)—A national limit on athletic scholarships in football and basketball has been proposed by Dr. Willis M. Tate, president of Southern Methodist University, to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

The proposal is an answer to the rising costs of intercollegiate athletics. Dr. Tate, speaking as a member of the NCAA's long-range planning committee, said the rising costs are "the greatest threat to intercollegiate athletics today."

Dr. Tate made his presentation to the NCAA Council, which concluded its fall meeting yesterday. Only immediate result was the formation of a special committee to study Dr. Tate's report.

The report called for a national limit of 30 grants-in-aid in football per year and six in basketball.

Another item in Dr. Tate's report called for a code of conduct for athletes. The NCAA already has a code of conduct for coaches and officials. The Athletes' code would be set up with the help of students.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions yesterday put San Jose State's track program and Marshall University's (Huntington, W. Va.) football program on one-year probations.

San Jose State was cited because Olympic sprint champion John Carlos and pole vaulter Sam Caruthers participated in an unsanctioned meet, the Orange County Invitational, on June 14.

San Jose State will not be allowed to participate in the track championships in 1970, as a result of the probation.

Marshall's penalty was little more than a slap on the wrist since the Thundering Herd has lost 26 straight football games.

Marshall will not be allowed to compete in any post-season football competition and will not be eligible to appear on any NCAA telecasts.

The council said Marshall's penalty would have been much stiffer if university President Roland H. Nelson Jr. had not instigated the investigation of his own athletic department.

Late Shot By Mullins Is Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — San Francisco's Warriors, who collected their first victory of the season on a last minute jump shot, meet the undefeated New York Knicks tonight.

The Knicks lead the National Basketball Association's east division with a 5-0 record while the Warriors are 1-1 in the west.

Jeff Mullins was the man responsible for the Warriors' 94-93 triumph last night against the Atlanta Hawks.

With just seven seconds remaining to play, he threw in the basket that won the game. The two-pointer ran his total for the evening to 24.

High man with 25 points was the Hawks' Lou Hudson, who had thrown in a field goal just 10 seconds before Mullins won the game.

After Mullins made his shot, the Hawks had shots by Hudson and Bill Bridges, but both missed.

Kickers Drill For Stanford

In the six straight Bruin victories, Carver has returned punts 231 yards and kickoffs 159 yards. The only team that had any success in stopping him was California which either kicked away from him or booted the ball very high.

Rich Keller, Stanford defensive halfback who sprained an ankle slightly in practice, should be recovered in time for the Bruin game Saturday.

U.S. Bids For Both Winter, Summer Games

DUBROVNIK, Yugoslavia (AP) — The United States challenged long-standing tradition today in pressing its bid to host both the Summer and Winter Olympic Games in 1976 as part of America's bicentennial celebration.

Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty was expected to arrive at a meeting of Olympic officials here to bolster his city's bid for the Summer Games. Denver is bidding for the Winter Games.

The Americans feel their bicentennial will help convince Olympic officials to break with the tradition of awarding the Summer and Winter Games to different nations.

The bids were made to members of national Olympic committees and the International Olympic Committee executive committee meeting here to shape the agenda for full IOC and international sports federations meetings in Amsterdam next May.

The IOC usually votes first on the summer site before deciding who will host the Winter Games.

Robert Pringle, president of the Denver Candiature Committee, said that if Los Angeles wins its bid, "it doesn't mean we'll pack up and go home."

John Kilroy, who heads the Los Angeles delegation, said his city already had 80 per cent of the facilities necessary to hold the Summer Games and that remaining facilities have been planned.

Montreal is considered to be Los Angeles' chief rival but the Canadian city is reported to be having difficulty getting government funds to build necessary facilities.

Vancouver, B.C., figures that if Los Angeles gets the summer Games, Vancouver will beat out Denver for the Winter Games, according to Gordon Sid Young, an official with the Vancouver delegation.

This Is How They Wrote It In 1869

Baseball celebrated its centennial year in grand style. There couldn't have been more popular nationwide champions than the Mets. But what was baseball like in its first year? Here is an article from the Cincinnati Daily Gazette of Oct. 19, 1869, that delightfully brings to life the game as it was played 100 years ago:

"The weather bulletin promised us a fair day for the game and it was fair — to middling. That is to say, the sun shone once in a while, but not enough to mitigate the severity of a raw autumnal day. But the lovers of baseball cared little for the weather.

"IF THE ATHLETICS and the Red Stockings could meet on the Union Grounds to strive for the victory, they could be there to see. And so from 12 o'clock until half-past 2 a steady stream of human beings poured through the gates, until at least five thousand had assembled. And from half-past 2 until 5 they sat on hard benches and the cold grounds, unmindful of aching feet and stiffened fingers and blue noses, absorbed in the magnificent struggle going on before them.

"The excitement over the game was intense. It was known that the Athletics had come out here to break, if possible, the continuous chain of victories with which the Red Stockings had girdled the continent. Their best players, who were sick when our boys played the club in Philadelphia in the summer, were present in good condition, and it was conceded that the Nine was as strong a one as they had ever sent to a field.

"IT CANNOT be denied that there was some anxiety on the part of many of the friends of the Cincinnati Nine, and the progress of the game for the first few innings was watched with the deepest solicitude. But they need not have been solicitous.

"The Red Stockings never played better on the Union Grounds than they did in a 17 to 12 conquest yesterday of the Athletics, their fielding and batting being almost faultless. Nothing but the excellent qualities of their opponents in the field prevented them from running up a much heavier score.

THE GAME

"Game was called at twenty minutes past two o'clock. The Cincinnatis won the toss and sent their opponents to the bat.

First Inning

"Athletics — Reach went to his first on called balls, and got his second on a passed ball. McBride sent one past Waterman, and made his first, Reach coming home. Cuthbert made a beautiful strike to right field, on which he made his second, McBride going to third. Fisler popped one into the air, which fell into Waterman's fingers and staid (sic) there. Sensenderfer sent a magnificent one to center field, which Harry Wright fielded in handsomely. Sensenderfer got to his first, Cuthbert to his third and McBride coming home. Sensenderfer then tried to steal his second, but was cut off and slain on the road by Allison, who sent the ball to Sweasy. McMullen sent one whizzing along the ground to center field and took his first, Cuthbert comin in. Foran knocked a strong high one to Harry Wright, who took it well, putting the side out."

Hayes, meanwhile, was as cold as the rest of the Rockets, scoring just nine before intermission.

FOULS

"It seems like I'm getting worse," Lew said of his performance. "I keep fouling out. I fouled out only once or twice at UCLA."

Asked if Hayes gave him more trouble than other centers, Alcindor said:

"They're all giving me trouble, but I haven't played against them all. I have to work hard all the time, it's no vacation out there."

Lew hit 15 of 26 field goal attempts, all from within six feet of the basket. Hayes made only 9 of 31, many from long range in his attempt to bring Alcindor outside.

Orioles' Coach Joins A's Staff

OAKLAND (AP) — Charlie Lau, a member of the coaching staff of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles, will join the Oakland Athletics as a coach next year.

The A's announced yesterday that Lau, the Orioles' hitting coach, had been signed to a one-year contract and would probably be the club's third-base coach next season.

Riverside Grand Prix Trials Start

RIVERSIDE (AP) — The Canadian-American Challenge Cup might better be named the Hulme-McLaren Cup. But 41 other drivers hope to loosen the New Zealanders' grip on the title today as practice opened for Sunday's $70,000 Times Grand Prix.

Bruce McLaren and teammate Denis Hulme have won all nine Can-Am races this year but they will still receive a severe test in the 12th annual 200-mile classic at Riverside International Raceway, the next-to-last race in the series.

McLaren leads the series with 145 points, just five ahead of Hulme, while third-place Chuck Parsons of Chicago has but 62. Hulme, the defending Can-Am champion who won last Sunday's Mexico Grand Prix, has never won at Riverside.

McLaren has won the last two on the 3.3-mile course and is favored to make it three in a row — but Indianapolis 500 winner Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., is expected to offer the most serious challenge in a modified McLaren powered by a 494 cubic inch aluminum Ford engine.

"The bigger engine should definitely help us on a fast course like Riverside," contends Andretti, who finished fourth behind McLaren but on the same lap as him at Laguna Seca two weeks ago.

Other top prospects in the race are Jo Siffert of Switzerland, fourth in the Can-Am series with 46 points, who will be in a Porsche 917, and another New Zealander, Chris Amon, with 39, in a seven-liter Ferrari 612.

CINCINNATI — Pete Rose, who has won back-to-back batting titles for the Cincinnati Reds, was chosen today by new manager Sparky Anderson as the first official captain in the team's history.

KANSAS CITY — Veteran pitcher Dave Wickersham was traded by the Kansas City Royals yesterday to the Atlanta Braves for pitcher Ron Tompkins.

Blancas Wins In S.F. Golf Pro-Am Play

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Homero Blancas has given the touring golf pros something to shoot at as they tee off in the $100,000 San Francisco Open today, but defending champion Bill Casper is lurking right behind him.

Blancas had the best round in the pro-am competition over the Harding Park Course yesterday, shooting a six-under-par 65 and winning $500.

en Still, who shot a 67, led his team to the pro-am title with a net score of 55. Elmer Critchlow, Bob Newton and Ed Fickle were the amature's on the team.

Behind Blancas and Still were six golfers at 68. They were Casper, Don Bies, Frank Beard, Bert Yancey, Bob Lunn and Howie Johnson.

Shipes Wins By Decision

LAS VEGAS (UPI)—Charley Shipes, 148 of Oakland scored a unanimous but unpopular 10-round decision over Cipriana Hernandez, 156, of San Diego, in the featured fight at the Silver Slipper Ballroom last night.

Shipes scored with stinging lefts to the face and right crosses to the jaw through the first eight rounds to build up a sizeable lead over Hernandez. However, the loser rallied strongly in the final two rounds and the decision was greeted with a chorus of boos.

There were no knockdowns but Hernandez was bleeding from the nose and Shipes from the mouth at the finish. Judges Art Lurie and Mike Petrovich gave the fight to Shipes 47-45. Judge Ralph Mosa scored it 46-45 for Shipes.

By GARY TISCHLER

It may be a small school out in the hinterlands, and its football teams play against nobody ever heard of, but Tomales High School seems to be a regular fountain of record-breaking backs.

This year's (and last year's) edition of the Tomales High School super-back is Ron Petroni, 5-11, 160 pounds, gunning for a 1,000-yard year for the second season in a row.

He's already supplanted a former Tomales star, Gary Dellepere in the rushing record books with his 1,000-yard plus last season. Dellepere, who still holds the Tomales varsity record of 101 points scored, rushed for 819 and 860 yards in his two varsity seasons. Last year, Petroni rushed for 1,001 yards and so far this season he's racked up 708 yards with another four games remaining.

He missed the scoring mark by three points last season, scoring 98. This season, he's got another crack at it, having already scored 56 points in five games.

Petroni gave people some idea of things to come as a sophomore on the junior varsity. His jayvee statistics are fantastic — 1,475 yards rushing and 154 points scored.

Incidentally, the Mafia influence in Tomales is even bigger than we suspected. In addition to Petroni and quarterback Dennis Rodoni, there's Mike Velloza, Bob Borello, Joe Giamma and Gino Luchesi on the football team. Mamma Mia!

MOVE OVER, JOB DEPT. — Once upon a time, Drake High School had the makings of a more than adequate football season. That was somewhere early this fall, but look what's happened since then to the proud Pirates. Not only have they lost four games in five tries, but they've lost top-ranked players by the bushel.

First Bob Sutherland, the Marin County Athletic League's leading rusher last season, was knocked out for the season with an injury after leading the Pirates in scoring and rushing through three games.

Then John Loane, a backup fullback and great kicker, who helped beat San Rafael with a field goal, was knocked out with an injury.

This week, more bad news followed. Starting center Rod Warnhoff is out for the year with tonsillitis and Jim Dominguez, a possible all-league wide receiver, was dropped from the squad because of disciplinary reasons.

THE PLOT THICKENS — Drake High School's Class C basketball team now leads the league race by a half game after a 31-29 hair-raiser over Marin Catholic Tuesday. And Redwood, which met Marin Catholic today at Redwood, moved into a tie for second with the Wildcats after a 54-41 rout of Terra Linda. Drake is 6-2, Marin Catholic and Redwood are 5-2, with both of Marin Catholic's losses coming at the hands of Drake.

TERRA LINDA CASUALTY — That's coach Don Lucas, who missed a large part of the week at school with a flu. But reports are that nothing would keep Lucas from showing up for Saturday's game at Novato, 2 p.m.

REPORT FROM NOTRE DAME — Here's an inside view of last week's titanic Notre Dame-Southern Cal football clash, from Father John Heaney of Marin Catholic, who attended the game in South Bend: "It was a fantastic ballgame. It was all USC in first half, while Notre Dame really took over in the second half. USC has a fine football team, and a tremendously quick defensive line. Their linemen were quicker than some of the Notre Dame backs. But the Notre Dame players still felt that a tie was like kissing your sister — they'll settle for the tie, but they'd rather have won."

Tennis Grand Prix Planned

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis players will be shooting for $2 million in prize money on a world circuit next year, predicts Jack Kramer, and in a couple of years there will be an open Davis Cup.

The onetime tennis promoter stopped in New York yesterday to disclose features of a plan to organize a Grand Prix tournament setup with more than $1,500,000 in prize money and at least $229,000 bonus at the end of the season.

PURPOSE

"The purpose is to put overall tournament administration on an international level," Kramer told a press conference at the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association headquarters. "We cannot continue under-the-table payments to the pro promoters."

The principal pro promoters are George MacCall of Los Angeles, who heads the National Tennis League, and Lamar Hunt, the wealthy Texan who finances the World Championship Tennis, Inc. Together, they control the pros.

The promoters have threatened to boycott open tournaments unless given special fees for permitting use of their talent.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Tournament sponsors cannot afford to get involved in this kind of a merry-go-round," Kramer said. "If money is paid MacCall, smaller promoters or player agents may make similar demands."

Kramer's format calls for a minimum of 25 tournaments around the world with total prize money ranging from $25,000 to $75,000 and above. Each tournament would be compelled to contribute between $5,000 and $10,000 to a bonus fund to be awarded on a point standing at the end of the season.

POINTS

"Points would count more in established tournaments such as Wimbledon, Forest Hills and the French International at Paris," Kramer said. "A player would have to compete in at least 80 per cent of the events to qualify.

"Top prize would be $50,000, second $30,000, third $25,000 and on down to $4,000 for 16th place. This might increase as the game's popularity grows."

Kramer said he already had received full endorsement from the United States, France, Britain, Sweden, Italy and Belgium. "I am sure every tennis playing nation will come in," the ex-promoter added.

The project will be considered at a meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Federation in Brussels Dec. 5 at which time, Kramer said, a committee will be set up to run the international circuit.

Just Entitle It 'One More For The Road'

We bring you now the one-act fantasy entitled, "One More For The Road." The scene is the headquarters of Baseball, the office of the Franchise Traffic Control Commissioner. As we look in, his phone is ringing. He picks it up.

Commissioner: "Hello, Franchise Traffic Control here. This is the commissioner speaking. Are we moving the Seattle franchise? Wait a minute, let me look at my board. Yes. We are. Where? Well, where would you like it? What? well, I mean, where are you calling from? Puyallup? Let me see here. Yes. It'll be coming through there any minute. Just hang a sign, I'll wave it down. Make an offer for it. They'll listen. What? Well, it cost $10 million last year but that money has been divvied up around the league. They paid 175 grand for a lot of out-of-work ball players. You can get it at a markdown, say, $2 million. What?! You're just calling to protest the moving? You wouldn't give more than a nickel for it? (Pause) Well. . . what am I doing?! I'm weighing your offer. Will that be cash or check? Put it in writing and you'll hear from us in case Milwaukee is closed." Hangs up.

THE COMMISSIONER turns to his secretary. "Get me New York." he snaps. A moment later, his phone lights up. He grabs it.

Commissioner: Hello, Mike? Listen, Mike, we're moving the Yankees. What? Don't scream at me, Mike! I don't set policy around here. I just put wheels under it. Where to? Well, just a minute, the writing is a bit smudged. It's either Des Moines or Dubuque. Anyway, it's in Iowa. Tell you what. When you get there, just say, 'Joe sent me' What do you mean, you'd rather go to Milwaukee? Mike, you know our policy. We don't send established, sound franchises to Milwaukee. We send expansion ones, sick ones. We let Milwaukee fatten 'em up, put a solid base under 'em, then we ship 'em down South for a big fat soft drink contract. Milwaukee's just sort of our feeding pen. They LIKE baseball up there, don't ask me why. Now, get on the road and call me from Council Bluffs." Hangs up.

THE PHONE RINGS. He picks it up, scowls into it, then begins to purple with rage.

Commissioner: "Yes, Quigby! What!? Whaddaya mean, you got TWO franchises in Little Rock? Wait a minute! What year is this? 1969, right? OK, then the Cardinals are in Little Rock this year. What?! The Kansas City Royals are there, too?! Quigby! Dammit! Can't you guys get anything right?! The Royals are not due there till 1974. What do you do? Wait a minute. I got an offer here from a guy in Puyallup, a firm cash offer. What? No, I don't know where the hell it is. What difference would THAT make? We got 11 franchises on the road now and YOU'RE going to quibble over geography?" Bangs the phone down in the cradle. It rings promptly. H e gets unctuous.

COMMISSIONER: "Yes, Mr. O'Malley. What? Mr. Stoneham wants to move back to New York? Shea Stadium? Mr. O-Malley, PLEASE! Not till after they have the tickertape parade for the Mets! I mean, how would it look if we transferred the franchise halfway between Battery Park and City Hall in open convertibles! What? OF COURSE, I know who I'm talking to! (Sighs) All right, Mr. O'Malley, as soon as we get a bus free." Hangs up. Pushes the buzzer.

Commissioner: "Miss Cast? Call the dispatcher and tell him to put a red light on the board for the Mets and move them out. Which direction? I don't know. Just get them going. I'll make some calls. Bring me an Atlas. Also an aspirin. Just put a tag on them marked 'Occupant' or say, 'If lost please call the office of Baseball, Franchise Traffic Control Division." Releases buzzer, Phone rings. Picks it up, begins to sob.

COMMISSIONER: "Whaddaya mean, there's a six-bus pileup on the Pennsylvania Turnpike of colliding franchises?! And that we've caused a traffic jam on the Mew York Thruway?! There must be a mistake. The Boston Red Sox?! Where do they think THEY'RE going? I don't even have a requisition for them. In fact, I need that bus. I got 26 Mets mad as wet hens with confetti in their hair waiting right now at a loading dock in Queens." Hangs up. Puts his head in his hands and begins to sob. Picks up phone. Dials. Get an answer.

Commissioner: "Commissioner of Baseball? This is Franchise Traffic Control. Listen! This job is too much for one man. Or one computer. I'm just going to put the whole game on the Pennsylvania Central and see where it gets off. We'll draw lots. We've worn out 1,700 buses, 10,000 tires, and I got one whole fleet back in repair. I got the San Diego franchise going by mule train, and the Cardinals going West by covered wagon. I got three franchises marooned in a storm in the Yukon, and one of them on the way to Hawaii is unreported and presumed down in the Pacific. Get yourself a new boy, Commissioner. I haven't been home in weeks. I've been having sandwiches sent in for months. I'm gonna get a job clocking gypsy caravans or desert nomads."

Raiders Bone Up On Defenses

OALAND (AP) — Oakland's Raiders are boning up on their defenses as they prepare to play the San Diego Chargers a team that refused to share an American Football League record with them.

The Chargers, who hold the record of 15 straight victories set in the 1960-61 season, defeated Oakland last season after the Raiders had won 14 in a row.

Coach John Madden spent most of yesterday's practice on the defense which is aimed at stopping Chargers Dickie Post, who has averaged 5.3 yards a run, and John Hadl, who has completed 53.8 per cent of his passes.

The game Sunday at San Diego will be televised nationally.

Sonoma Staters Hope To Rebound

Sonoma State College's Cossacks will be looking for history to repeat itself tomorrow when they host the San Francisco State JV's in a 7:30 p.m. contest at Analy High School field, Sebastopol.

The game had been originally scheduled for Saturday, but was changed as some of the J.V. players are reserves on the varsity which plays Cal at Davis Saturday.

SSC's football team, the first in the school's history, scheduled mainly Far West Conference junior varsity teams this season before joining the league on a varsity level in 1970. Twice, the Cossacks have stepped out of their "league" and both times have suffered overwhelming defeats.

The latest was a 43-6 loss to Taft Junior College (Kern County) last Saturday night. This week, the Cossacks hope to spring back like they did after their first "non-league" encounter, a season-opening 65-0 loss to Arizona Western. The Cossacks won two straight over FWC junior varsity teams after the defeat, posting identical 21-7 wins over Cal State (Hayward) and Cal Aggies.

"They (Taft) were just like Arizona Western," commented Cossack coach Lloyd Helgeson after the loss. "We made a few mistakes that hurt but, even then we could have been in the ball game with a few breaks."

The Cossacks lost what looked like a touchdown in the first half when an official backed in to a Bill Cox aerial intended for SSC end Dave Dohm, all alone at the Taft 10-yard line. The ball hit the official in the head.

Helgeson said he was pleased with the strides his team has made since the season-opening loss and cited lineman Benny Guerra and backs Herm Manuel and Luther Nelson as examples.

"Guerra's really been tough in our last three games and I think his play has really helped the rest of our line," Helgeson aid. "Manuel has been outstanding and, although he didn't make any long breakaway runs against Taft (as he did in the Cossacks two wins), he still picked up yardage in key situations. Nelson has also done great job and the two of them give us a basis for our running game."

Helgeson said quarterback Bill Cox has also come along as a passer with the help of ends Dohn and Jack Trujillo. Trujillo, who was the number two quarterback at the season's start, moved to a wide receiver post after the season-opener and won himself the job.

Another SSC standout is kicker Tom Hickman, who hadn't missed an extra point until his attempt at Taft was blocked. Prior to that, Hickmen had added the point to that, Hickman had added the point after each of SSC's six touchdowns.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

Perhaps your husband has criticized you — in a friendly way, of course — about starting the family automobile with a sudden burst of power. For smoothness, in driving or bowling, you should start out slowly, then gradually build up speed. A "screeching," overly-fast bowling start will most certainly upset your rhythm.

Nolan Hoping Brodie Will Be Okay Sunday

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — Coach Dick Nolan says he hopes John Brodie can play quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers Sunday against Baltimore despite a sore arm.

Brodies, who says because of an injury his arm is not strong enough for accurate passing, worked out with the 49ers Wednesday but isn't expected to pass again until Friday.

The 49ers have lost 13 straight times to Baltimore and their chances were not enhanced by the recovery of Colts quarterback Johnny Unitas, voted the Associated Press' player of the week for his work last Sunday against New Orleans.

Unitas, who missed most of last season because of an injury, completed 20 of 28 passes for 219 yards and two touchdowns against the Saints.

The 49er-Colt National Football League game will be played Sunday in Baltimore.

How to live to be 175.

The almost unbelievable story of Jim Beam Bourbon. And the fascinating secrets of a family art that have been handed down from Beam to Beam since 1795.

by Ronald L. Phillips

A modest man is T. Jeremiah Beam. But he can't help but let out a smile of quiet satisfaction when he tells this one.

"Bernie Hurst, my wife's sister's boy, is our head chemist. Got all kinds of fancy machines and measures. Well, Bernie, he took a sample of Jim Beam we bottled last week and ran an analysis on it."

"Then I gave him a drop—a very little drop—of the oldest Beam Bourbon we have. Some my dad, Col. Jim Beam, put up in 1911."

"Well, Bernie, he darn near died. Why that 1911 Beam came out exactly as light and mellow as today's Jim Beam!"

"And, you know, if we had any of the Bourbon that old Jacob Beam made way back in 1795, I swear it'd come out the same way, too."

Since 1795 a member of the Beam family has always made Beam Bourbon.

175 YEARS BEHIND THE TIMES

Clermont, Kentucky, is just outside of Shepherdsville. Little more than a road sign inviting you to slow down for a mile or so. A few homes and buildings checkered on the rolling Kentucky countryside.

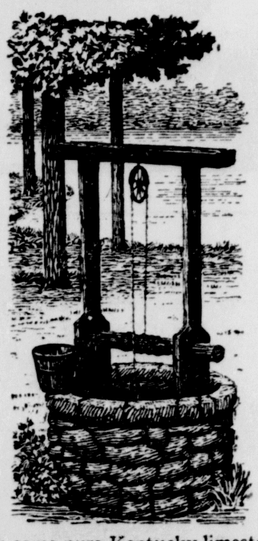
There's something almost magic about Clermont, though. The water is pure, limestone spring water. The soil is naturally sweet and rich. The weather is gentle and consistent from year to year. It's the kind of place that's as rare for making Bourbon as the grape country of France is for making wine.

The people in Clermont are special, too. They're human beings with a peculiar kind of sticktoitiveness.

When they find something good they hold fast to it. Forever if need be.

This is the country that Jacob Beam brought his family to in 1788. He started out farming. And discovered a way to make such a marvelously light and flavorful Bourbon his neighbors talked him into selling it.

His family still makes it the exact same way 175 years later.



The same pure Kentucky limestone water has been used in Beam Bourbon since 1795.

JACOB'S FIRST SECRET: START WITH A GOOD BEER

Jacob loved beer. But beer was rare in Kentucky during these post-revolutionary days. Most of the adults drank corn whiskey instead.

Jacob was intrigued by this whiskey. But he found it harsh and a little too raw. It varied a lot from one batch to the other, too.

One day, Jacob got an idea. The whiskey the folks were making was really a crude beer taken a few steps further. So, he concluded if he started with a light, mellow beer, he ought to end up with a new kind of smooth whiskey.

Jacob's farm land abounded with rich grain. He had a deep well full of fresh limestone water. So he started experimenting with home-grown ingredients.

He tried a number of different recipes of corn, rye and barley malt until he found the perfect marriage. He developed a unique strain of yeast. And then he put them together and let them ferment in great, open cyprus wood vats.

After three days he distilled this sweet-smelling mash, not once, but twice. Then he set it aside to mellow for a time.

The Beam secret recipe of choice grains has been passed down through six generations of Beams.

A SURPRISE FROM NATURE MAKES BEAM WHISKEY BEAM BOURBON

Once Jacob and his descendants began making whiskey in earnest, they needed something to age it in. Something big, yet strong enough to take the jostling wagons gave it going over the rutted Kentucky country roads.

They decided to use the most practical container of their day, a barrel. And they made it out of the sweet white oak trees that grew in majestic forests all about them.

The Beams soon learned that a bad barrel could spoil the best made whiskey. So they always used new white oak barrels. And they settled on a size that "one big man could handle by himself"

The Beam barrels do more than age Bourbon. They deliver a kind of wondrous natural flavor magic.

When a barrel is charred before it's filled, a layer of charcoal forms on the inside of the staves. This "filters" the whiskey over and over again. It gives Jim Beam its uniquely light, yet rich taste. And it gives Jim Beam a delicious natural golden amber color.

THE REAL SECRET OF JIM BEAM

Carl Beam lives right on the Clermont distillery grounds. He's on call 24 hours a day and rarely leaves the neighborhood. So particular is Carl about the handling of his yeast, his son, Baker, worked at his side for 10 straight years before Carl trusted him alone with the yeast.

Carl's other boy, David, also practices the Beam family art of making Bourbon. As does T. Jerry's nephew, Booker.

As people get to know Jim Beam, they pretty much agree there's a secret to it.

Some say it's Jacob Beam's perfect formula of natural grains. Some say it's the glorious limestone stream water. Others insist it's the rare yeast.

The Beams say it could be all of those things. But down deep they believe the real secret is their unyielding refusal to change things.

Jim Beam Bourbon is made by the same family, by the same formula, with the same quality as it was in 1795. But then, Jim Beam isn't just another Bourbon. It's truly a family art. As the Beams say: "The world's finest Bourbon since 1795."

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Oct. 23, the 296th day of 1969 with 69 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1915, some 2,500 women marched in New York City demanding the right to vote.

In 1942, the British Eighth Army launced an offensive at El Alamein, Egypt, to start the campaign which was to sweep the Axis forces out of North Africa.

In 1947, the State of Maine was declared a disaster area as forest fires caused damage estimated at $30 million.

In 1955, Ngo Dinh Diem was chosen to take over the South Vietnamese government in the country's first election. He later was assassinated.

A thought for the day: Carl Sandburg once said, "Time is a sandpile we run our fingers through."

Belvedere Sets Debris Box Test

A debris box for the disposal of cuttings and other waste materials will be placed at the Belvedere Fire Department by the city tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.

The box is being set out on an experimental basis to see if it will prove adequate to handle materials that will be banned from being burned in the ordinance that goes into effect Jan. 1.

If successful, the box will be placed at the firehouse, at 19 Community Road, during the last weekend of every month.

For Those Big Dividends, Always Watch For Spot Cards

On a bad day you can't afford to go out of doors without consulting your almanac, and you may land in the soup even if you stay indoors. Of course, you have to consult the right almanac, Poor Alfred's, where you will find this sage advice: Take care of the spot cards, and the aces and kings will take care of themselves.

DIAMOND LEAD

West opened the five of diamonds, and East won the first trick with the ace. East returned the queen of diamonds, and West carefully followed suit with the four to tell his partner that the lead had been from a five-card suit.

As it happened, this information was of only academic interest to East. Since he couldn't lead another diamond, East shifted to the jack of spades.

South took the king of spades and set to work on the clubs. West could take the ace of clubs and could even cash the king of diamonds, if he liked, but he couldn't defeat the contract.

WRONG BOOKS

It's easy to see that West had been reading the wrong books, such as the textbooks that tell you about defensive signals. It was a time for West to act rather than to signal.

If West paid attention to the spot cards he would see dummy's nine and eight and his own ten and seven — all "equals." South could hold no spot card higher than the six.

MUST OVERTAKE

West could make sure of bringing in his long suit, if he overtook the queen of diamonds with the king and then returned the seven of diamonds to force out the jack. South would have to tackle the clubs in the attempt to get nine tricks, and West would then take the ace of clubs and defeat the contract with the rest of the diamonds.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ K Q 6
♥ A Q J
♦ J 6 3 2
♣ J 7 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Heaven only knows!

Most expert partnerships do not play a jump to three diamonds as a force to game (unlike the jump raise in a major suit), so that is out. You can't bid a major with only three cards. You can't bid 2 no-trump with no stopper in clubs. Some experts would bid no-trump anyway; and some would craftily bid two clubs, intending to bid game in no-trump next. Some hands force even an honest man to tell a lie!

$23 Million Deal For Data Firm

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Itel Corp. has announced agreement in principle to acquire Intercontinental Systems, Inc., through an exchange of common stock estimated at approximately $23 million.

The deal, subject to approval by directors and shareholders of both companies, is expected to be completed next January or February.

Itel is a diversified company in the date processing industry. Intercontinental, based in Palo Alto, manufactures and sells data handling equipment such as electronic typewriters and text-editing devices.

Bakery Dividend

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tasty Baking Co. has announced a 2.5 per cent stock dividend and an extra cash payment of 2 cents a share plus the regular 22 cents a share quarterly on common, all payable Dec. 1, record date Nov. 7. The extra cash dividend was 3 cents at this time last year.

Peace Talk Snarl Slows Stock Climb

NEW YORK (UPI)—Profit taking and a dampening of peace hopes pushed stocks lower today after three consecutive advances.

Peace enthusiasm was checked a bit by a comment from Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird that he would oppose a cease-fire by U.S. Forces in Vietnam that is not part of any agreement with North Vietnam.

Volume of around 14,000,000 shares was some four-million shares below the previous session.

Among the most active issues were International Telephone, City Investing, Benguet, Jersey Standard and Chrysler.

The automotive group displayed a mixed pattern desite a lag in mid-October car sales.

Oils also moved in irregular fashion after the Senate Finance Committee voted to cut the oil depletion allowance, a major tax benefit for the petroleum industry, from the present 27.5 per cent to 23 per cent. The House had voted to reduce it to 20 per cent.

Other heavily traded stocks included Lum's Inc., the restaurant franchising organizing which made its debut on the big board last week, Occidental, American Telephone and Fairchild Camera. Fairchild Camera reported a third quarter net of 13 cents a share versus a loss during the year ago period.

Electronics and chemicals were on the weak side in a number of instances, while steels traded narrowly.

Prices eased on the American Stock Exchange in moderately active trading.

Stock Split Set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Electronic Memories and Magnetics Corp. announced a two-for-one split in common stock Dec. 19 for holders of record Dec. 1. The company also said it will redeem its outstanding 4¾ per cent subordinated debentures due in 1987 on Nov. 26 at 104.25 per cent plus accrued interest.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Strong Insurance Holding Firm Stock Worthwhile

BY ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In 1964 I purchased UNICOA at 69 ¼. The company paid dividends in both stock and cash until this year. I would appreciate your advice.—E.H.

A. UNICOA, an insurance holding company, owns United Insurance which specializes in industrial or weekly premium life insurance. United acquired 97 per cent of Pyramid Life Insurance in 1968. At the year end its admitted assets were valued at $350 million.

Prior to UNICOA's formation as a holding company last year, Teledyne, a fast-growth conglomerate, acquired about 52 per cent of the company's outstanding stock in two separate tender offers.

If teledyne continues its usual methods UNICOA's remaining shares will eventually be obtained in an exchange offer. Not only would the takeover add to Teledyne's earnings but, because of UNICOA's debt-free position, it would supply additional borrowing capacity needed to finance future acquisitions. If growth is your objective I would favor holding these shares.

Q. What is your opinion on North American Rockwell? I bought it recently at the year's low because of its dividend rate. I would like to know if it is also a prospect for price appreciation.—R.H.

A. Shares, trading close to a nine-year low, reflect depressed conditions throughout the aerospace industry. North American receives about two-thirds of its business from government contracts; the Apollo space program alone accounted for 25 per cent of 1968 sales. Billings in this area are down and will probably continue to be stretched out or cut back. Until the F15 fighter contract is awarded in January, price action in North American, which is one of three companies competing, will probably continue indecisive.

Daughter Calls Frost Bay Area Poet, Too

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Robert Frost's daughter, here to play in a documentary film about his early years, hopes it will correct a misconception that her famous father was "just a New England poet."

Mrs. Lesley Frost Ballantine, 70, Frost's only surviving child, said the title poem in his first book of poems, "A Boy's Will," reminded Frost of San Francisco where he lived until he was 11.

"He always remembered San Francisco as one of the most brilliant of cities — in the quality of light, I mean," said Mrs. Ballantine, a tanned white-haired woman with a strong resemblance to her father. She lives in New York and in summer runs a girls' school in La Granja, Spain.

G. William Gahagan of nearby Atherton, a motion picture producer and long-time Frost buff, is making the film for educational television. He hopes to follow up with others on Frost's years in Derry, N.H., and in England.

Gahagan said Frost who died in 1963, was born here in 1874, and not in 1875 as he always told biographers. The poet's exact birthplace, however, remains unknown, and loss of records during the 1906 earthquake complicates research. Gahagan still is tracking down places in the Bay Area where the Frost family lived.

The real star of the film is Prescott Frost Wilber, 11, who is on vacation from school in Fairfield, Conn., to play young Robert Frost in oldtime city scenes.

Prescott, who is Frost's great-grandson said, "Mostly it's fun. I'm the same age as he was when he left San Francisco."

Scenes have been shot of ferry trips across the Bay, picnics in Sausalito, visits to Golden Gate Park conservatory, and in Shield's bar.

The bar, where Frost visited his father at noon and partook of the free lunch, once was a hangout for Democratic leaders.

The poet's father, William Prescott Frost, was an aspiring Democratic political worker. He also was editor of the old San Francisco Evening Bulletin.

Frost's mother took him and a younger sister to live in Lawrence, Mass., after his father died in 1884 at 35, and Frost never visited California again until 1932.

Mail's Slow—Or Does Nixon Lack List Of Labor Chiefs?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Either AFL-CIO chief George Meany isn't on President Richard M. Nixon's list of labor leaders, or the mail is fouled up again—Meany hasn't received Nixon's letter urging wage restraint.

"We've been waiting and waiting," said a spokesman for Meany, referring to the Nixon letter the White House said was being mailed to 2,200 labor and business leaders.

"We make it a policy never to answer letters we haven't received," said the spokesman, who has numerous requests for Meany's reaction. "It's kind of ridiculous."

The White House said the letters were mailed over the weekend and Monday.

Meany's spokesman conceded it's possible the letter could have gotten caught in a slow mail delivery, although the AFL-CIO headquarters is just one block across Lafayette Park from the White House.

Meanwhile, it was learned Nixon told Meany he will invite the entire 35-man AFL-CIO Executive Council to the White House next Wednesday. Meany reportedly wasn't told the reason.

Nixon, whose anti-inflationary policies have been under attack by Meany, said his letters would caution both business and labor not to count on continued increases in wages and prices.

Meany, 75-year-old leader of 13.6 million members of 121 AFL-CIO unions, has sharply criticized Nixon's policies as creating more unemployment.

It also was learned that President Floyd Smith of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists had not received Nixon's letter. The union, one of the nation's largest with more than one million members, also has its headquarters in Washington. The machinists are involved with other unions in two of this year's major wage disputes as they negotiate new contracts with the railroads and with General Electric Co. and Westinghouse Corp.

San Rafael High Flagpole Bobbed By Eight Feet

Two men were seen fleeing from the area of the San Rafael High School flagpole after the pole was sawed nearly in two early Sunday, police reported today.

Chief Joseph J. Brusatori said a report had been filed by officers who saw the pair as they drove by the high school on Fourth Street at 2 a.m. Sunday. They pursued the two but were unable to locate them.

The sawing had been reported as of 2 a.m. Saturday by the city schools office. It actually was on Sunday, Brusatori said.

The pole was so nearly severed that it was necessary to remove the sawed end, shortening the staff by eight feet.

A milk goat will give an average of four to six pounds of milk daily for 10 months of the year.

Teacher Makes Bomb, Keeps Her Cool In Mishap

BETHPAGE, N.Y. (UPI)—When the mixture in the beaker began to smoke and bubble, chemistry teacher Marta Recarey knew exactly what to do.

First she dismissed the 30 students watching the experiment in the school laboratory.

Then Miss Recarey, 28, carried the beaker into the empty school gymnasium and placed it next to the wall. A bomb squad safely exploded it in a rear tank of a specially equipped truck.

Bomb squad detectives said later yesterday that the chemistry instructor had shown "very good judgment" because the mixture had inadvertently been transformed into a high-order explosive which could have killed anyone in the immediate vicinity if it had exploded.

The difficulty began when Miss Recarey, performing a routine experiment poured 500 grams of metallic potassium into a glass beaker containing an oil base.

She was unaware, however, that water was in the beaker, rendering the mixture extremely volatile.

After the beaker was placed in the gymnasium, the rest of the school's 2,000 students were evacuated.

Fire Education Program Backed

A fire prevention education program for kindergarten pupils was endorsed yesterday by the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association, president Franklin Buscher reported.

Fire prevention officers from each department will deliver kits of materials and instructions to teachers for classroom use. The program was developed by the Redwood Region Conservation Council, Buscher said.

The chiefs also asked for a second radio frequency for fire communications. The request will be investigated by the county communications department.

Athletic Grooming Rules Hearing Set

A public hearing on athletic grooming rules will be held as scheduled at 8 p.m. today in the Redwood High School student center by the Tamalpais High School District discipline committee, the district said today.

Several district residents have inquired about cancellation of the meeting, said Administrative Assistant Edward J. Neumeier. The only meeting canceled, he said, is next Monday's meeting of the Next Step Analysis workshop, which is studying district management.

Rafferty Hurls Names At Critics Of Football

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Rafferty yesterday denounced critics of college football as "kooks, crumbums and commies . . . hairy, loud-mouthed beatniks."

Rafferty who as high school football coach ran up a 51-4 won-lost record, told the North Sacramento Rotary Club football is "war—without killing."

"They are the custodians of the concepts of the past," he said of football players. "They posses a clear, bright, fighting spirit, which is America itself."

Rafferty was especially critical of Oregon State University students who brought pressure against football coach Dee Andros when he suspended a football player for refusing to shave his beard.

He said the activists "look and smell like they spent 10 years in solitary confinement on Devil's Island."

The university president was described as "a bigger ass than the players" because, Rafferty said, he set up a commission to investigate charges that Andros was "insufficiently sensitive."

"The actions of these Pseudo-intellectuals will lead to the destruction of this fine team," he said.

Rafferty said he would allow any individual or group to support a student on a football scholarship as long as the student did not receive preferential academic treatment.

"What's wrong with something that permits the son of a coal miner to go to college?" the state's top school administrator asked the Rotarians.

Rafferty recently made similar comments in a speech at Lake Tahoe.

Rasmusen has previously exhibited at Pratt Institute in New York, Pennsylvania State University, the University of Southwest Louisiana, Phillips Gallery in Salt Lake City and the Stanford University Gallery at Palo Alto.

He also is the author of several art textbooks and most recently co-authored "Sculpture from Junk" with Sausalito sculptor Art Grant.

Glasses At Sharon Tate Murder Scene Mystery Key

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police revealed today that the mystery piece of evidence which could lead to the solution of the bizarre slaying of actress Sharon Tate and four others is a pair of prescription glasses found at the scene.

Lt. Robert Helder, who is in charge of the homicide detectives working on the case since the Aug. 9 murders, made the disclosure. Last Friday police would say only that new evidence had been uncovered.

The bodies of Miss Tate, coffee heiress Abigail Folger, hair stylist Jay Sebring, Polish writer Voityck Prokowsky and 18-year-old Steven Parent were found at the Benedict Canyon estate rented by Miss Tate and her husband, Roman Polanski. Polanski was in Europe at the time.

Actor Peter Sellers has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the killer or killers.

Petaluma Youth Denies Burglary

John Edward Brown, 19, of Petaluma, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglarizing a San Anselmo house Tuesday.

A preliminary hearing was set for Friday.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein refused to reduce Brown's bail from $2,500 after learning that he is awaiting trial on three other felony charges.

Commute Crash Injures Two

Two San Rafael men received minor injuries yesterday in a morning rush-hour pile-up involving three cars on southbound Highway 101 at the San Quentin overpass, the California Highway Patrol said today.

John Hansen, 47, of 266 Orange Blossom Lane, and Robert F. Wilson of 544 Thyme Place, were to see their own doctors, according to the patrol.

They were passengers in a car driven by Margaret Elizabeth Degraves, 21, of 491 Las Colindas, San Rafael, whose car was hit from the rear by one driven by Domenico Ggilio, 22, of 1045 Fifth Street, Novato. The impact knocked her car into a third driven by George Nicolas Baziglin, 47, of 817 Montecillo Road, San Rafael.

The Mishap was at 7 a.m.

Panthers Offer To Deal For Prisoners

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Black Panther Party has offered to arrange the release of some American prisoners of war in Vietnam in exchange for the freeing of two imprisoned Panther leaders.

Panther Chief of Staff David Hilliard said at the party headquarters Wednesday that an unspecified number "of the Yankees detained by the courageous people of Vietnam" would be released if party co-founders Huey P. Newton and Bobby Seale were freed.

Newton is serving a 2-to-15 year sentence on a manslaughter conviction in the 1967 shooting death of an Oakland police officer.

Seale, the party chairman, is one of eight persons on trial in Chicago for allegedly conspiring to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

A spokesman for the State Department in Washington said he had "no information" on the proposal and added that "There are established procedures for humane treatment and release of prisoners of war."

A State Department source said that the offer was "a most unlikely proposition" and said there had been "no sign that North Vietnam is interested in the proposal."

Hilliard readily admitted that the Panthers had not contacted the State Department.

"We don't expect the government to do anything of its own accord, but we do have faith in the people putting pressure on the government," he said.

Hilliard said both Seale and fugitive Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver had been in contact with representatives of the North Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front.

Cleaver added his own comments in a telephone call from Algiers, where he is now living, which came at the end of a news conference called to explain the exchange plan.

"I don't think anyone can look on this proposal as gimmick or a sham," Cleaver said. "These are valid proposals justified on grounds to intensify political solidarity."

"I think it is a healthy sign that we are able to get the cooperation of the Vietnamese people in this effort," Cleaver said, adding that he was "in a very good position to work with them on this level."

Hilliard said the Viet Cong look upon both Newton and Seale as "political prisoners allied with all the struggling people of the world in a world wide struggle against Fascism."

He said Newton's release in particular would "contribute to world peace."

Hilliard said Newton would be worth "as many prisoners as North Vietnam is willing to give freedom to," but added that "I don't think they'll release a whole battalion of those aggressors."

Younger For Reshaping Warren Rules

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Los Angeles Dist. Atty. Evelle Younger, who indicates he is running for state attorney general, disagrees with practically all the Supreme Court's law enforcement decisions under former Chief Justice Earl Warren.

But he says it is time to stop complaining about the Warren court. What is needed now, he believes, is for policemen to adjust to the court's "changing ground rules" on how to handle suspected criminals.

"The smart law enforcement officer long since has realized that complaining about Supreme Court decisions does not put felons behind bars," the former judge and Republican leader said yesterday.

Younger called a news conference to talk about a series of training films prepared by his office and shown on closed circuit television to law enforcement agencies.

Seven Northern California counties yesterday began subscribing to the series.

kThey are Amador, Calaveras, El Dorado, Placer, Sutter, Yuba and Sacramento. The films will be shown twice-monthly through the facilities of educational television. Eleven other counties also subscribe to the series.

Purpose of the films is to acquaint policemen with recent Supreme Court decisions. Younger said the cost of production and filming is equivalent to the annual salary of a rookie officer.

Younger said if he had been on the Supreme Court the past 15 years "I would have voted with the minorty 95 per cent of the time" on decisions affecting the mechanics of law enforcement. But he emphasized these rulings now are past history.

On another topic, Younger said the Mafia is not a "major problem" in California but there are "a number of families and retired hoodlums" from the east living here. "We want to make sure they stay retired," he said.

STUDENT, MOTHER, TEACHER,

BY JOANNE GRANT

Joelle Seiber is a marvelously determined woman—determined to be an excellent mother, a top student, and eventually, a highly effective teacher.

She is devoted to her 3-year-old daughter Trina, a delicate blonde who has been deaf since birth and also has a heart defect.

Together they are meeting seemingly insurmountable difficulties, growing together in love and knowledge, and surviving, sometimes just barely, but always cheerfully.

Inspired by Trina's handicap, Mrs. Seiber, 21, is attending College of Marin, studying to be a teacher of deaf children. "There are not enough teachers and there are so many deaf children," she said, adding the rubella epidemic in the mid-60s was a major cause.

She is divorced and she and Trina live on welfare—$95 every two weeks. But that is not going to go on forever.

"I hate welfare," said the lifelong Marin resident fervently. "That's why I'm going to school."

Trina also attends school, an early education program for the deaf in Larkspur, where she is learning to speak despite her inability to hear.

She has had to miss school lately though because she and her mother have nowhere to live and there is no place for the bus to pick Trina up.

Trina has been going to school since before her first birthday—a necessity, her mother believes, if she is to learn to talk well.

In addition, Mrs. Seiber spends hours helping her daughter each day and considers this the most important part of her training as a teacher of the deaf.

"My work is with Trina," she said simply in an interview at a friend's home.

Mrs. Seiber admits frankly she could make it alone much more easily, but is determined to keep her child with her.

"I'm a mother. I have to provide for my child," she said firmly.

Her latest problem, however, has made that difficult to fulfill. The Seibers had been living in a a basement in San Rafael where it was "rotten, cold, horrible." Last week, Mrs. Seiber learned it was also subject to flooding as water poured in over their meager possessions.

Worried about Trina's health, they left and are staying with friends as she looks for a home—on foot because her old car broke down recently.

Never liking the basement arrangement, Mrs. Seiber has been looking for six months, repeatedly being turned away because landlords say they don't want children.

A second stumbling block has been money. Her welfare allotment allows $65 a month for rent though she can pay more by making cuts elsewhere.

"They're slowing me down," she said fiercely. "I have so much to do."

"There are so many people in the same position," she added. Many mothers, she asserted have placed their children with relatives or in a foster home in order to survive.

She won't do that. She will scrimp and save and sacrifice to give Trina a home. And, if determination has anything to do with it, she will become a teacher. "I'm going to stick to it. I'm going to finish school," she said doggedly.
